‘Progress’ made towards US-Iran talks amid tensions

AFP | Paris

Iran's top security official said yesterday that progress had been made towards negotiations with the US.

Washington has deployed a naval battle group led by the USS Abraham Lincoln aircraft carrier off Iran's shores, after Trump threatened to intervene in the wake of a deadly crackdown on anti-government protests.

The arrival of the flotilla has raised fears of a direct confrontation with Iran, which has warned it would respond with missile strikes on US bases, ships and allies - notably Israel - in the event of an attack.

But Trump has said he believes Iran will prefer to seal a deal over its nuclear and missile programmes rather than face American military action - and Tehran has said it is ready for nuclear talks if its missiles and defence capabilities are not on the agenda.

Hype

“Contrary to the hype of the contrived media war, structural arrangements for negotiations are progressing,” said Ali Larijani, head of Iran's Supreme National Security Council, a day after the Kremlin said he held talks in Moscow with Russian President Vladimir Putin.

Iranian army chief Amir Hatami earlier warned the US and Israel against any attack, saying his forces were “at full defensive and military readiness” to respond.

On Friday, US Central Command (CENTCOM) said the IRGC would conduct “a two-day live-fire naval exercise” in the Strait of Hormuz, a key transit hub for global energy supplies.

In a statement, CENTCOM warned the IRGC against “any unsafe and unprofessional behaviour near US forces”.

It drew criticism from Iran's Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi.

“Operating off our shores, the US military is now attempting to dictate how our Powerful Armed Forces should conduct target practice in their own turf,” he wrote on X.

BD63m in business aid already covers bankruptcy concerns for Bahraini companies and factories

● Assistance available through Labour Fund, Tamkeen, schemes

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

BD63 million of pandemic-era business support forms part of the safety net already in place for Bahraini companies and factories facing bankruptcy, the government has told MPs.

In a written reply to Parliament, it said it had reviewed an urgent request calling for state backing for commercial firms and local factories under threat of insolvency, but argued that support is already available through Labour Fund, Tamkeen, schemes, work with local banks and steps to update the law on reorganisation and bankruptcy.

The government said it backs the private sector as a partner in sustainable development and, through its agencies, works to clear hurdles facing Bahraini businesses and factories that support the economy and employ Bahrainis, provided they meet Tamkeen's terms and requirements.

Industry

It said the support on offer spans economic sectors, including industry, and includes grants to help businesses buy machinery and equipment, access to finance, and funding support arranged with a number of local banks.

It added that Tamkeen's programmes also provide training opportunities in the industrial sector, which it described as a priority area for support because of its role in growth and job creation for Bahrainis.

Tamkeen also engages with some distressed Bahraini companies that play a role in the Kingdom's commercial and economic activity, particularly those employing Bahrainis, the reply said.

Aim

The aim is to review support options that fit each case, help firms settle their positions, restore business activity and protect Bahraini jobs.

tion during a period of economic disruption, the government pointed to the financial package launched during the coronavirus pandemic to provide liquidity to the private sector and maintain business continuity.

It said Tamkeen introduced the 'Business Continuity Support' programme in April 2020, injecting more than BD63 million to support more than 22,000 establishments, with grants aimed at covering operational needs for businesses affected by the pandemic.

The government said it later launched an Economic Recovery Plan for the post-pandemic phase from 2021, and reintroduced support programmes linked to business establishment and economic growth, alongside measures aimed at supporting employment and career progression for citizens.

It added that the Central Bank of Bahrain has expressed readiness to work with creditor banks to encourage them to study financial pressures and put forward solutions to protect Bahraini companies threatened with bankruptcy.

Updates

The government also said it is examining updates to the Reorganisation and Bankruptcy Law, Law No. 22 of 2018, in co-operation with the central bank and banks, including bank proposals linked to the request raised in Parliament.

In closing, the government said the aim of the request had been met, while stressing it would continue working with Parliament within the relationship between the executive and legislative branches.

A civil court has issued a decisive ruling in favour of a claimant seeking compensation following the theft of her vehicle, affirming that a final criminal conviction is sufficient to establish civil liability, particularly in cases involving abuse of trust between former spouses. The dispute arose between a woman and her former husband, who was later convicted under a final and enforceable criminal judgment.

Court documents show that the claimant had handed her vehicle to her ex-husband after he informed her that the car required repairs due to technical issues.

Relying on this assurance, she entrusted him with the vehicle, which was never returned. Instead, the defendant unlawfully retained the vehicle and proceeded to steal it.

Criminal proceedings further established that he had forged the claimant's signature in connection with the vehicle, an offence that was conclusively proven before the criminal court and became binding once the judgment acquired finality.

Delaying deportation 'opens door to abuse'

Rehab Mohammad
TDT | Manama

The Supreme Council for the Judiciary has urged the Council of Representatives to reconsider a draft law that seeks to suspend the deportation of foreign nationals sentenced to prison, in order to allow them to repay their debts to citizens.

The Council stated that enforcing deportation orders serves the public interest, while postponing them for debt repayment reflects a private interest that may not always be fulfilled.

It warned that the proposed amendment could open the door to abuse, including the creation of fake enforcement documents, allowing convicted foreigners to claim repayment intentions merely to secure continued residence in the country.

Liabilities

The Council explained that suspending a deportation order would require the foreign convict to settle all civil liabilities arising from the judgment.

However, enforcement ultimately depends on the individual's willingness to pay, leave the country, or remain despite the risks posed by their presence.

It added that if a foreign convict does not have sufficient assets to cover their debts, keeping them in the country would be futile.

Private hospitals under fee oversight

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

Private hospitals are already under government supervision, the government told MPs, as the cabinet argued that an urgent proposal to control healthcare service fees is covered by existing rules.

In a written reply to MPs, the government said private healthcare institutions are monitored through licensing requirements and ongoing checks on the standard of care.

It said providers must keep to the terms of their licence-es, maintain required health standards, and meet technical and safety requirements.

The government said it also requires medical devices and equipment used by private providers to meet approved international standards and specifications, in line with Bahrain's legal framework, citing Decree-Law No. 21 of 2015 on private healthcare institutions, as amended by Law No. 1 of 2019.

The framework supports patients' freedom to choose the private healthcare institution that suits their needs.

Directorate to roll out first phase of smart traffic cameras across Kingdom today

Ashen Tharaka
TDT | Manama

Starting today, Bahrain's roads are getting a high-tech upgrade.

The General Directorate of Traffic (GDT) has launched the first phase of the smart camera system, designed to monitor traffic violations in real-time and enhance road safety across the kingdom.

The Ministry of Interior confirmed that the system is fully operational and efficient under all conditions.

Awareness campaigns will intensify in the coming days, ensuring drivers understand which violations the smart cameras can detect.

Accidents

The move comes amid a concerning start to the year, with four lives lost in January alone due to traffic accidents.

A collision in Al Qarah, Sakhir, claimed the lives of two Bahraini men, aged 31 and 29, and an eight-year-old child.

In Isa Town, a 36-year-old Asian man died after losing control of his motorcycle.

Authorities continue investigations at both sites.

Participation

Fayeze Amin, Head of Media and Publishing at the GDT told The Daily Tribune, the importance of citizen and residents participation.

"We urge all residents to update their contact details via the eTraffic or MyGov apps. Timely alerts will help drivers stay informed and allow authorities to respond immediately," he said. The smart camera system defects a wide range of violations, including speeding, running red lights, illegal use of the emergency lane, handheld mobile phone usage while driving, seat-belt violations, children sitting in the front seat, lane deviations, heavy vehicle lane misuse, window tint violations, repeated lane changes, and slow driving in the left lane.

Traffic statistics from 2025 highlight the urgency of these measures.

Vehicles

Over 783,500 vehicles were registered on Bahrain's roads by August, with speeding accounting for 24–28% of violations, red-light infractions 16%, and illegal parking 12%.

Minor offenses included seat-belt violations (4%), mobile phone usage (1%), and expired vehicle registrations (9%).

To strengthen enforcement, the government has also introduced tougher penalties, including fines up to BD10,000 and prison terms of up to 10 years for severe cases.

With technology and awareness joining forces, Bahrain aims to make its roads safer for everyone, drivers, passengers, and pedestrians alike.

The smart camera system uses advanced technology to detect key traffic violations in real time.

Exceeding speed limits
Running red lights
Using the emergency vehicles lane (yellow lane)
Using a handheld mobile phone while driving
Failure to wear seatbelts by the driver and front-seat passenger
Children sitting in the front seat
Lane violations at intersections and disregard for road markings
Heavy vehicles not keeping to the right lane
Excessive window tinting
Repeated lane changes or driving slowly in the left lane
Heavy vehicle movement during peak hours

Reform agenda

Shura Council
Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

The Shura Council will discuss three decree-laws in today's session, including one approving a unified GCC rulebook for international road transport and another updating parts of the law on the care, rehabilitation and employment of persons with disabilities.

The agenda also includes a draft law tied to an agreement to base the headquarters of an international dates observatory in the Kingdom.

Members are due to consider the Foreign Affairs, Defence and National Security Committee's report on Decree-Law No. 35 of 2025, which approves the Unified System (Law) on International Land Transport between GCC states.

Obligations

The committee recommended backing the decree-law, saying it meets Bahrain's regional obligations and implements what the GCC Supreme Council adopted at its 43rd session, when it approved the unified system as a single set of rules meant to strengthen coordination among member states.

The committee said the decree-law also deals with delays in bringing the unified system into effect after the deadline for its application passed.

It warned that further delay could create a legal gap affecting smooth cross-border road transport within the GCC, especially as some member states, led by Saudi Arabia, have begun applying the system.

That, it said, drove urgent legislation to protect Bahraini transport firms and ensure a level playing field.

Differences

In its report, the committee said the unified system would reduce differences between national rules and cut duplicate regulation by placing international road transport under one enforceable framework across member states.

It added that the system supports road safety by standardising technical standards and stepping up checks on vehicles and transport operations.

It also said the change would help trade and logistics by improving supply chains, the movement of goods and the competitiveness of the logistics sector.

The Antique Souq in Hoora is not simply a marketplace. It is a quiet space where everyday objects from the past find renewed meaning, offering visitors a chance to reconnect with moments that once shaped daily life across generations.

Held each Saturday, the souq brings together traders and collectors who carefully display items that were once essential rather than decorative.

Reliability

Old watches sit neatly arranged, many still ticking, reflecting a time when reliability mattered more than constant upgrades.

Nearby, car figures recall an era when design was expressive Collectible pieces from the past and identity mattered.

Old kitchenware appears with visible weight and durability, reminding visitors of a period when items were made to serve for decades rather than seasons.

Rows of vintage Coca Cola and Pepsi glasses add another layer of familiarity, echoing family gatherings and neighbourhood cafes that defined social routines.

The evolution of communication is also present.

Technology

Medals are displayed alongside classic mobile phones such as early Nokia and BlackBerry models, symbols of a time when technology was functional and uncomplicated.

Video tapes, magazines, and old books fill several tables, preserving stories that existed long before digital screens became dominant.

A traditional landline home phone sits quietly among classic soft drink bottles, while old televisions, radios, and video cameras complete the scene, recalling evenings centred around shared experiences rather than individual screens.

Charities already exempt from municipal fees

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

Charities in Bahrain are already exempt from municipal fees and can draw on state-backed support through a dedicated fund, the government has told MPs, in response to a proposal seeking to waive government service charges for charitable and civil associations.

In a written reply to the Parliament on the proposal, the government said support for civil society groups is governed by Decree-Law No. 21 of 1989, known as the Associations Law, which provides for a special fund to support charities and private institutions working in youth, sport, and social and cultural fields.

They said the Ministry of Social Development established the National Social Work Fund under Decision No. 46 of 2005 to support charities and NGOs in meeting their aims and serving the wider community, alongside measures aimed at improving co-ordination between organisations and easing the practical running of activities and events.

The government said registered charities, civil associations and humanitarian-purpose groups are exempt from municipal fees on their buildings and land under paragraph (d) of Article 67 of the executive regulations to Decree-Law No. 35 of 2001, the Municipalities Law, issued by Decision No. 16 of 2002.

The government, however, drew a distinction between municipal fees and electricity and water charges.

The reply said the Electricity and Water Authority contracts with private producers to supply electricity and water, and with private firms to provide materials and carry out installation and connection works for all subscribers, including charities. Those costs are met through what the authority collects from subscribers.

I'm no angel, Italy's PM says amid church fresco row

AFP | Rome, Italy

Italy's prime minister, Giorgia Meloni, joked yesterday she does not look like an angel, after a row blew up in the media over a restored fresco in a Rome church.

Some of Italy's press have been asking whether the premier served as inspiration for a cherub painted in a chapel in the San Lorenzo in Lucina basilica, located a few metres (yards) from the main building of the Italian government.

The newspaper La Repubblica noted that, following recent renovations, one of the painted angels bears a resemblance to the blonde, diminutive leader.

The winged figure is seen holding a parchment and standing next to a bust of Italy's last king, Umberto II, who reigned for just a month before being deposed in 1946.

The Italian restorer who worked on the cherub, Bruno Ventinetti, denied to the press that he sought to immortalise Meloni, insisting that he only brought back the image of the original fresco.

Meloni herself appeared amused by the controversy, posting an image of the restored fresco on Instagram with the comment: "No, decidedly I do not resemble an angel."

But, after several opposition politicians complained, Italy's culture minister, Alessandro Giuli, said he had ordered an inspection of the fresco on Saturday.

The expert look-over will "determine the nature of the works carried out on the updated painting inside one of the chapels of San Lorenzo in Lucina and decide what further steps might be taken", he said in a statement.

Saudi-Pakistan mutual defence pact will not include Turkey

Turkish official said had entered talks aimed at entering the alliance

AFP | Riyadh, Saudi Arabia

Turkey will not join a mutual defence pact between Saudi Arabia and Pakistan, a source close to the Saudi military said yesterday, after a Turkish official said earlier this month that they had entered talks aimed at entering the alliance.

Speculation has been rife that the three countries were intent on forming a powerful alliance amid soaring tensions in the region, following Israeli air strikes in Doha over the summer targeting Hamas officials that preceded Iran's bombing of a US air base in Qatar.

"Turkey won't join the defence pact with Pakistan," the source told AFP, dismissing reports of negotiations.

"It's a bilateral pact with Pakistan and will remain a bilateral pact". A Gulf official also confirmed the information.

"This is a bilateral defensive relationship with Pakistan. We have common agreements with Turkey but the one with Pakistan will stay bilateral," the official said.

The defence agreement between Pakistan and Saudi Arabia, announced last year raised many questions, particularly about its possible nuclear component, given that Islamabad possesses nuclear weapons.

The Pakistan-Saudi pact was signed just months after Pakistan and India fought an intense four-day conflict in May that killed more than 70 people on both sides in missile, drone and artillery fire, the worst clashes between the nuclear-armed neighbours since 1999.

India's rapidly developing economy relies heavily on petroleum imports, with Saudi Arabia ranked as its third-largest supplier according to the Indian foreign ministry.

AFP | Shanghai, China

British Prime Minister Keir Starmer concludes an official visit to China on Saturday -- a four-day tour of Beijing and Shanghai that he described as "historic".

While in the country, Starmer discussed trade, football and elephants with Chinese leader Xi Jinping. Here is what to know about the trip.

'Historic' visit

Starmer is the first British prime minister to visit China in eight years.

"They say that eight days is a long time in politics. Try eight years," he said upon arriving in Beijing.

Starmer met with Chinese officials, including Xi, on Thursday.

The two leaders spoke for about three hours -- longer than initially scheduled, Downing Street noted.

Clouding the visit was criticism by US President Donald Trump, who warned that rapprochement between London and Beijing was "very dangerous".

'The whole elephant'

Speaking to business leaders, Starmer summarised his goal in China with a parable.

"President Xi tells the story of blind men being presented with an elephant. One touches the leg and thinks it's a pillow. Another feels the belly and thinks it's a wall," Starmer said. "Too often this reflects how China is seen. But I profoundly believe that broader and deeper engagement, which we've been talking about all this week, is our way of seeing the whole elephant and therefore building a more sophisticated relationship fit for these times."

Japan's Prime Minister Sanae Takaichi (R) and Britain's Prime Minister Keir Starmer shake hands

Xi echoed calls for engagement, telling Starmer the countries should "strengthen dialogue and cooperation".

Football diplomacy

Starmer rarely misses an opportunity to discuss the English Premier League, the world's most-watched football competition, with his foreign counterparts.

On Thursday, Starmer presented Xi Jinping with a football from a recent match between Arsenal -- Starmer's favourite club -- and Manchester United, which Xi reportedly supports.

Xi, often characterised by Chinese state media as an avid reader of world literature in his youth, also discussed Shakespeare, Starmer said.

Outcomes for Britain

Starmer faces a challenging situation at home, where he is striving to deliver on campaign promises to reduce undocumented immigration, boost growth and combat the high cost of living.

While in China, Starmer touted the benefits his visit will have for British people, including visa-free travel for UK citizens on stays of less than 30 days, Downing Street said.

A spokesman for Beijing's foreign ministry specified Friday that the measure will come into effect "at an appropriate time upon completing the necessary procedures".

Starmer also highlighted a reduction in customs duties on whisky exports. Downing Street said this would bring in an estimated 250 million pounds ($343 million) over the next five years.

The prime minister urged business leaders in his delegation to seize opportunities in China, but to do so in a way that benefits Britain, where the cost of living is the "number one concern".

Discretion on hotspot issues

Starmer was tight-lipped on how discussions went over more contentious aspects of the relationship, such as Beijing's treatment of the Uyghur Muslim minority in Xinjiang.

He confirmed that he raised the case of Hong Kong pro-democracy media mogul Jimmy Lai, 78, who is facing years in prison after being found guilty of collusion charges in December.

Starmer noted a "respectful discussion" with Xi about Lai and the treatment of Uyghurs. A British official familiar with the talks confirmed that the subjects had received attention. "If you engage, you can raise the difficult issues," Starmer said. The prime minister also said that the strategy played an instrumental role in securing the lifting of sanctions imposed by Beijing in 2021 on some British parliamentarians.

CAPTAIN'S CORNER

A special approach to vulnerability

CAPTAIN MAHMOOD AL MAHMOOD

Bahrain is expanding special needs education with 54 new classrooms by 2025-2026, guided by its Constitution and Education Law. While hundreds of students with conditions like autism and Down's syndrome are integrated with support, the current inclusion programme excludes those with learning difficulties or chronic illnesses, suggesting a selective rather than universal approach.

Bahrain's commitment to integrating persons with special needs into the workforce is not merely a social gesture but a structured legal mandate. At the heart of this commitment is Law No. 74 of 2006, which serves as the legislative cornerstone for the care, rehabilitation, and employment of individuals with disabilities. This law ensures that inclusion moves beyond the classroom and into the professional sphere, treating these citizens as vital contributors to the Kingdom's economic progress.

Bahrain has demonstrated a strong commitment to the integration of persons with special needs into the workforce, underpinned by a clear legal framework. At the core of this commitment is Law No. 74 of 2006, which provides the legislative basis for the care, rehabilitation, and employment of individuals with disabilities. This law extends inclusion beyond education, recognising these citizens as valuable contributors to the Kingdom's economic development.

To facilitate employment opportunities, the government enforces a mandatory quota system. Following recent legislative amendments, private and public sector organisations employing 50 or more individuals are now required to allocate 4% of their workforce to qualified persons with disabilities, a significant increase from the previous 2%. Beyond securing employment, the law safeguards the quality of the work environment, ensuring employees are entitled to two hours of paid daily rest and receive equal pay and benefits. The Social Insurance Organization (SIO) also provides specialised retirement provisions, acknowledging that certain conditions may impact long-term career viability.

This legal framework is further supported by the Ministry of Social Development, which oversees vocational training programmes designed to align the skills of individuals with disabilities with the demands of the labour market. By embedding these rights and initiatives within the National Strategy for Persons with Disabilities, Bahrain reinforces workplace inclusion as a fundamental aspect of its national vision, fostering an environment where professional merit is valued above physical or intellectual challenges.

Hill Clings to Lead as Bahrain Championship Heads for Final-Day Decider

Hussain Maskati
TDT | Manama

Scotland's Calum Hill held his nerve during yesterday's third round at the BAPCO Energies Bahrain Championship, maintaining a slim advantage at the top of the leaderboard as the tournament moves to its decisive stage today.

Hill signed for a level-par 72 at Royal Golf Club to remain 16 under par, a contrast to the brilliance of his earlier rounds but a score that underlined his growing maturity in contention. While momentum briefly swung away from him early in the round, the Scot steadied himself on a demanding setup that tested patience as much as precision.

"I actually felt like I played quite nicely," Hill said. "I just had a few errors in there and misjudged a couple of putts early on that put me behind a little bit. I managed to come back on the back nine and put myself in a good position."

With pins tucked and subtle winds complicating approaches, Hill acknowledged it was not a day for chasing numbers. "Honestly, it was really tricky on and around the greens. It didn't feel like a day where, personally, I could shoot really low," he added, noting that simply regaining level par by the end of the round felt like a small victory in itself.

Germany's Freddy Schott

Callum Hill watches his shot settle ensured the pressure remains firmly on the leader after closing the gap to two shots. Schott carded a steady two-under-par 70 to move to 14 under overall, briefly drawing level with Hill early in the round as the Scot found his rhythm.

"I didn't think about it too much being four shots behind," Schott said. "I just thought it might be a two-day thing. All of a sudden, we were there together." Despite a late three-putt on the final green, the German remained upbeat, adding: "It was a good day. We'll just keep doing what we're doing."

Behind the leading pair, the chasing pack tightened considerably. Patrick Reed surged into contention with one of the standout performances of the day, firing a six-under-par 66 to reach 12 under. The American, fresh from victory at last week's Hero Dubai Desert Classic, suddenly looks a serious factor once again.

Sharing third place with Reed is Spain's Sergio Garcia, who continued his upward trajectory with a four-under round that reflected improving confidence in his game. "Today I played better than yesterday," Garcia said. "I felt like I hit the ball better, got off to a nice start, and in the middle of the round I started getting hot." Although several putts refused to drop late on, the former Masters champion left the course encouraged by his progress.

Scotland's Grant Forrest also remains firmly in the mix at 12 under after a five-under effort, further underlining the depth of contention heading into the closing chapter. With defending champion Laurie Canter drifting down the standings and 2024 winner Dylan Frittelli already eliminated earlier in the week, the championship is guaranteed to produce a new winner. Hill, however, remains calm about the task ahead.

"If at the start of the week you said I'd have a couple of shots going into Sunday, I'd be delighted," he said. "I'm in control of what happens. If I play half-decent, I give myself a good chance."

Held under the patronage of HM King Hamad bin Isa Al Khalifa, the championship has continued to draw strong crowds, with spectators once again filling the Royal Golf Club and the Championship Village, adding to the sense that a memorable conclusion awaits in the Kingdom.

Ice-cool Rybakina beats Sabalenka in tense Australian Open final

Kazakhstan's Elena Rybakina (L) celebrates with the Daphne Akhurst Memorial Cup after her victory against Belarus' Aryna Sabalenka (R) during the women's singles final match on day fourteen of the Australian Open tennis tournament in Melbourne

AFP | Melbourne, Australia

Elena Rybakina took revenge over world number one Aryna Sabalenka to win a nail-biting Australian Open final on Saturday and clinch her second Grand Slam title.

The big-serving Kazakh fifth seed held her nerve to pull through 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 at Rod Laver Arena in Melbourne in 2hrs 18mins.

It was payback after the Belarusian Sabalenka won the 2023 final between two of the hardest hitters in women's tennis. The ice-cool Rybakina, 26, who was born in Moscow, adds her Melbourne triumph to her Wimbledon win in 2022.

"Hard to find the words now," said Rybakina, and then addressed her beaten opponent to add: "I know it is tough, but I hope we play many more finals together."

Turning to some Kazakh fans in the crowd, she said:

Elena Rybakina is a Russian-born professional tennis player who represents Kazakhstan and became the first player from Kazakhstan to win a Grand Slam title when she captured the women's singles title at Wimbledon in 2022.

"Thank you so much to Kazakhstan. I felt the support from that corner a lot."

It was more disappointment in a major final for Sabalenka, who won the US Open last year for the second time but lost the French Open and Melbourne title deciders. She was into her fourth Australian Open final in a row and had been imperious until now, with tears in her eyes at the end.

against Australia.

This was enough for Pakistan's spin quintet who shared all ten wickets between them with Abrar Ahmed returning the best figures of 3-14 and Shadab Khan finishing with 3-26.

Australia were routed for 108 in 15.4 overs, giving Pakistan their biggest T20I victory over Australia eclipsing the 66-run win in Abu Dhabi in 2018.

Arsenal thrash Leeds to stretch Premier League advantage

Leeds, United Kingdom

Arsenal settled any fears of a wobble in their pursuit of a first Premier League title in 22 years by winning 4-0 at Leeds on Saturday.

The Gunners' advantage over Manchester City and Aston Villa, who are both in action on Sunday, stretches to seven points as Mikel Arteta's men took another step towards the title at Elland Road.

A first home defeat of the season last weekend to Manchester United capped a run of just two points from a possible nine in Arsenal's previous three league games.

After finishing runners-up for the past three seasons, questions were raised over the mentality of Arteta's men to get over the line in a title race.

The visitors were dealt another blow before kick-off as Bukayo Saka was injured in the warm-up.

But his replacement Noni Madueke played a major part in inflicting just a second defeat in 12 games on Leeds.

Madueke's cross was headed in by Martin Zubimendi to open the scoring.

Leeds goalkeeper Karl Darlow could then only parry another dangerous delivery from the England winger into his own goal before half-time.

Despite a fine run of form, Leeds remain only six points above the relegation zone.

Their first defeat at home since November was confirmed when the much-criticised Viktor Gyokeres latched onto Gabriel Martinelli's cross to blast in his 11th goal since joining Arsenal from Sporting Lisbon.

Gabriel Jesus came off the bench to round off the scoring with a blistering strike four minutes from time.

Arsenal will be hoping local rivals Tottenham can do them a favour when City visit north London, while Villa host Brentford on Sunday.

Chelsea can climb into the top four later should they maintain their bright start under Liam Rosenior against West Ham at Stamford Bridge.

Liverpool are aiming to ease the pressure on Arne Slot at Anfield in Saturday's late kickoff when they host Newcastle.

Everton snatched a 1-1 draw at Brighton thanks to Beto's 97th-minute equaliser in a result that does little for either side's aspirations of European football next season.

Pascal Gross' first goal since returning to the Seagulls from Borussia Dortmund put Brighton in front.

Bournemouth ended any remaining worries of being dragged into a relegation fight as goals from Eli Kroupi and Alex Scott earned a 2-0 win at bottom-of-the-table Wolves.

The Cherries climb up to 12th and 13 points clear of the relegation zone.
