

Ellen DeGeneres @TheEllenShow
I'm so grateful for every comment, every message, every heart. Thank you.

Lohan designing her own island in Dubai

Dubai
Hollywood actress Lindsay Lohan says that she is designing her own island, here and it will be called "Lohan Island".

During her appearance on "The Wendy Williams Show" on January 12, the "Mean Girls" actress said that her plans to design one of the islands within The World Islands, an artificial archipelago of small islands off the coast of her adopted home Dubai, reports aceshowbiz.com.

"I'm discussing designing an island in Dubai, with The World Islands. I have a lot of little projects there because I like to keep busy," she told host Wendy Williams.

She added: "So, when I'm finished filming (British sitcom) 'Sick Note' I can go back to Dubai, start the lipstick, discuss that and then design this island, Lohan Island." (IANS)

Radcliffe breaks silence

Los Angeles
"Harry Potter" star Daniel Radcliffe has broken his silence on the controversy surrounding the casting of actor Johnny Depp in "Fantastic Beasts" movies.

Radcliffe opened up about his thought on the casting backlash, which was first sparked after Depp was accused of abusing his ex-wife Amber Heard during their marriage, reports ew.com.

Addressing the criticism that writer J.

K. Rowling, director David Yates and studio Warner Bros. have faced in keeping Depp as the titular villain in "Fantastic Beasts: The Crimes of Grindelwald", Radcliffe said: "It's very hard thing for me."

The Harry Potter depicter went on saying that the producers were the ones who "gave me a great start in life and an amazing job." (IANS)

Chastain thinks Hollywood's changing

The 'Molly's Game' star Jessica Chastain is proud that, in an era where politics is becoming more "conservative and intolerant", the movie industry is trying to be more diverse and pushing for gender equality.

She said: "The industry is changing. In a world where politics is becoming so conservative and so intolerant, the industry wants diversity and tolerance and gender equality. So I do feel that there's a change now."

But the 40-year-old actress finds it frustrating that women are asked about their age and future opportunities once they hit their forties because she thinks the questions "devalue" females.

She said: "I don't even like talking about age."

"I feel like by answering it I'm doing a disservice to women everywhere." (femalefirst.co.uk)

