Alec Baldwin hits back at George Clooney's response to 'Rust' shooting

Fox | Los Angeles

In Alec Baldwin's first TV interview since the fatal "Rust" shooting, he addressed comments made by fellow actor George Clooney about gun safety on movie sets.

The 63-year-old actor told George Stephanopoulos that any outside comments made were not going to help the situation.

"How do you respond

to actors like George Clooney who say that every time they were handed a gun, they checked it themselves?" the news anchor asked.

"Well, there were a lot of people who felt it necessary to contribute some comment to the situation, which really didn't help the situation," Baldwin said. "At all... "If your protocol is you check the gun every time, well, good for you. I've probably handled weapons as

Baldwin explained that when he was a young actor a prop person told him not to manipulate a weapon before a scene much as any other actor in films with an average career. Again, shooting or being shot by someone," he continued.

"And in that time, I had a protocol and it never let me down."

Clooney said on the podcast "WTF with Marc Maron" that he always personally checks a weapon after someone hands it to him on a set.

Billie Eilish says 'tons of people' hate her now, but she feels less pressure than before

Fox | Los Angeles

Billie Eilish is opening up about how her life and career have changed since skyrocketing to fame.

Every year since 2016, the 19-year-old star has sat down with Vanity Fair for the same interview, answering the same series of questions and reacting to her previous answers.

In her latest version of the discussion, the star was once again asked about whether or not she feels pressure.

"I feel a lot of pressure, but I would also say that back then [in the earlier years of her career], I was more loved," said the singer. "I was pretty overall loved, I would say, to be honest. I was scared because I wanted to keep that love."

Since then, things have changed, as has her attitude.

"Now, like tons of people hate me so I'm not worried anymore," Eilish explained. "I'm like, 'Oh, OK, well, if you like me, you like me, if you don't, you don't.'"

Her past answers to the question were also highlighted during the video interview.

"Yep, but I don't care," she said previously. "I really don't care. It's the kind of pressure, like it hits me, and then I don't care."

Present-day Eilish admitted that she was "lying" during her previous answers, but did not elaborate on her feelings about pressure at the time.

After watching another answer from the past in which the "Happier Than Ever" musician implied she didn't feel pressure intensely, she said: "This is just me trying to convince myself that I didn't care."

Ana De Armas replaces Scarlett Johansson in Chris Evans starrer 'Ghosted'

ANI | Washington

A different kind of reteam is in store for 'Ghosted', the Apple Original Films romantic action-adventure film set to be helmed by Dexter Fletcher.

According to Deadline, Ana de Armas will reteam with her 'Knives Out' co-star Chris Evans in the film. Scarlett Johansson, Evans' oft-colaborator in the Marvel movies, has amicably exited the picture in what sources describe as a scheduling conflict.

The film was developed from a pitch by Skydance, with David Ellison, Dana Goldberg and Don Granger producing, along with Jules Daly. Evans will serve as producer and de Armas as an executive producer.

The film's writers, Rhett Reese and Paul Wernick will also be producers.

Apple acquired the high-profile project over the summer. It is described as a high concept romantic action-adventure film. The change comes because the intent is to get the picture into production by February, and the timing didn't work out for Johansson.

Ellison led the charge to bring in de Armas, who's about as hot an actor out there right now after 'Knives Out' and 'No Time to Die', and with the Adrian Lyne-directed 'Deep Water' upcoming with Ben Affleck.

She most recently starred with Evans and Ryan Gosling in the Joe and Anthony Russo-directed 'The Gray Man' for Netflix. She has also been in talks to play the lead in the John Wick spinoff 'Ballerina'.

Ana De Armas

Skydance is coming off the Chris Pratt-starrer 'The Tomorrow War', the Michael B. Jordan-starrer 'Without Remorse', and has set Victoria Mahoney to direct 'Old Guard 2'.
