collaboration with Great Britain during talks held at the Royal Windsor Horse Show's Endurance race at Bahrain's pavilion in Windsor Great Park.

His Royal Highness attended the Royal Windsor Horse Show, one of the oldest and most important races in the world of equestrian sport, on behalf of His Majesty King Hamad bin Isa Al Khalifa. Also present at the meeting was His Highness Shaikh Nasser bin Hamad Al Khalifa, the Representative of His Majesty the King for Humanitarian Works and Youth Affairs, and Captain of the Royal Endurance Team. His Royal Highness reaffirmed the Kingdom's dedication to enhancing collaboration across various sectors between the two nations, particularly within horseracing and equestrianism. HRH further commended His Highness Shaikh Nasser and his children for their participation, extending best wishes for success in promoting Bahrain on the global stage of endurance races.

Highlighting Bahraini jockeys' participation in international championships alongside top racehorse jockeys, The Crown Prince and Prime Minister emphasised the opportunity to showcase the Kingdom's talents and expertise in this sport. He also underscored ongoing efforts in developing the horse racing and equestrian sector, integral to Bahrain's cultural heritage.

HM King condolences with UAE President

His Majesty King Hamad bin Isa Al Khalifa met with His Highness Sheikh Mohammed bin Zayed Al Nahyan, President of the United Arab Emirates, at Al Mushrif Palace in Abu Dhabi, to offer his condolences following the passing of Sheikh Tahnoun bin Mohammed Al Nahyan, Abu Dhabi Ruler's Representative in Al Ain Region.

HM the King recounted the achievements and efforts of Sheikh Tahnoun, and his contributions to the UAE and its people.

HH the President of the UAE and HH the Vice President and Prime Minister of the UAE and Ruler of Dubai, as well as the sons of the late Sheikh Tahnoun, expressed their gratitude to HM King Hamad for his condolences.

On his arrival in the UAE, HM King Hamad had been received by His Highness Sheikh Saif bin Zayed Al Nahyan, Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Interior of the UAE, as well as the ambassadors of the two countries.

HM the King was bid farewell by the Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Interior of the UAE.

Fighting layoffs

Labour Ministry committee to address layoffs due to partial or complete closures

TDT | Manama

Losing jobs can indeed be a daunting experience for anyone, amidst economic challenges.

However, it's during these challenging times that new opportunities often emerge, waiting to be discovered.

This sentiment is echoed in the Kingdom, where Minister of Labour, Jameel Humaidan, is spearheading efforts to tackle this issue.

The ministry has disclosed the formation of a committee tasked with studying layoffs, aiming to avoid job losses by exploring all possible alternatives.

The committee, as explained by the minister, will delve into the reasons behind workforce reductions, including partial or complete closures.

Their approach involves engaging with company owners to identify and implement alternatives to job cuts or closures.

These solutions may range from offering voluntary retirement to providing wage subsidies aimed at retaining Bahraini employees.

The minister's responses came during a parliamentary inquiry by Shura Council member Khalid Al Maskati, highlighting the ministry's commitment to finding solutions beneficial to both employees and employers alike.

How it works?

First, the committee will study the requests received for workforce reductions, which may arise due to reasons including partial or complete closures.

Next, they will convene meetings with company owners to explore all possible alternatives to avoid job cuts or closures.

Potential solutions will be thoroughly explored at this stage, taking into account the nature of the company.

These solutions may entail offering laid-off employees positions in other departments or branches within the same company, or facilitating their transfer to similar businesses.

The solutions

Offering early retirement to eligible Bahraini employees as an alternative to layoffs, along with providing wage subsidies to companies to retain national workers, are some of the suggestions that will be put forward.

It's worth noting that the ministry has previously succeeded in preventing or reducing layoffs through these measures.

"It was accomplished without compromising the interests of the businesses involved," the minister explained.

What if unavoidable?

However, if layoffs become unavoidable, Humaidan assured that Bahraini workers will be ensured all rights and necessary compensation as per Articles 110 and 111 of the Labour Law in the Private Sector.

Furthermore, the ministry will guarantee the payment of unemployment benefits at a rate of 60% of the insured worker's salary for a period of nine months, with a maximum of 1,000 Bahraini dinars.

Priority for reintegration

The minister revealed the existence of a specialised employment team dedicated to monitoring the reemployment of laid-off Bahraini workers.

Humaidan emphasised that this team would play a pivotal role in facilitating the reintegration of these workers into the labour market. Their duties will include recommending suitable job opportunities based on the workers' experience, as well as referring them to training courses aimed at enhancing their skill sets and improving their chances of securing new employment opportunities.

Hamas says Israeli PM trying to derail Gaza truce deal

AFP | Palestinian Territories

A top Hamas official accused Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu yesterday of trying to derail a proposed Gaza truce and hostage release deal with his threats to keep fighting the Palestinian group.

"Netanyahu was the obstructionist of all previous rounds of dialogue... and it is clear that he still is," senior Hamas official Hossam Badran told AFP by telephone.

'Slightly' more food available in Gaza but famine still looms: WHO

AFP | Geneva, CHE

The availability of food in the Gaza Strip has very slightly improved, though the risk of famine in the besieged Palestinian territory remains, the World Health Organization said yesterday.

"There's a bit more food," Rik Peeperkorn, the WHO representative in the Palestinian territories, told a press briefing in Geneva via video-link from Jerusalem. Compared to a few months ago, "definitely there is more basic food, more wheat, but also a little bit more diversified food on the market", he said.

From campus to career

Labour Minister charts path to workforce readiness in Bahrain

● Extensive partnerships with educational institutions to equip graduates with skills needed for the evolving job market

● Prioritizes securing jobs aligned with graduates' expertise and market demand

TDI | Manama

Ensuring jobs for graduates is a priority for Labour Ministry, according to Jameel Humaidan, the Labour Minister.

Not just any jobs. But that would meet their expertise and demand.

For this, the minister said they are partnering closely with educational institutions.

Their goal? To ensure that graduates step into the workforce fully equipped to tackle its demands head-on.

This proactive approach was outlined by the minister as he addressed a parliamentary query. Regular updates flow from the ministry's databases and the Labour Market Regulatory Authority (LMRA), offering insights into the most sought-after specialisations and occupations. They're not just identifying needs; they're pinpointing areas where Bahraini talent is under-utilised.

Shura Council member Hani Al Saati queried the ministry on their strategies for meeting job market demands.

In response, Humaidan shed light on their extensive collaborations with key players like the Higher Education Council, Ministry of Education, University of Bahrain, and Bahrain Polytechnic. It's a comprehensive network ensuring that graduates are tailor-made for the workforce's evolving needs.

The ministry said they are actively bridging the gap between education and employment for new school graduates. By teaming up with the Ministry of Education, they're integrating these graduates seamlessly into vocational education and training programmes. It's about presenting them with viable options, equipping them with essential skills, and opening doors to lucrative career paths.

Steering students toward success doesn't end there. The ministry orchestrates career days at universities, guiding students toward the skills and occupations in high demand.

The Labour Ministry is collaborating closely with educational institutions in the Kingdom to ensure that graduates are well-prepared to meet the demands of the job market, said Jameel Humaidan, the Labour Minister.

The ministry, in collaboration with its partners, is also putting the finishing touches on the Professional Levels and Standards Project. This ambitious endeavour aims to streamline professional licensing and regulate occupational practices, setting industry benchmarks and safeguarding standards.

Yet, amidst these strides, Humaidan said he is acutely aware of the disconnect between academic expertise and industry needs.

He highlighted that the ministry is actively seeking solutions for specialisations encountering challenges in their integration into the workforce. It's a challenge they're tackling head-on,

Shaikh Ali bin Abdulrahman Al Khalifa, Ambassador of Bahrain to Saudi Arabia and the Permanent Representative of Bahrain to the Organisation of Islamic Cooperation (OIC), participated in the ministerial meeting at the 15th session of the Islamic Summit Conference, held in Gambia on May 2-3.

The meeting discussed various topics on the agenda, including the Palestinian cause and Al Quds Al Sharif, as well as the summit's final draft statement and the Banjul Draft Declaration.

The meeting also reviewed topics related to rejecting hate speech and Islamophobia, promoting dialogue, and issues of climate change and food security, which will be presented at the summit at the leadership level on May 4-5.

The summit is held under the theme "Enhancing unity and solidarity through dialogue for sustainable development".

Preserving Prestige: Shura members mull stripping National honours for serious offences safeguard the prestige of medals awarded by the Kingdom by establishing clear conditions for their revocation.

Highlighting a gap in the current Decree on Medals, the proposed law aims to address the absence of provisions for revoking medals. It underscores the importance of maintaining the value of these honours by outlining four distinct cases warranting the stripping of a medal: a guilty verdict for crimes impugning honour or trust, conduct contrary to loyalty to the Kingdom, breach of public office obligations, or actions diminishing the medal's dignity.

The committee emphasised that many Gulf and Arab laws have already regulated the awarding and revocation of medals, serving as a precedent for Bahrain to follow suit. By enacting this legislation, Bahrain aims to uphold the integrity of its honours, ensuring they are bestowed upon and retained by deserving individuals.

Man admits to impersonating sibling to dodge penalty; Court awards 6 months

TDT | Manama

When confronted by military officers for breaching a restricted area, this man coyly handed over the ID card of his brother to whom he had close resemblance.

However, during interrogation, he experienced remorse and confessed to impersonating his brother in a desperate attempt to evade punishment.

The High Criminal Court has sentenced the 36-year-old man to six months in prison for assuming his brother's identity.

The incident unfolded when the defendant, wanted by law enforcement, ventured into a restricted area. Alert military officers promptly approached him, demanding identification.

Sensing trouble, the defendant cunningly proffered his brother's driver's licence instead of his own. Swayed by the seemingly legitimate document, the officers escorted the defendant to the police station for further processing. However, it was during this time that the truth began to unravel. Before being formally apprehended, the defendant confessed to law enforcement that he had resorted to impersonating his brother in a desperate attempt to evade punishment.

As the case unfolded under the scrutiny of the Public Prosecution, the defendant openly admitted to the charges levied against him. Further exacerbating the situation, an expert report unveiled the extent of the defendant's deception, revealing tampering with his brother's ID card. Certain numbers and letters had been scraped off, while the photograph had been distorted to conceal its true features.

Consequently, the court ruled the defendant guilty of forgery and the use of a forged document.

In addition to the six-month prison term, he was also ordered to pay a fine as retribution for his actions.

Pharmacist turns unauthorised vet

Court fines BD1,000 for treating animals' sans licence

TDT | Manama

After selling veterinary medicines for a while, this man pondered why he shouldn't begin treating animals as well.

Enough was enough in the store and he decided it was time to help save animals' lives.

Consequently, he left from his job unnoticed and began practising as a veterinary doctor, albeit without the necessary license. This continued unchecked until a judicial officer from the Animal Health Department arrived at the man's pharmacy for an inspection.

When the official, during the inspection, inquired about the pharmacist, who was absent from the shop, a staff told: "He is no longer working with us."

The staff disclosed that the suspect left them in 2021 but had never informed the Animal Health Department, presumably to evade legal repercussions.

To the official's surprise, the staff also told him that he is now working as a veterinary doctor. "He is treating animals and prescribing medications," the staff disclosed.

Court records indicate that the suspect, a 43-year-old individual, lacked the qualifications to provide consultations and treatments, whether within or outside the confines of the pharmacy. His authorisation extended solely to the dispensing and sale of medications within the pharmacy premises.

Following an investigation, the suspect was apprehended and brought to trial. The Court imposed a fine of BD1,000 and no jail term.

However, the suspect challenged this fine at the appellate court, which upheld the fine, affirming the initial ruling.

Civil Defence and Coast Guard save three from boat fire near Shaikh Issa Bridge

Representative picture

TDT | Manama

In a dramatic rescue yesterday, Civil Defence, in collaboration with the Coast Guard, swooped in to save three individuals from a boat engulfed in flames near the Shaikh Issa Bridge in the marine area.

In a display of swift and coordinated action, the officers battled the raging fire aboard the vessel. Despite the dire circumstances with flames threatening to consume the boat and smoke obscuring the sky, the responders wasted no time in confronting the inferno head-on.

Amidst the chaos, the Coast Guard's vessels navigated skillfully through the waves, swiftly evacuating the occupants to safety on the nearby coast.

On land, the National Ambulance team was on standby, ready to provide immediate medical assistance upon the survivors' arrival. Miraculously, despite the harrowing ordeal, all individuals emerged unscathed, with their health conditions reported as stable.

Car mechanic escapes knife-wielding client, jumps from balcony; Court awards 3 years

TDT | Manama

Never even in his wildest dream, this car mechanic thought that his deal with the next client would escalate to such a terrifying extent, culminating in him having to leap from his balcony to save his life.

This chilling incident made headlines in the Kingdom, with the High Criminal Court sentencing the 34-year-old perpetrator—the car owner—to three years in jail.

Incidents leading to the crime began when the suspect scheduling an appointment with the mechanic to have his car repaired at the mechanic's garage.

After the repairs were completed as agreed upon, the mechanic notified the client.

Subsequently, the client requested that the vehicle be delivered to his apartment, to which the mechanic consented. However, upon arrival, the situation took a dark turn.

According to the mechanic's account to the police, the suspect refused to settle him and instead drove him first to purchase items and then to his apartment.

Once there, the mechanic recounted to the authorities, the suspect brandished a knife and coerced him into the apartment, falsely accusing him of theft from the car.

The suspect further threatened to harm him unless the mechanic surrendered his mobile phone.

"Fearing for my life, I did what he asked for," the mechanic told police, recalling the harrowing incident.

"After some time, I could hear him leaving, apparently to meet his friend.

"It was then I managed to squeeze myself into the balcony and jumped off.

"I was severely injured with my head bleeding profusely.

"Fortunately, a husband and wife staying in the nearby apartment came to me hearing my cries and allowed me to seek refuge in their apartment until the police arrived."

Upon their arrival, the police promptly transported the victim to a hospital and initiated an investigation, leading to the apprehension of the suspect. The case was subsequently referred to the public prosecution, culminating in the court's verdict.

The court found the man guilty of assault, theft, and illegal confinement, and ordered him to return the mobile phone forcibly taken from the victim.

EWA seeks legal firms to recover unpaid electricity bills

TDI | Manama

Beware! If you have outstanding electricity bills, as legal action may be on the horizon.

The Electricity and Water Authority (EWA) is moving forward with plans to engage legal firms to assist in the collection of arrears from subscribers. This initiative aims to recover unpaid electricity and water bills, as well as municipal fees owed by consumers.

The board has launched a tender, inviting interested bidders to participate. This move comes amidst efforts to streamline revenue collection processes and ensure the financial stability of the authority.

The scope of services includes the collection of arrears related to electricity and water bills, along with municipal fees. Legal experts are free to employ various methods, including litigation if necessary, to recover the owed amounts.

By leveraging the expertise of legal professionals, the EWA aims to optimize the collection process and expedite the recovery of outstanding dues. Interested law firms are encouraged to participate in the bidding process to secure the contract for providing legal services.

Successful firms will receive a four-year contract. Those interested are advised to submit their bids before the closing date of the 22nd of this month. Bids should be accompanied by a BD2500 bond with 180 days' validity. Alternate bids are not allowed. The initial bond should be in the form of a Certified Cheque, Bank Guarantee, Insurance Policy, or Cash (or as specified in the Tender Documents) valid for the specified duration.

Broken steel plate over manhole near Bahrain Pharmacy raises concerns

TDI | Manama

Viewer-submitted photos to The Daily Tribune yesterday revealed a concerning sight on a main road near Bahrain Pharmacy in Manama. The images, captured around 7:30 pm yesterday, depict a broken steel plate, posing a potential hazard to motorists and pedestrians alike. The steel plate, which appears to be a part of the road infrastructure, is visibly damaged, raising alarms about safety risks for commuters navigating the area. With its compromised state, the plate poses a threat not only to vehicles but also to individuals traversing the vicinity on foot.

Stay tuned for further updates as efforts to rectify the situation progress.

EWA unveils plan for new desalination plant in Hawar

Representative picture

TDI | Manama

The Electricity and Water Authority (EWA) is gearing up for a major infrastructure upgrade with the construction of a new seawater reverse osmosis desalination plant.

Dubbed the "New Hawar SWRO Desalination Plant," this project aims to bolster water production on Hawar Island, as detailed in a recently released tender.

Scheduled to be developed under an EPC Contract, this ambitious initiative seeks to enhance the water supply infrastructure along Bahrain's southeastern coast.

With a projected net water capacity (GNCWC) ranging from one to two million imperial gallons per day (MIGD) of potable water, the desalination plant promises to provide a reliable water source for the region.

In addition to the state-of-the-art desalination facility, the project includes the construction of two ground storage tanks (GSTs), each with a capacity of 1 MIG, as well as the installation of associated forwarding pumps. This comprehensive approach underscores the EWA's commitment to meeting the escalating water demands of Bahrain's residents and businesses.

The upcoming public international tender marks a significant milestone in Bahrain's efforts to modernise its water infrastructure and strengthen its resilience against water scarcity. The EWA invites qualified contractors and firms to participate in this transformative project, which is poised to enhance water security and promote sustainable development in the Kingdom.

Interested parties are encouraged to submit bids before the 24th of June 2024, accompanied by a BD5,000 bond with a validity period of 180 days. The successful bidder will be awarded a 12-month contract to execute the project.

Mangrove reforestation project on way to bolster coastal ecosystem

TDI | Manama

Bahrain is gearing up to fortify its coastal ecosystem and champion environmental sustainability through an ambitious mangrove reforestation endeavour. Spearheaded by the Ministry of Environment, Climate Affairs, and Urban Planning, this initiative seeks to breathe new life into coastal areas across the kingdom by planting mangrove trees sourced from the ministry's Tubli nursery.

Here's a breakdown of the project's key components:

Transporting mangrove saplings from the nursery to various coastal sites, ensuring meticulous planning and execution. This comprehensive process will entail providing essential tools, boats for seamless transportation, and skilled manpower to facilitate the safe and efficient transfer of the trees.

Upon reaching designated planting locations, each mangrove sapling will undergo careful planting by skilled personnel. Every tree will be meticulously tagged for identification, enabling effective monitoring and maintenance in the future. Additionally, the planting sites will undergo rigorous clearing to eliminate debris, invasive species, and pollutants, fostering an optimal environment for mangrove growth.

Before being transplanted into the sea, the mangrove saplings will undergo a crucial acclimatisation phase lasting at least two months. During this period, the trees will be irrigated exclusively with seawater, allowing them to adapt to their marine habitat before being introduced into the sea.

Special attention will be given to removing LD black bags from the trees to safeguard their roots. Interested parties are invited to submit their bids before the 26th of this month, accompanied by a BD2,500 bond valid for 180 days. The successful bidder will secure a 3-year contract.

US Fed official sees inflation cooling but possible risks

AFP | Washington, United States

US inflation is likely to cool further while interest rates remain at current levels, a senior central bank official said Friday, though adding that there are potential risks to this expectation.

"My baseline outlook continues to be that inflation will decline further with the policy rate held steady, but I still see a number of upside inflation risks," said Federal Reserve Governor Michelle Bowman in prepared remarks.

These factors include spillovers from regional conflicts which could snarl global supply chains and cause prices to rise.

Added fiscal stimulus could also fuel demand, she noted.

The Fed has held interest rates at a 23-year high in recent months, citing a lack of further progress in lowering inflation to its two percent target.

US Federal Reserve Governor Michelle Bowman

"In light of these risks, and the general uncertainty regarding the economic outlook, I will continue to watch the data closely as I assess the appropriate path of monetary policy," Bowman said in remarks to a convention in Florida.

For now, she said, the central bank's monetary policy stance "appears to be restrictive."

But she added that she is "willing to raise the federal funds rate at a future meeting should the incoming data indicate that progress on inflation has stalled or reversed."

On Wednesday, Fed Chair Jerome Powell said the bank is prepared to hold rates steady for as long as appropriate.

He noted that it is likely to take longer than previously expected for policymakers to gain more confidence that inflation is moving sustainably towards their target.

But he added that it is "unlikely that the next policy rate move will be a hike."

Airbnb promises to combat sex work in rentals during Paris Games

AFP | Paris, France

Airbnb yesterday agreed with French authorities to step up the fight against rentals on its platform being used for sex work during the Paris Olympics this summer and beyond.

The home rental platform signed a convention with MIPROF, a government organisation tasked with protecting women from violence, and fighting human trafficking, the French body said.

"Although such incidents are rare compared to the number of reservations, Airbnb commits, through this long-term collaboration, to supporting efforts made by the industry and the authorities to put an end to exploitation and human trafficking," the platform said in a

a view of the main entrance of the Georges Vallerey swimming pool, which is under renovation to serve as a training pool for Olympic and Paralympic athletes selected for the Paris 2024 Games, in Paris statement sent to AFP, saying it would pay close attention to the possible use of rented homes for sex work.

Among efforts to raise awareness among renters, Airbnb and MIPROF said they had compiled a "guide for the responsible traveller" to help them recognise signs of exploitation or human trafficking going on in the building or neighbourhood where they are staying.

MIPROF said it would dispatch teams to assist Airbnb, which in turn promised to strengthen its cooperation with police and the judiciary.

"This convention with Airbnb is major, given its central position in the tourism industry," MIPROF's secretary-general, Roxana Maracineanu, was quoted as saying in the statement.

Maracineanu, a former sports minister, had already warned at the end of last year that there was a "heightened risk" of human trafficking during the Olympics, and that the government needed to send a "clear and strong message" to traffickers.

Hotels were already vigilant concerning prostitution on their premises, she told AFP in December. She said the worry was "prostitution in homes, inside apartments".

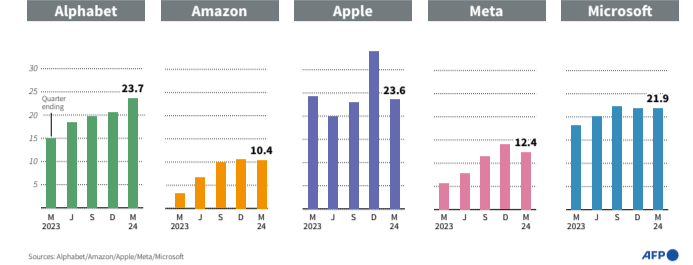

Police in several countries have identified a preference by sex workers and pimps for short-term rentals, including on Airbnb, because they offer more discretion than hotels.

Although prostitution remains legal in France, the purchase of sexual services was criminalised in 2016, allowing for the prosecution of clients. Pimping and brothels have been illegal for decades.

Apple profit ebbs as iPhone sales under pressure

● The iPhone maker reported a profit of $23.6 billion on $90.8 billion in revenue

AFP | San Francisco, US

Apple on Thursday said its quarterly profit ebbed but topped market forecasts as it announced an unprecedented $110 billion share buyback.

The iPhone maker reported a profit of $23.6 billion on $90.8 billion in revenue in the first three months of this year.

"Given our confidence in Apple's future and the value we see in our stock, our Board has authorized an additional $110 billion for share repurchases," chief financial officer Luca Maestri said in the earnings release. Shares were up nearly 6 percent to $183.20 in after-market trading, buoyed by the epic buyback programme.

Apple took in a record high amount from digital goods and services sold to fans of the iPhone-maker's gadgets, chief executive Tim Cook said in an earnings release.

As expected, iPhone sales dropped with pressure growing from China and increased competition from Huawei.

The Silicon Valley giant reported $45.7 billion in revenue from iPhone sales, its main money maker, versus $51.3 billion in the same period a year earlier, a ten percent drop.

Turkey says suspending all trade with Israel

AFP | Istanbul, Turkey

Turkey said Thursday it was suspending all trade with Israel until it allows aid to enter Gaza unhindered during its offensive against Hamas in the territory.

"Exports and imports to and from Israel have been suspended," the trade ministry said in a statement, adding: "Turkey will apply these new measures... until the Israeli government authorises an uninterrupted flow of humanitarian aid to Gaza."

Israeli Foreign Minister Israel Katz had earlier on Thursday accused Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan of breaking agreements between the two countries by blocking Israeli exports and imports.

The move is the latest incident degrading relations after Turkey, one of the few Muslim-majority nations to recognise Israel, restricted exports to the country in April.

Record gold prices take shine off London jewellers

AFP | London, United Kingdom

Surrounded by glass-fronted display cabinets filled with shimmering gold bracelets and necklaces at London's Pakeeza Jewellers store, manager Zahid Khan laments the impact of record-high prices of the precious metal.

"People are obviously buying not as much as before," Khan told AFP as his sales staff weighed gold necklaces and tapped into calculators, adding there had been a "big increase" in prices.

Pakeeza is located in east London's Green Street jewellery quarter, a popular destination among the Asian community, while nearby shops also sell traditional clothing like abayas and saris.

Gold products, also including rings and other trinkets, are a traditional gift for births, weddings and other family celebrations, because the precious metal is regarded as an inflation-proof investment that will stand the test of time.

Yet the recent spike in gold prices -- driven by haven demand amid geopolitical tensions, and the prospect of US interest rate cuts which weighs on the dollar -- has impacted the jewellery market.

Shock to system

"When you see rapid jumps in gold and things like that, yes, there's a shock to the system," said Vikram Santilal, owner of Jeram Jewellers.

"So the quantity has gone down but budgets have gone up," he told AFP.

A few years ago, customers could buy 200 grams (seven ounces) of gold for £2,000 ($2,500) -- but now they buy only 100 grams and it will cost between £6,000 and £8,000.

"The high prices kind of deterred me from buying, and I have been saving quite a while," said customer Mariam Lunat, 57, who had just purchased gold bangles that she will give to her daughters as wedding gifts.

"I bought less quantity. Yes, I would have liked to buy... two each, but I've only bought one each."

The gold price has jumped 13 percent since the start of 2024 and in mid-April it set a record of $2,431.52 per ounce, which equates to about 30 grams.

For jewellers, the worst aspect is price volatility because customers track the market and wait for prices to drop before they go shopping.

Price knowledge

Khan added that most Green Street jewellers are "working daily" to calculate their own product prices based upon the morning gold-price fix published by industry body the London Bullion Market Association.

This pricing system is essential to the global trade of jewellery, particularly in the world's two biggest markets: China and India.

"It's quite normal for an average Asian family to know what the gold price is today... It's like finding out how much is a litre of petrol," explained Santilal at Jeram Jewellers.

"Everybody knows that, because if you've got a car, you know what a litre goes for. An average Asian family actually knows what the gold price is. So they'll discuss these things in social circles."

Total gold demand dropped five percent in the first quarter year-on-year as it became too expensive for some, according to data from the World Gold Council. Demand for jewellery declined two percent.

Green Street stores specialise in 22-carat gold products, giving each product a shiny distinctive golden hue.

This high concentration leaves jewellers exposed to daily fluctuations in the market of the precious commodity, which accounts for 75 percent of the retail price.

That is in marked contrast to classic luxury brands like Boucheron, Cartier and Van Cleef, where prestige has much more of an influence.

Hidden gem

Green Street's clientele mostly comprise people whose families come from Afghanistan, Bangladesh, India and Pakistan, as well as nations in the Middle East.

PureJewels, another shop on Green Street, specialises in more top-end products that have relatively high design and manufacturing costs.

Boss Jayant Raniga tweaks his prices each month because his brand of products are less exposed to the gold market.

"We were getting a bit worried in April when the price did hit that peak... but overall customers were appreciative of the stability we were providing as a brand.

"And it didn't really affect our overall volume."

"Green Street has become the destination shopping for customers who are wanting to do their wedding shopping of South Asian style," he told AFP, adding it was a "hidden gem" of the British capital.

The gold price has jumped 13 percent since the start of 2024 and in mid-April it set a record of $2,431.52 per ounce, which equates to about 30 grams.

News in brief

Germany yesterday blamed Russia for 'intolerable' cyber attack on members of the Social Democratic Party and warned there would be consequences. Foreign Minister Annalena Baerbock said a German federal government investigation into who was behind the 2023 cyber attack on the SPD had just concluded. "Today we can say unambiguously (that) we can attribute this cyber attack to a group called APT28, which is steered by the military intelligence service of Russia," she told a news conference during a visit to Australia.

Floods caused by torrential rainstorms killed four hikers in the Sulaimaniyah region of northern Iraq yesterday, local officials said. "Four members of a hiking team drowned because of heavy rains and flooding in Awassi village" in Qaradah district, local official Rouf Kamal said. Civil defence spokesperson Aram Ali confirmed the toll, and said eight other hikers survived the incident south of Sulaimaniyah, the autonomous Kurdistan region's second city. He said a weather warning had been issued on Thursday, with hikers in particular urged to avoid mountainous areas.

Police clear pro-Gaza sit-in at top Paris university. Police yesterday entered the Sciences Po university in Paris to remove dozens of students staging a pro-Gaza sit-in in the entrance hall, AFP journalists saw, as protests fired political debate about the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. Demonstrations have struck education institutions in several French cities in recent weeks, echoing the mass Gaza protests that have led to clashes in US universities. One protester at elite school Sciences Po, who identified himself as a representative of the students' Palestine Committee named Hicham, said university authorities had given the group 20 minutes to leave before the forcible evacuation because of "exams to be held from Monday".

Heatwave swells Asia's appetite for air-conditioning

AFP | Hong Kong

Forecasters suggest that higher temperatures and better wages could see the number of air-conditioning units in Southeast Asia jump from 40 million in 2017 to 300 million by 2040. That would stretch local electricity capacity, which is already struggling under current conditions. Myanmar is producing only about half the electricity it needs each day, with the junta blaming weak hydropower because of scant rains, low natural gas yields and attacks by its opponents on infrastructure. Thailand has seen record power demand in recent weeks, as people retreat indoors to cooled homes or businesses. Air-conditioning is already responsible for the emission of approximately one billion metric tons of carbon dioxide per year, according to the IEA, out of a total of 37 billion emitted worldwide. Still, cooling options like air-conditioning are a key way to protect human health, especially for those who are most vulnerable to the effects of extreme heat: children, the elderly and those with certain disabilities. Governor Eduardo Leite said Rio Grande do Sul was dealing record-breaking heatwave is broiling parts of Asia, helping drive surging demand for cooling options, including air-conditioning. Air exhaust units are a common feature of urban landscapes in many parts of Asia, clinging like limpets to towering apartment blocks in Hong Kong or tucked in a cross formation between the windows of a building in Cambodia. They offer relief from temperatures that have topped records in recent weeks, with many countries in the region hitting 40 degrees Celsius (104 Fahrenheit) or higher. Scientists have long warned that human-induced climate change will produce more frequent, longer and more intense heatwaves. Only 15 percent of homes in Southeast Asia have air-conditioning, according to a 2019 report by the International Energy Agency (IEA). But that figure obscures vast variations: ranging from around 80 percent installation in Singapore and Malaysia, to less than 10 percent in Indonesia and Vietnam, the IEA said.

US campus protests wane after crackdowns, Biden rebuke

Workers clean up the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA) campus after police evicted pro-Palestinian students

AFP | Washington

Pro-Palestinian protests that have rocked US campuses for weeks were more muted yesterday after a series of clashes with police, mass arrests and a stern White House directive to restore order. Police in Manhattan cleared an encampment at New York University after sunrise, with video posted to social media by an official showing protesters exiting their tents and dispersing when ordered by loudspeakers. The scene appeared relatively calm compared to crackdowns at other campuses around the country -- and some worldwide -- where protests over Israel's war in Gaza have multiplied in recent weeks. University administrators, who have tried to balance the right to protest and complaints of violence and hate speech, have increasingly called on police to clear out the protesters ahead of year-end exams and graduation ceremonies -- and some clashes with counter-protesters. More than 2,000 arrests have been made in the past two weeks across the United States, some during violent confrontations with police, giving rise to accusations of over-use of force. President Joe Biden, who has faced pressure from all political sides over the Israel-Hamas war, gave his first expansive remarks on the protests Thursday, saying that "order must prevail." "We are not an authoritarian nation where we silence people or squash dissent," Biden said in a televised statement from the White House.

Hamas accuses Netanyahu of sabotaging truce talks

Hamas official alleges Israeli PM's statements aimed at derailing negotiations for ceasefire

Hamas conducting internal dialogues before returning to Cairo talks

AFP | Gaza

Palestinian children ride their bicycles along a street devastated by Israeli bombardment in Gaza City

A senior Hamas official accused Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu yesterday of issuing statements intended to torpedo prospects for a truce in the nearly seven-month war in Gaza. Hossam Badran said that Hamas was in the process of conducting internal dialogues with its leadership and with allied groups before negotiators return to Cairo to continue negotiations towards a truce. "But he warned that Netanyahu's repeated statements insisting he will send troops into the territory's far southern city of Rafah were calculated to "thwart any possibility of concluding an agreement." "Netanyahu was the obstructionist in all previous rounds of dialogue and previous negotiations, and it is clear that he still is,"

he said in a telephone interview. "He is not interested in reaching an agreement, and therefore he says words in the media to thwart these current efforts." Mediators from Egypt, Qatar and the United States have proposed a deal that would halt fighting for 40 days and exchange Israeli hostages for potentially thousands of Palestinian prisoners, according to details released earlier by Britain. The outcome of the indirect negotiations has remained highly uncertain, with back and forth over the number of hostages that could be released, and profound differences over the scope of any agreement. Badran reiterated that Hamas's goal remains a lasting ceasefire and "a complete and comprehensive withdrawal of the occupation forces from the Gaza Strip". That aim is at odds with the stated position of Netanyahu, who has vowed the army will keep fighting Hamas, including in Rafah, where some 1.5 million civilians are sheltering in cramped conditions. But after months of stop-start negotiations, the head of Hamas's Qatar-based political bureau, Ismail Haniyeh, said Thursday that the group would "soon" send a delegation back to Egypt aiming for a deal that "realises the demands of our people". Haniyeh further said that Hamas was studying the latest proposal from Israel in a "positive spirit". Any deal reached would be the first since a one-week truce in November that saw 80 Israeli hostages exchanged for 240 Palestinian prisoners. Israel estimates that 129 hostages remain in Gaza. The Israeli military says 35 of them are dead. The Hamas attack on southern Israel that started the war resulted in the deaths of 1,170 people, mostly civilians, according to an AFP tally of Israeli official figures. Israel's retaliatory campaign against Hamas has killed more than 34,600 people in Gaza, mostly women and children, according to the Hamas-run territory's health ministry.

China to launch first probe to return samples from Moon's far side

AFP | Beijing

A guard stands watch near the launch platform for the Chang'e-6 lunar mission

China is set yesterday to launch a probe to collect samples from the far side of the Moon, a world first as Beijing pushes ahead with an ambitious programme that aims to send a crewed lunar mission by 2030. A rocket carrying the Chang'e-6 lunar probe is scheduled to blast off from the Wenchang Space Launch Center in southern China's Hainan province just before 5:30 pm (0930 GMT), officials have said. It is the latest leap for China's ambitious space programme, which Washington has warned is being used to mask military objectives and an effort to establish extraterrestrial dominance. The Chang'e-6 aims to collect around two kilograms of lunar samples from the far side of the Moon and bring them back to Earth for analysis. It is a technically complex 53-day mission that will also see it attempt an unprecedented launch from the side of the Moon that always faces away from Earth. "Chang'e-6 will collect samples from the far side of the Moon for the first time," Ge Ping, vice director of China's Lunar Exploration and Space Engineering Center, told journalists. The probe is set to land in the immense South Pole-Aitken Basin, one of the largest known impact craters in the solar system. Once there, it will scoop up lunar soil and rocks, and carry out other experiments in the landing zone.

It must then lift off from the Moon's surface and retrace its steps back home. Plans for China's "space dream" have been put into overdrive under President Xi Jinping. Beijing has ploughed huge resources into its space programme over the last decade, targeting a string of ambitious undertakings in an effort to close the gap with the two traditional space powers -- the United States and Russia. The country has notched several notable achievements, including building a space station called Tiangong, or "heavenly palace", to which it sent a fresh crew of three astronauts last month. Beijing has landed robotic rovers on Mars and the Moon, and made China only the third country to independently put humans in orbit.

Police say 20 killed in mountain bus accident in Pakistan

AFP | Khaplu

Rescuers respond after the bus accident

At least 20 people were killed yesterday when a bus plunged into a deep valley in Pakistan's mountainous northern region, police said. The driver lost control of the vehicle on a bend near the city of Chilas, in the Gilgit-Baltistan region, around dawn, falling into a rocky ravine where the River Indus flows. "The local Ulema (Muslim leader) announced the news of the accident from the loudspeaker of the mosque and urged the people to donate blood for the injured," Azmat Shah, a police official in the city told AFP. Road accidents with high fatalities are common in Pakistan, where safety measures are lax, driver training is poor and transport infrastructure often decrepit.

Myanmar junta bans men from applying to work abroad

Delivery riders sit and rest at a street restaurant during a heatwave in Yangon

AFP | Yangon

Myanmar's junta has suspended the issuing of permits for men to work abroad, it said, weeks after introducing a military conscription law that led to thousands trying to leave the country. The junta, which is struggling to crush widespread armed opposition to its rule, in February said it would enforce a law allowing it to call up all men to serve in the military for at least two years. The move sent thousands queuing for visas outside foreign embassies in Yangon and others crossing into neighbouring Thailand to escape the law, according to media reports. The labour ministry has "temporarily suspended" accepting applications from men who wish to work abroad, the ministry said in a statement posted by the junta's information team late Thursday.

Labour urges UK election after Tory losses

AFP | London

Poll workers work through the night counting ballots

Britain's Labour yesterday urged Prime Minister Rishi Sunak to call a general election after the opposition party made significant gains in English polls that included a seat in parliament. Labour leader Keir Starmer said the party's parliament seat win in Blackpool South in northwest England sent a clear message to Sunak, who has until late January next year to call and then hold a nationwide vote. "Blackpool speaks for the whole country in saying, 'We he said on a visit to congratulate the new MP there, Chris Webb. Labour, out of power since 2010 and trounced by Boris Johnson's Tories at the last general election in 2019, won the constituency with a 26-percent swing -- the third-largest margin from the Tories to Labour at a by-election since World War II. The win came as early results showed Labour were inflicting heavy losses on the Conservatives in local contests that took place across England on Thursday. Sunak conceded that it was "disappointing" to have lost dozens of councillors so far but said many results were still to be announced.

Seoul spy agency warns North Korea plotting attacks on embassies

AFP | Seoul

North Korea's leader Kim Jong Un (C) paying a visit to Kim Il Sung Military University in Pyongyang

South Korea's spy agency said yesterday that Pyongyang was plotting "terrorist" attacks targeting Seoul's officials and citizens overseas, with the foreign ministry raising the alert level for diplomatic missions in five countries. The National Intelligence Service said it had recently "detected numerous signs that North Korea is preparing for terrorist attacks against our embassy staff or citizens in various countries, (such as) China, Southeast Asia, and the Middle East". "North Korea has dispatched agents to these countries to expand surveillance of the South Korean embassies and is also engaging in specific activities such as searching for South Korean families, and even people tangentially linked to the incident. North Korean embassy officials may be submitting false reports blaming "external factors" for voluntary defections by their colleagues, in a bid to evade punishment, the NIS said. As a result, the North may be "plotting retaliation" against South Korean embassy staff on such pretenses, NIS added. On Thursday, South Korea's foreign ministry said it had raised its anti-terrorism alert status for five of its diplomatic missions -- embassies in Cambodia, Laos, Vietnam as well as its consulates in Russian port city Vladivostok and the Chinese city of Shenyang. Both Seoul and Pyongyang have embassies or consulates in all five locations. now seeking to avoid returning home after Pyongyang eased strict border controls. Pyongyang treats defections as a serious crime and is believed to hand harsh punishments to transgressors, their

Pro-Palestinian students camp out at Mexico's largest university

Activists gather in front of the rectory building of the Autonomous University of Mexico

AFP | Mexico City

Dozens of pro-Palestinian students from Mexico's largest university camped out Thursday in solidarity with similar protests that have swept colleges in the United States. Mounting flags and chanting "Long live free Palestine," the protesters set up tents in front of the National Autonomous University of Mexico's (UNAM) head office in Mexico City. The students called on the Mexican government to break diplomatic and commercial ties with Israel. "We are here to support Palestine, the people who are in Palestine, and the student camps in the United States," said Valentino Pino, a 19-year-old philosophy student. Jimena Rosas, 21, said she hoped the protest would have a domino effect and spread to other universities in the country. "Once people see that UNAM is beginning to mobilize, other universities should start as well," she said.

Arteta urges Arsenal to seize the moment in Premier League title race

Arsenal's Brazilian defender #06 Gabriel Magalhaes (C) celebrates with teammates at the end of the match against Tottenham Hotspur

AFP | London

Mikel Arteta has urged his Arsenal team to seize the moment with just three matches remaining as they battle to win their first Premier League title for 20 years.

The Gunners, hosting Bournemouth on Saturday, have 80 points -- one clear of defending champions Manchester City, who have the advantage of a game in hand.

Arsenal's match is the early kick-off, giving them the potential to put pressure on closest rivals City, who are at home to Wolves later in the day.

Arteta, speaking at his pre-match press conference yesterday, said the energy in his squad was "really good" after three straight wins, hailing their greater maturity after last season's collapse in the title run-in.

Arsenal led for the bulk of the 2022/23 campaign before stumbling badly as City won a third straight title.

"I think the team is more mature," said Arteta. "Obviously the health and condition of the squad is in a much better place right now and Arteta urged his players to embrace what is likely to be an electric atmosphere at the Emirates in the clash against mid-table Bournemouth.

"Just focus and put all your energy in finding that determination and willingness to do our best to earn the right to win games," he said.

"The first one is Bournemouth, it's at home, it's going to be an unbelievable atmosphere again towards the game. Be present and be in the moment and let's see what happens."

Debutant Tanzid powers Bangladesh win over Zimbabwe

Bangladesh 126 for 2 (Tanzid 67*, Towhid 33*) beat Zimbabwe 124 (Madande 43, Taskin 3-14, Saifuddin 3-15) by eight wickets

Debutant opening batsman Tanzid Hasan rode his luck yesterday to hit an unbeaten 67 and guide Bangladesh to an eight-wicket victory over Zimbabwe in the first T20 international in Chittagong.

The hosts raced to 126-2 in under 16 overs after bowling out Zimbabwe for 124, with Towhid Hridoy finishing unbeaten on 33.

Tanzid smashed eight fours and two sixes in his 47-ball maiden T20I, lofting Luke Jongwe over mid-off for a boundary to complete the match.

"Everyone played well today... but we can still learn from this game and come back well in the next match," said Bangladesh captain Najmul Hossain Shanto.

"Last couple of days, we trained very hard, and I hope that Tanzid continues his form."

A record stand by Clive Madande and Wellington Masakadza earlier helped Zimbabwe recover from an early collapse that left the tourists languishing on 41-7.

The pair put on 75 runs together for Zimbabwe's highest eighth-wicket partnership.

Taskin Ahmed bowled Madande for 43 off 39 balls to break the stand, but Masakadza (34) stayed at the crease until he was run out on the last ball of the innings.

Put into bat first, Zimbabwe lost Craig Ervine for a duck in the second over.

Hamilton backs Newey for Ferrari

Lewis Hamilton added fuel to the rumours over the future of departing Red Bull designer Adrian Newey saying on Thursday that he would be an "amazing addition" for his future team Ferrari.

Red Bull confirmed the 65-year-old Newey's impending exit in early 2025, after 19 years with the team.

Media reports have suggested that Ferrari would be among the favourites to snap up Newey, who is regarded as the greatest designer in the sport's history.

Hamilton, who will join Ferrari from Mercedes at the end of this season, told reporters at the Miami Grand Prix that he would like to see Newey join Ferrari.

"Very much...Adrian's got such a great history, track record, he's just done an amazing job through his career in engaging with teams and the knowledge that he has," he said.

"I think he would be an amazing addition," he added.

Hamilton declined to discuss if the prospect of Newey joining the Scuderia had been part of his contract negotiations.

But he said he would be thrilled to work personally with Newey.

"If I was to do a list of people that I'd love to work with, he would absolutely be at the top there," he said.

But Hamilton pushed back a little against the idea that Newey's exit would lead to a sudden decline for Red Bull.

"Racing against the team that he has been so heavily a part of for years has been a massive challenge but I think we need to remember that there are a lot of people in the background and it is not one person, it's a whole team who do the job, team would be fortunate to have the opportunity to work with him," he added.

'More than a designer'

Red Bull team have won six constructors' titles and seven drivers' titles, split between Sebastian Vettel and Max Verstappen, with Newey-designed cars to date.

They are on course to do the double again in 2024, with Dutch driver Verstappen the dominant force in the sport.

Adrian Newey is widely regarded as the greatest designer in Formula 1 history, with six constructors' titles and seven drivers' titles to his name

Newey, expected to be in Miami for this weekend's race, has also worked with championship-winning teams at Williams and McLaren in his long career.

Verstappen's Red Bull teammate Sergio Perez said he was sure that Newey would have a significant impact wherever he ends up in the sport.

"Adrian, with the experience he has, he has contributed a lot to the Red Bull philosophy so I assume he will cause an immediate impact wherever he goes or whatever he does," the Mexican said.

"He is a very clever guy and a very hard worker. Working with Adrian, he is much more than a designer, he can influence even strategies, set-up, he could have that influence on a race weekend.

"To have him around on race weekends was great. He is a very strong individual and wherever he goes he will cause an immediate impact. But it is a whole group of people that he will require to have around him as well," he added.

Perez, whose long-term future at Red Bull remains uncertain, said that he was sure the team would be able to cope with the departure of the influential designer.

"It is obviously not ideal, he has been tremendous to our team, to our organisation, and he is also a very good friend of mine from all the time we've spent together.

"But, at the end of the day, there are times in life when you spend 20 years at Red Bull I think he probably wants to do something else and that is fair.

"I think Red Bull is in a great place and it has a very strong organisation," he said.

"You've seen in the past at these big teams, big names when they leave they will always exist, it isn't down to one single individual. It is a whole organisation and I think Christian [Horner] has done a great job in preparing for the next generation of what is going to happen at Red Bull," he added.

Knicks edge 76ers, book NBA 2nd round clash with Pacers

AFP | Los Angeles

Jalen Brunson scored 41 points and the New York Knicks held on for a 118-115 victory over Philadelphia on Thursday, clinching a 4-2 series win to book an NBA play-offs second-round clash with the Indiana Pacers.

The Pacers powered into the Eastern Conference semi-finals with a convincing 120-98 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks that sealed their 4-2 series win.

It came down to the wire in Philadelphia, where Knicks forward Josh Hart, fed by Brunson, drilled a three-pointer to put New York up 114-111 with 25.6 seconds remaining.

Sixers star Joel Embiid cut the deficit to one with a driving layup seconds later but then fouled out and the Knicks polished it off with free throws

Brunson said that after failing to close out the 76ers at home in game five, the Knicks knew they needed a faster start in this one.

They led by 22 points in the first quarter, only to see the 76ers claw back to lead by three at halftime and push their advantage to as many as 10 in the third quarter.

Verstappen says Newey exit won't impact his future with Red Bull

AFP | Miami

Formula One world champion Max Verstappen has insisted that the exit of Red Bull's chief technical officer Adrian Newey won't cause him to reconsider his future with the world champions.

But while Dutchman Verstappen said he would have liked to see Newey stay, the three-time world champion cautioned against predictions of an automatic decline in fortunes for the team.

"From the outside it looks very dramatic, but I think if you actually know what is happening inside the team it's not as dramatic as it seems," he told reporters on Thursday at the Miami Grand Prix.

"I think over time, his role has changed a bit and I think a lot of people don't understand what he was actually doing.

"I'm not saying that he wasn't doing anything but his role has evolved. A lot of good people came into the team that has strengthened that whole department," Verstappen added.

"Of course, I would have preferred him to stay for sure because you can always rely on his experience. He's a good person, a great guy to chat to and relate to. He's very bright, very smart and he would talk to the driver and interpret that into the car, he would try to imagine himself driving," said Verstappen.

MAX VERSTAPPEN

"But I also really trust the technical team that we have, outside of Adrian, is very, very strong. They have basically shown that over the last few years with how competitive the car is," he added.

Verstappen brushed off rumours of a big money offer to him to leave for rivals Mercedes next season.

"At the end of the day, even if let's say that was the case, money is not going to be the differentiator for me to go somewhere," he said.

Leverkusen beat Roma to put one foot in Europa League final

AFP | Rome

Bayer Leverkusen have one foot in the Europa League final after winning 2-0 at Roma on Thursday to extend their remarkable unbeaten run to 47 matches.

Goals in each half from Florian Wirtz and Robert Andrich ensured victory for Xabi Alonso's men in the Italian capital and gave the Bundesliga champions a great chance of reaching the final in Dublin later this month.

Leverkusen will meet either Atalanta or Marseille in Ireland should they hold out in Germain 1988.

Alonso's team have needed a string of last gasp goals to keep their unbeaten run going in recent weeks but there was no need for any frantic finishes in the Italian capital as Leverkusen's superiority was fully on display.

"We had a lot of chances to score a third but they also had a good chance to cut the deficit right at the end. We're happy with the result," Alonso told reporters.

"We fought hard, played very well and were very disciplined. For us that means a lot but we still have a lot to do."

Roma face a huge task if they are to reach a third European final in as many years after barely troubling Matej Kovar's goal after Romelu Lukaku struck the woodwork early on.

But Daniele De Rossi's team would have had a lifeline had substitute Tammy Abraham not headed over in front of an open goal deep in stoppage time.

"We played against a good team and if you go behind against them it becomes very difficult," De Rossi told Sky. "We've managed to score early in games before and get things going our way. Let's say it was a bit different tonight."

Starc shows class as Kolkata triumph

Starc's four-wicket haul helps Kolkata Knight Riders secure victory over Mumbai Indians

AFP | Mumbai

Mitchell Starc picked up four wickets as a disciplined bowling performance helped Kolkata Knight Riders seal a 24-run victory over Mumbai Indians in the Indian Premier League yesterday.

Chasing a below-par 170, Mumbai lost wickets at regular intervals to be bowled out for 145 off 18.5 overs at the Wankhede Stadium.

This was Kolkata's first win at the Wankhede ground in 12 years and seventh from 10 games this season.

Mumbai slumped to ninth position in the 10-team compe-dition after their eighth loss in 11 games.

Kolkata are placed second and well poised to make it to the play-offs.

Mumbai were off to a shaky start, with Starc flattening the leg-stump of Ishan Kishan (13) and Varun Chakravarthy sending back Naman Dhir (11).

The home team got another big jolt when Rohit Sharma, who came in as an impact sub, miscued a shot to be caught off Sunil Narine for 11.

Rublev ousts Fritz to reach Madrid Open final

Russia's Andrey Rublev inaction against American Taylor Fritz

AFP | Madrid

Andrey Rublev reached the fifth Masters 1000 final of his career with a 6-4, 6-3 win over American Taylor Fritz at the Madrid Open yesterday.

The seventh-seeded Rublev arrived at the tournament carrying a four-match losing streak but rebounded in the Spanish capital, claiming five impressive wins, including one over world number three Carlos Alcaraz in the quarter-finals.

"For sure mentally I was feeling much better (this week) and I was able to perform, putting emotions in the right direction, for sure that helped me to be in the final," said Rublev.

After being broken in the opening game, Rublev recovered immediately and won the last seven points to wrap up the first set in 39 minutes.

A break of serve in the sixth game of the second set was enough for the Russian to complete a 72-minute victory and book a final clash with either Canada's Felix Auger-Aliassime or Czech Jiri Lehecka.

Postecoglou admits Spurs have 'lost belief' as top four bid fades

AFP | London

Ange Postecoglou admitted his Tottenham flops have "lost belief" after a dismal 2-0 defeat against Chelsea left their hopes of Champions League qualification in tatters.

Postecoglou's side needed a win at Stamford Bridge to close the gap on fourth-placed Aston Villa in the race to finish in the Premier League's top four.

But instead they slumped to a third successive loss after goals from Trevoh Chalobah and Nicolas Jackson fired Chelsea to victory over their London rivals.

Fifth-placed Tottenham are seven points behind Villa with four games left, while Unai Emery's men have three to play.

Australian said: "It wasn't good enough and I have to take responsibility for that, it is on me.

"I am the manager and I am the one putting them out there and it was not good enough.

Tottenham's issues with defending set-pieces were decisive again, leaving former Celtic boss Postecoglou to bemoan his side's collapse in the final weeks of his first season in charge.

"I feel like we've lost a bit of belief and conviction in our football and that is on me to change that," he said.

Alcaraz out of Italian Open with continuing forearm pain

AFP | Madrid

World number three Carlos Alcaraz yesterday withdrew from next week's ATP Italian Open due to ongoing pain in his right forearm, an injury that sidelined him in Monte Carlo and Barcelona.

The blow comes weeks away from the second Grand Slam of the season, the French Open.

"I felt some pain after playing in Madrid (he lost on Wednesday), some discomfort in my arm," the Spaniard wrote on X, formerly Twitter.

"Unfortunately, I will not be able to play in Rome. I need to rest so I can recover and play 100 percent pain free."
