Bon Jovi honoured with Icon Award

Los Angeles
The legendary rock band Bon Jovi was honoured with the first-ever iHeartRadio Icon Award to celebrate their contributions to music during their 35-year career.
At the 2018 iHeartRadio Music Awards on Sunday, the band performed classics like “It’s My Life” and “You Give Love a Bad Name”, reports people.com.

“I want to thank the three-and-a-half decades of fans that have been listening to Bon Jovi songs,” frontman Jon Bon Jovi, 56, said during the band’s acceptance speech.
“We’ve been at this game a long time and the only advice I’ll tell this incredible generation of incredible talent is just stay true to who you are, and then they’re going to make you guys icons too someday,” he added. (IANS)

Guillermo del Toro launches scholarship

Oscar-winning director Guillermo del Toro, who was in his native city for the week-long Guadalajara International Film Festival, announced a scholarship for aspiring Mexican filmmakers.
According to a report, during the festival, del Toro is imparting a series of free master classes to thousands of fans. After his first masterclass, the organisers announced the creation of the Jenkins-Del Toro International Film Scholarship, a USD 60,000 annual award for an aspiring Mexican filmmaker to study abroad at a prestigious film institute.
