

Khloe Kardashian poised to leave family show

Los Angeles
Reality TV star Khloe Kardashian, who is expecting her first child with boyfriend Tristan Thompson, will reportedly take extended maternity leave soon and stay away from the spotlight including her family show "Keeping Up With The Kardashians".
According to a source, Khloe's mother Kris Jenner is not pleased with her daughter's decision, reports aceshowbiz.com.
"Khloe is prepared to stay away for good if necessary. No matter what, she's going to hunker down and nest with the baby," the source said.
The source shared "Khloe has threatened to leave the show for good" if Kris or the producers of the show gives her a hard time.
"She can't deal with Kris micromanaging her any longer," the source added. (IANS)

RYAN PHILLIPPE SUES FORMER GIRLFRIEND

Los Angeles

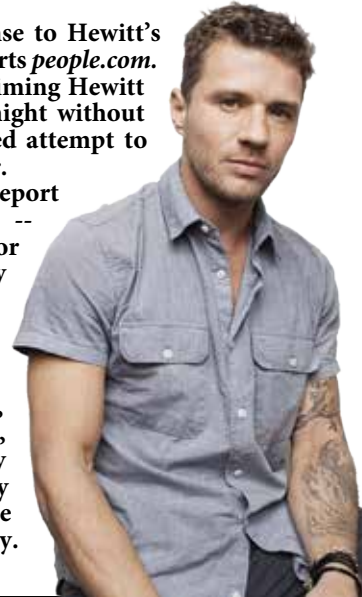

Actor Ryan Phillippe has filed a counter lawsuit against former girlfriend Elsie Hewitt, who had accused him of brutally beating her earlier this year.

Phillippe filed the documents last week in response to Hewitt's lawsuit claiming he had been abusive towards her, reports people.com.

In the lawsuit, the actor denied the allegations, claiming Hewitt "broke into Phillippe's home in the middle of the night without permission" and "fabricated a story in an unjustified attempt to extort money" from him to help her modelling career.

Phillippe said Hewitt made a false police report accusing him of injuring her on July 4 -- the alleged date of the incident. The actor also claimed Hewitt was "extremely intoxicated".

"To be clear: I have not had a 'girlfriend' for over a year now and have barely dated anyone since. Any other labels or mis-characterisations, from media or gossips, related to anyone, briefly, connected to my personal life, are false. Happy Thanksgiving," Phillippe tweeted on Wednesday. (IANS)

The Weeknd, Katy Perry to collaborate

Los Angeles

Singers The Weeknd and Katy Perry are reportedly preparing for a collaboration.

The Weeknd and Perry maybe working on a collaboration after the two were spotted having dinner together at a restaurant in West Hollywood, reports people.com.

The Weeknd, whose real name is Abel Makkonen Tesfaye, keeps thinking about working on a collaboration with talented artists as a habit.

"Abel is always thinking about new collaboration with talented artists. Abel has many female friends and most of them are in the industry," said a source.

"Perry and The Weeknd were joined by a few producers and were having a great time as they dined on pasta, pizza and steak for three hours. They were with a group of people and they arrived and left separately. They dined on pasta, pizza and steak for three hours. They had intense conversations and everyone seemed to have a great time," the source added. (IANS)
