Billie Eilish prioritises 'seeing sunlight'

Celebretainment | Los Angeles

Billie Eilish has made "seeing sunlight" a "priority" while she's on tour.

The 20-year-old singer is currently on the European leg of her 'Happier Than Ever' concert series and she and her family - who always travel with her - ensure they find the time wherever she is performing to get out to a local park and play some games as she's previously spent days not seeing any daylight because of her busy schedule.

Appearing on 'The Late Late Show', host James Corden asked: "Do you get to do any sight-seeing when you travel with your family?"

She replied: "You know, we've made it such a priority actually, back before COVID when I was touring, doing crazy like amounts and press all day and this and that. I would like not see sunlight for like days and days.

"Because it's super easy. You go to sleep on the bus at night in a basement of a venue, you drive all night long, you wake up in another basement. ...It really gets you. Even a couple of months ago, I didn't see sunlight for three days.

"And so for this tour, this European run we're on right now that's almost over, which has been so amazing and beautiful. We've made it like a huge deal to prioritize going out and seeing sunlight, and like getting food and going to the park. We play Frisbee in the park like most days. So, it's good, it's good."

Julia Roberts, George Clooney reunite for romantic comedy

ANI | Washington

Two of the biggest stars of Hollywood, Julia Roberts and George Clooney have reunited yet again for a romantic comedy titled 'Ticket to Paradise'.

According to the Hollywood Reporter, the trailer of the movie follows the story of Roberts and Clooney playing the roles of a divorced couple who reunite for a trip to Bali in order to stop their lovestruck daughter, played by Kaitlyn Dever from marrying a man she met just a few days ago and sacrificing her career in the process. The exes want their daughter not to make the same mistake they made 25 years ago.

The 'Eat, Pray, Love' actor, Roberts took to Instagram, sharing the trailer of the film which portrayed her and Clooney as overprotective parents who attempt to trick their daughter so that she dumps her fiancé. The 2-minute 37-second video is a total fun fest.

"Buckle up" captioned Roberts on Instagram.

Helmed by 'Mama Mia! Here We Go Again' director Ol Parker, 'Tickets to Paradise' is co-written by Parker and Daniel Pipski, reported The Hollywood Reporter. Billie Lourd, Amanda O'Dempsey, Lucas Bravo, and Rowan C h a p - man are some of the actors who also feature in the film.

In an interview with Deadline, Clooney revealed that the film allows the pair of Clooney and Roberts 'to be mean to each other' as compared to other rom-coms. It was in fact Clooney who booked his co-star Roberts to return to the genre of rom-coms.

"I haven't done a romantic comedy really since [1996's] One Fine Day. I've done some sort of snarky ones, you know, and in this one, Julia and I just get to be mean to each other in the funniest way... It's just really fun... Cast all the way around," said Clooney.

Roberts explained that people assumed that since she had not been performing in any romantic comedies for some time, it meant that she did not 'want to do one', reported The Hollywood Reporter. However, she admitted that there 'didn't exist' such a movie until 'Ol Parker wrote and directed' 'Tickets to Paradise'.

"People sometimes misconstrue the amount of time that's gone by that I haven't done a romantic comedy as my not wanting to do one.

If I had read something that I thought was that Notting Hill level of writing or My Best Friend's Wedding level of madcap fun, I would do it. They didn't exist until this movie that I just did that Ol Parker wrote and directed," confessed Roberts.

Machine Gun Kelly explains why he smashed a glass against his head

Fox | Los Angeles

Machine Gun Kelly has explained some of his bold actions.

The 32-year-old was just trying to get everybody's attention when he smashed a glass against his head during an appearance Tuesday night at Catch in New York City.

"You know when you clink a champagne glass with a fork to kind of get people's attention?" Kelly asked host Seth Meyers on "Late Night with Seth Meyers" Wednesday night, via Page Six.

"Yeah, I didn't have a fork. So I just clinked it on my head."

Machine Gun Kelly, known formally as Colson Baker, appeared at Catch after performing a sold-out show at Madison Square Garden.

"I feel like s---," Kelly told Meyers when the late-night host asked him how he was feeling.

"Well, I know you did a sold-out show at MSG last night.

Machine Gun Kelly

Congratulations," the host said. "But last time you were here, you had just done the VMAs. You had hurt your hand at the VMAs, and you hurt yourself again last night at MSG."

Kelly responded: "Yeah, I'm going to start having doctors around me every time I see Seth Meyers on my schedule."

Besides his recent sold-out MSG show, Kelly also released a documentary about his life on Hulu, "Life in Pink."

up about a suicidal moment he had following the death of his father in 2020.

"I flew to my dad's apartment to clear all this stuff out," he recalled. "I had this really weird interaction with this neighbour who told me all these things I didn't want to hear. That f--- me up even more because I couldn't get closure on it. I wouldn't leave my room and I started getting really, really, really dark.

Madonna 'scared for daughters'

Celebretainment | Los Angeles

Madonna is "scared for [her] daughters" following the overturning of Roe v. Wade.

The 63-year-old singer-who has Lourdes, 25, Rocco, 21, David and Mercy, both 16, and nine-year-old twins Stella and Estere - has been "plunged into deep despair" by the Supreme Court's decision, which will allow several US states to move forward with legislation to ban or restrict abortion, and called on women to "fight" against the move. She wrote on Instagram: "I want to say that I had a great time at the party after my Show for Pride at terminal 5, but I woke up to the terrifying news that Roe V Wade had been overturned and that. Legislation has decided that we no longer have rights as women over our bodies.
