Actor George Clooney has come on board to narrate the documentary “Never Stop Dreaming: The Life and Legacy of Shimon Peres”.

It is based on the life of late Israel President Shimon Peres.

It’s the 16th film produced by Moriah Films, the film division of the Simon Wiesenthal Centre in Los Angeles. The production company generates documentaries focused on the Jewish experience as well as contemporary human rights.

Nine months before Peres died in 2016, the 92-year-old had asked Moriah Films to create a documentary on his life story, reports variety.com.

“Never Stop Dreaming: The Life and Legacy of Shimon Peres” includes interviews with President Bill Clinton, President George W. Bush, President Barack Obama, British Prime Minister Tony Blair and American singer-songwriter Barbra Streisand. (IANS)

Bryant talks about ‘I Feel Pretty’ criticisms

Actress Aidy Bryant has responded to the criticism of her new film ‘I Feel Pretty’, saying that it does not promote fat-shaming and fat-phobia in the society.

In the film, directed by Abby Kohn and Marc Silverstein, actor Amy Schumer plays an everyday insecure woman who after falling off her bike during a spin class, wakes up with a newfound confidence.

Barrymore recalls flashing David Letterman

Drew Barrymore has been making the talk show rounds for over three decades now, but one moment in particular, according to her, will always stand out above the rest; that time when she flashed acclaimed American television host, David Letterman, back in 1995.

On a chat show with Stephen Colbert, the star recalled some of her more outrageous moments, including when she flashed David Letterman on his birthday.

The ‘50 First Dates’ actress then joked that she has no regrets about her show-stopping moment on Letterman and added, “You only have one life!” Barrymore also had a close friendship with Letterman. (ANI)
