THE PERFECTED SMOKEY EYE LOOK

Ever buy a beauty product and then realize you have no idea how to use it? A detailed look book included with the palette breaks down four ways to get Naked and smoky. Follow the step-by-step instructions to steal one of our looks (try the Iconic UD Smoky Eye, the Smoky Reality Star, the Smoky Cat or Everyday Smoky), or create your own. Top makeup artists also pitch in their best tips and tricks for smoky-eye success. And since high-quality brushes are essential, the palette comes with an exclusive double-ended brush. Use the Tapered Crease Brush to lay down shadow, define the crease or blend out color. To seamlessly fuse shadow and liner, use the Smoky Smudger Brush. Small enough for highlighting the brow bone or the corner of the eye, it's also ideal for smoking out the lower lash line.

HOW TO GET YOURS IN 5MINS!

Use a medium-size round brush to apply charcoal gray powder in an arch shape just above the crease of the lid. Then blend down to the lash line. 2. Trace the upper lash line with a soft black pencil, then gently smudge with your fingertip. 3. With a smaller, firm-bristle brush, press a gunmetal shade into the lower lash line. 4. Apply a pale silver powder to the inner corners of the eyes to lighten the overall effect. 5. Pile on mascara.

GETTING THE CLAYED TREATMENT

If you have oily or acne-prone skin, clay masks are a must-have. They soak up all traces of dirt and grease. One I have tried recently is Lancôme Empreinte, a thin layer is enough to cover the whole face and should only be left for 10 minutes. I personally leave it for 15-20 minutes because of its amazing smell, what I also love about this product is that it does not dry immediately. Instead, it gets absorbed in the skin and dries up slowly. What I do is wash it off before it dries up entirely and starts to crack, as the tightness might cause the skin to dry up.

Clay masks have lots of benefits for the skin; they absorb waste, harmful toxins, oil and dirt from the skin. Girls can get caught up with the latest beauty products, including heavy facial creams, serums and make up. Our skin sometimes needs a break; clay masks used once a week will help do the job. What clay mask also does, is that it rejuvenates the skin due to its high mineral content, moisturizes it and at the same time treats acne.

After conducting some research on the benefits of clay masks I have found that Lancôme Empreinte has been used on a 13 year old girl with extremely bad acne, due to a hormonal imbalance. After using the mask once a week for a period of one month she has noticed a dramatic change in her skin, claiming that it is now more radiant, smoother with lesser breakouts.

I would highly recommend trying Lancôme Empreinte, it can be found in Faces, it comes in a 100 ml tube and costs BD20.
