

CELEBS

Ellen DeGeneres @TheEllenShow
 We should be grateful to the people who wish to serve, not turn our backs on them. Banning transgender people is hurtful, baseless and wrong

Cavill pokes fun at moustache controversy

Actor Henry Cavill has taken a pot shot at all the hubbub surrounding his moustache, which he will be seen sporting in upcoming film 'Mission: Impossible 6'.

The situation arose when the 34-year-old grew facial hair for his new role in the upcoming Paramount Pictures film 'Mission: Impossible 6', which caused problems for Warner Bros and its 'Justice League' re-shoots, as he plays clean-shaven Superman in it. According to reports, Paramount was refusing to let him shave, forcing Warner Bros to employ state-of-the-art digital trickery to erase his face fur.

Cavill on Wednesday posted a behind-the-scenes shot from the set of 'Mission: Impossible 6' on Instagram, but he insisted it was something else. (TOI)

Things got bad: Jolie on split from Pitt

Los Angeles

Actress Angelina Jolie, who claims that she dealt with Bell's Palsy and hypertension following her much talked about split with actor Brad Pitt, says she knew her marriage was on the brink of ending when things got "bad and difficult" to handle.

She added that the family is still healing from the fallout. (IANS)

Taylor Swift, Joe Alwyn 'doing great'

Los Angeles

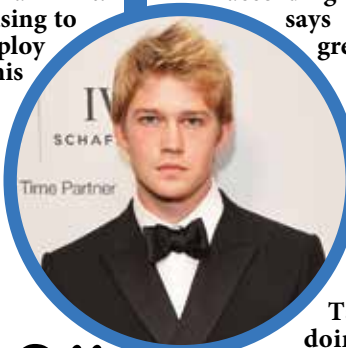

Singer Taylor Swift is enjoying her secret relationship with her boyfriend Joe Alwyn, according to a source, who says they are "doing great" as a couple.

Swift and the actor have kept a low-profile since their romance first became public.

"Joe and Taylor are doing great.

He is different than the other guys she has dated," the source said while talking about Swift's former relationships with One Direction star Harry Styles and DJ Calvin Harris.

"He is very low-key and just a chill guy overall. They get along great and really got to know each other over the past few months," eonline.com quoted the source as saying. (IANS)

STARRY
 Birthday
 Brad Simpson

July 28, 1995

Lead singer and rhythm guitarist for the British pop/rock band The Vamps alongside bassist Connor Ball, lead guitarist James McVey and drummer Tristan Evans.

Cameron wants to make new 'Terminator' trilogy

Los Angeles

Filmmaker James Cameron is considering to relaunch the "Terminator" franchise. He says he plans to do it with a "three-film arc".

Cameron, known for "Avatar" and "Titanic", wants to "reinvent" the big-budget sci-fi franchise - that paved his way to success and recognition in 1984.

According to news.com.au, the rights to make the films have changed several times since the release of the first film, but under US copyright law some rights will revert to Cameron in 2019. His original "Terminator", featuring Arnold Schwarzenegger as a cyborg sent from the future, was made on a $6 million budget, and went on to mint $78 million and achieve the status of a cult classic. (IANS)

