Brad Pitt accuses Angelina Jolie of trying to damage his reputation in new court filing

Celebretainment | Los Angeles

Brad Pitt has accused Angelina Jolie of selling her stake in their winery to “intentionally damage” his reputation.

The former couple have been locked in a dispute after the ‘Maleficent’ actress sold off a share in their Chateau Miraval wine business to Tenute del Mondo, a subsidiary of Stoli Group, prompting her ex-husband to take legal action after claiming they had a “mutual and binding commitment” to never sell their part of the business without the other’s permission.

But according to court documents filed in Los Angeles this week and obtained by Daily-Mail.com, the 59-year-old actor

In her own counterclaim, Angelina Jolie accused Brad of trying to force her into selling to his Mondo Bongo company on “unreasonable terms” and launching a smear campaign that Shefler was “an ally of Vladimir Putin”

2021 announced he had new business partners.

The documents argued: “As will be demonstrated at trial, Jolie’s actions were unlawful, severely and intentionally damaging Pitt and unjustly enriching herself.”

In his revised complaint, the ‘Bullet Train’ actor insisted he had first refusal on his ex-wife’s share of the winery, which is situated in the South of France, and by selling to a company ultimately owned by Uri Shefler, Brad argued the brand became linked to Russia, its homophobic laws and the war against Ukraine, potentially tarnishing Chateau Miraval’s name.

The filing stated Angelina “initially recognised” she could either allow Brad to buy her out or they had to sell jointly, and agreed dividing the business up 68 to 38 percent in the ‘Fight Club’ star’s favour was fair because of his bigger investment.

But the documents added: “In the summer of 2021, amid a heated child custody dispute with Pitt, Jolie terminated those discussions and secretly purported to sell a 50% stake in the family home and family business to Tenute del Mondo.

“Tenute del Mondo is part of the Russia-affiliated spirits conglomerate Stoli Group, which is owned and controlled by billionaire Yuri Shefler. Shefler, who has been designated as an ‘oligarch in the Russian Federation’ by the U.S. Treasury Department, had previously sought to buy Miraval, and Pitt had turned him down.

Dwayne Johnson returns to the Fast and Furious franchise

Celebretainment | Los Angeles

Dwayne ‘The Rock’ Johnson is returning to the ‘Fast and Furious’ franchise.

The 51-year-old actor has confirmed that he’ll reprise the role of Luke Hobbs after ending his long-running feud with Vin Diesel.

The wrestler-turned-actor said on Twitter: “So I am 100 percent confirming to you guys around the world that yes, it is true. Hobbs is back. Hobbs is back in the ‘Fast and Furious’ franchise.”

Dwayne subsequently discussed his high-profile feud with Vin, 55.

The Hollywood star explained: “Despite having our differences, me and Vin, we’ve been like brothers for years. And despite having our differences ... when you lead with the idea of ... number one, resolve. But also, you just think about the future and you think about plans that are much bigger than ourselves. Those plans are the bigger build-outs.

“Those plans are the North Star. As I always like to say, the North Star is always my guiding light in whatever endeavour or opportunity that I’m in, that I’m passionate about. I always keep a North star in my clarity and in my focus.

“In this case, the North Star is the franchise that we love. The North Star are characters that we love. And the North Star are fans that we love. So, when you add all of that up, it’s really not a hard decision to make.”

Meanwhile, Vin previously admitted to taking a “tough love” approach with Dwayne in order to get the best out of him.

Tom Holland hints at shooting another Spider-Man movie

Celebretainment | Los Angeles

Tom Holland is eager to shoot another Spider-Man movie.

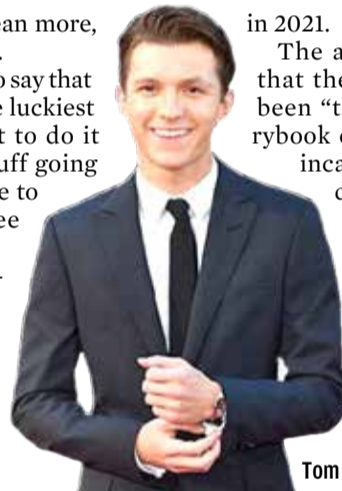

The 27-year-old actor has starred as the iconic character since 2016, and Tom has revealed that he’s keen to reprise the role in a new film.

Asked about the possibility of making another Spider-Man movie, Tom told ‘Entertainment Tonight’: “I think as long as we can do justice to Peter Parker. As long as we can keep elevating and making the films better and making them mean more, then I’ll be there.

“I’d be stupid to say that I wouldn’t be the luckiest kid alive if I got to do it again, there’s stuff going on, but we’ll have to just wait and see what happens.”

Tom previously admitted to being unsure about his future after starring in ‘Spider-Man: No Way Home’ in 2021.

The actor conceded that the film could’ve been “the perfect storybook ending” for his incarnation of Spider-Man.

Speaking about the future of the franchise, Tom told The Hollywood Reporter: “There are far cleverer people than me that have been given the task of writing future movies and coming up with new ideas. And as always, I’ll be very eager to see what they come up with.

“But maybe we don’t top this movie. Maybe this movie is the perfect storybook ending for this chapter of Spider-Man. And if it’s time for me to step down and for the new person to step up, I would do so proudly.”

Tom also revealed that he’s keen to “explore” new challenges.

Arnold Schwarzenegger credits meditation for supreme fitness

Celebretainment | Los Angeles

Arnold Schwarzenegger credits meditation for enhancing his mental and physical health.

The ‘Terminator’ legend has meditated on a daily basis since the 1970s and believes that the practice has been “very helpful” to his efforts to keep in shape.

Arnie, 75, told Tudum: “I started doing it back when I felt like too many things came together and I was overwhelmed and frantic. I realised that in meditation, you have to really focus on not thinking about anything. It helps you put the blinds on and not to see anything and not to pay attention to anything, except one thing at a time.”

Will Poulter had suicidal thoughts

Celebretainment | Los Angeles

Will Poulter has battled suicidal thoughts.

The ‘Guardians of the Galaxy Vol. 3’ actor admitted he “delayed” getting to know himself better and working on “not hating” himself after falling into the grip of depression and anxiety, and revealed he even considered taking his own life at his lowest point.

He told the new issue of HUNGER magazine: “I delayed confronting living with myself between roles and getting to know myself, making friends with my inner child and not hating myself.

“I actually felt incredibly lonely, having suicidal thoughts and dealing with depression and anxiety.”

The 30-year-old actor recently credited hitting the gym for helping him overcome his mental health issues.
