Debicki doesn't plan her film career

Los Angeles

Australian actress Elizabeth Debicki says she has never been good at planning her film career, and likes to go with the flow.

"I have never been very good at planning what film roles I want to do next. I was lucky that I played very different characters last year and they were really challenging in different ways," Debicki said.

"But I am also a theatre actor and I know what roles I want to play in theatre. There are lots of role in literature that I want to tackle. But in films, I see what comes around the corner next," she added.

Debicki entered showbiz in 2011 with a small role in "A Few Best Men". (IANS)

HOLLYWOOD REWARDS 'MEDIOCRITY'

Taking a swipe at the Hollywood, Veteran actress Susan Sarandon said that it is 'mediocrity' which is rewarded in the industry.

According to a report, Susan made this remark, while she was in London for promoting her new documentary, 'Bombshell: The Hedy Lamarr Story', which tells the story of silver screen legend Hedy Lamarr. Talking about Lamarr, Sarandon said, "it's certainly not a requirement to be smart in my business."

"Mediocrity is rewarded time and time again. A lot of the time you're hired because you don't ask questions. It takes more time to ask questions, it takes more time to fight for something with integrity," she added. (ANI)

Spielberg's movie faces technical glitches

Austin

Veteran filmmaker Steven Spielberg's movie "Ready Player One" had a world premiere here, but not before facing technical difficulties drawing boos from the crowd.

After being announced as the secret screening at this year's SXSW Film Festival, Spielberg's film was hit with technical difficulties during its world premiere on Sunday night. About 100 minutes into the film, the sound went out, drawing boos and jeers from the Paramount Theater crowd here, reports variety.com.

The projectionist restarted the movie, which had been paused during a climatic scene, but the sound system failed again.

After a third, successful attempt, the sold-out crowd burst into applause. (IANS)
