Al Imari Mountain liberated by Yemeni forces

Aden

The Yemeni Resistance Forces, with support of the UAE Armed Forces, liberated Al Imari mountain after sieging the Houthi militia and cutting off their line of military supplies.

Al Imari mountain overlooks the liberated Thabab Coastal Area, west of Taiz Governorate.

Earlier, the Yemeni Resistance Forces, with the Support of the UAE Armed Forces, liberated Kahboub Area and defeated the Houthi Militia as part of a series of victories achieved in a number of battlefronts, in conjunction with the successful air strikes recently launched by the Air Force of the Arab Coalition that targeted the Houthi leaders.

Iran adamant on nuke programme

Tehran

Iran says it is ready to restart its nuclear programme on an "industrial scale" in the wake of the decision by US President Donald Trump to abandon the deal that curbs the country's nuclear ambitions.

Iranian Foreign Minister Javad Zarif said he would embark on a round of international diplomacy to try and save the deal. At the same time, the country would make preparations to restart its programme of nuclear enrichment, he said. Zarif's comments came as thousands of Iranians took to the streets in the largest demonstration since Trump announced his decision Tuesday.

Protesters burned an American flag and railed against the US.

Gazans sing song of hope to Zionists' brutal chords

● Israel has said it will prevent any border breach and has stuck to its open-fire policies

Gaza City

Israeli troops fired live bullets and tear gas yesterday across a border fence into Gaza where Palestinians were holding protests. One protester was killed and 50 were wounded by Israeli fire, Gaza health officials said. It was the seventh weekly protest aimed at shaking off a decade-old border blockade of Gaza, and a preview of what is expected to be a much larger border rally on Monday. On that day, protests are timed to coincide with the planned move of the US Embassy in Israel to contested Jerusalem, where Palestinians hope to establish a future capital.

Protester Ahmed Deifallah, 25, said that President Donald Trump's decision to recognize Jerusalem as Israel's capital and move the embassy there "is causing the volcano to spew."

Deifallah, who is unemployed, said he is not afraid to die. "We are used to confronting the (Israeli) occupation with our bare chests," he said, a Palestinian flag draped around his head. "We are used to wars and no one with us but Allah."

Gaza's Hamas leader, Yehiyeh Sinwawr, has said he expects tens of thousands to partici-targeting "main instigators" and those approaching the fence, despite growing international criticism.

There are growing concerns that if Israel and Hamas dig in, a widespread border breach in coming days could lead to large numbers of casualties.

Since the Hamas-led marches began in late March, 41 Palestinian protesters have been killed by Israeli fire, including a 40-year-old man shot dead Friday, according to the Gaza Health Ministry. More than 1,700 Palestinians have been shot and wounded, including 49 on Friday. Seven of the injured on Friday were in serious condition, among them a 16-year-old with a shot to the head.

US Embassy in Jerusalem to open with initial staff of 50

WASHINGTON

The new US Embassy in Jerusalem will open with an initial staff of at least 50.

That's according to senior Trump administration officials previewing the highly anticipated opening on May 14. The embassy is moving from Tel Aviv in line with President Donald Trump's recognition of Jerusalem as Israel's capital.

Roughly 800 guests will attend the event.

Officials say the US delegation doesn't plan to meet any Palestinian officials during their visit.

Initial embassy staff will include Ambassador David Friedman's aides and US consular officers already working at the site. The embassy is opening in part of a pre-existing American visa-and-passport facility with a fraction of the total US personnel in Israel, sources said.

President Trump will address the assembled US and Israeli dignitaries at the opening of the embassy by video on Monday.
