Pete Davidson hated ‘invasiveness’ around his personal life

Bang Showbiz | Los Angeles

Pete Davidson hated his personal life overshadowing his comedy career. The 32-year-old actor shot to stardom on Saturday Night Live, the long-running TV comedy show, but Pete ultimately became more famous for his love life than for his on-screen antics. The comedian - who has previously dated the likes of Kim Kardashian, Ariana Grande, Kate Beckinsale, Margaret Qualley, Kaia Gerber, and Phoebe Dynevor - told Variety: “I was part of the problem of what I hated the most, which was the invasiveness around my personal life. I was just lobbing it up and continuing the narrative.” Pete became determined to change the narrative after turning 30. The actor said: “When I turned 30 and I was there, it was a real low point. Nothing much was going on with my career and I was like, ‘This sucks. I can’t do it anymore.’ And it can’t be for anyone or for a job. You really have to want it, and when you’re done, you’re done.” Despite this, Pete admitted to having a “cool” relationship with Ariana, his ex-fiancee. He said: “I think Ariana’s cool and immensely talented.”

ed and an awesome girl. We’re not texting or whatever, but we’re cool.” Meanwhile, Pete previously revealed that he’s found the focus on his personal life to be “traumatic”. The comedian has dated a host of famous women over the years, but Pete felt frustrated that people often knew him for his high-profile love life, rather than his comedy talent. The movie star - who has daughter Scottie, ten months, with ex-partner Elsie Hewitt - said on The Breakfast Club: “It just got to a point where I was ... I got really tired of my whole career just being like my personal life. And living through that is it’s sort of traumatic. Like not to be like lame, but like it’s traumatic to live in your own crap all the time.”

Anne Hathaway reflects on ‘amazing journey’ in 2026

Bang Showbiz | Los Angeles

Anne Hathaway has been on “an amazing journey” in 2026. The 43-year-old actress announced her pregnancy in June, and has also starred in a number of big-budget movies this year, including Mother Mary, The Devil Wears Prada 2, The Odyssey, The End of Oak Street, and Verity. The movie star told Extra: “An amazing thing to realise is you can do so many things while completely exhausted. “It’s just such an amazing journey where you discover what you’re made of, you know, and because it’s not just, like, depleting yourself in the name of something else. You actually get fed at the same time with so much joy and so much love.” Anne feels grateful for where she’s currently at in her life and in her career. The acclaimed actress - who already has Jonathan, ten, and Jack, six, with husband Adam Shulman - said: “You do find yourself expanding. You find your patience expanding. You find your grace expanding for yourself, for others, and there’s just no way it hasn’t impacted and improved my life.” Asked how her third pregnancy differs from the other two, Anne shared: “We’re feeling a cultural shift where there’s more awareness there. There’s less, like, the stuff that happens behind closed doors and maybe just more, ‘This is something

Kanye West’s Russian concerts have been cancelled, organisers say

AFP | Moscow

US rap star Kanye West’s two planned concerts in Russia have been cancelled, organisers said Wednesday, less than two months after their surprise announcement triggered a frenzy of media attention and excitement among Russians. The organisers did not give a reason for the cancellation. West, who goes by the stage name “Ye”, had been barred from several European countries over past antisemitic comments. The Saint Petersburg venue that was originally scheduled to host the shows backed out days after tickets went on sale, sparking weeks of uncertainty about whether they would go ahead. “Friends, it is with sincere regret that we announce that the YE concerts in Saint Petersburg cannot take place on the scheduled dates,” Moscow-based events organiser Say Agency said in a statement. “We will publish details regarding the refund terms and conditions shortly,” it added. The Grammy-award winning rapper would have been the biggest Western musician to headline in Russia since Moscow launched its Ukraine offensive in 2022. Several Russian officials welcomed the planned shows, while others expressed concerns about the rapper’s past comments glorifying Nazi Germany, a sensitive issue in Russia.

Sylvester Stallone leans on his daughters for advice

Sylvester Stallone turns to his daughters for advice. The 80-year-old actor has enjoyed huge success in Hollywood, but his daughter Scarlet didn’t need any guidance when she appeared alongside Stallone in Tulsa King, his TV crime-drama series. Speaking at New York 92nd Street Y, Stallone shared: “She gave me advice actually. She’s very like, daddy’s girl. “You feel so protective, obviously, right? And you, you are constantly. So now I don’t suggest anything. She’s really grown up.” Stallone - who has Sophia, 30, Sistine, 28, and Scarlet, 24, with wife Jennifer Flavin - believes his daughter “knew more” than he did. The movie star also observed that his daughters have had a “very cinematic upbringing”. Stallone - who also has Searthis old, cranky guy, and they’re right there. I can’t even tell you how excited and different she is, all of them, but they all have a very cinematic upbringing.” Meanwhile, Stallone previously claimed that he was determined to shoot a reality TV show while he’s “still relevant”.

Andrew Garfield ‘froze and folded’ during ‘dream’ Woody Harrelson interaction

Bang Showbiz | Los Angeles

Andrew Garfield “froze and folded” when he got on the basketball court with Woody Harrelson. The Uprising actor was “so excited” to show off his skills against the star of sports movie White Men Can’t Jump, but his nerves got the better of him and he struggled to keep his composure. Speaking to Amy Poehler on her Good Hang podcast, he said: “I was playing with Woody, who I love, and I’ve been a fan of forever. And White Men Can’t Jump is one of those all-time great movies. And it’s just one of my all-time favourite performances. “I was so excited to play with him. And then as soon as we got on the court, I just froze. “I was like the seven year old at the party that just wants to go home. I was just so scared. I folded. I fully froze and folded.” The 43-year-old star eventually pulled himself together enough to join in with the game, but he wasn’t happy with his performance on court. He said: “I played really badly. And I just want to apologise to everyone at that game. I love Woody so much, and I’d been wanting to play with him [for] so long, and it was finally our time.” By contrast, Woody, 65, proved to still have what it takes in the game. Andrew said: “He still plays great. He’s taking really good care of himself. But he’s fiercely competitive. And I love it. I absolutely love it.” Elsewhere in the interview, Andrew heaped praise on his Amazing Spider-Man co-star Sally Field, describing the 79-year-old actress as a “legend”.
