Trump, Putin to hold Ukraine talks in 'coming days'

AFP | Moscow

The Kremlin said yesterday that a summit on Ukraine between US President Donald Trump and Russian counterpart Vladimir Putin was set for the "coming days" but Putin essentially ruled out including Ukraine's leader.

The Russian president named the UAE as a potential location for the summit, but this was not confirmed by Washington. President Volodymyr Zelensky insisted that he had to be involved in any talks.

The summit would be the first between sitting US and Russian presidents since Joe Biden met Putin in Geneva in June 2021.

Israeli strike in Lebanon kills five and injures 10

AFP | Beirut

Lebanon said an Israeli strike on the country's east yesterday killed at least five people, in the latest attack despite a November ceasefire in a war with Hezbollah.

"The Israeli strike on Masnaa Road resulted in a preliminary toll of five deaths and ten injuries," the Lebanese health ministry said in a statement.

The strike hit a vehicle in the area, near a border crossing with Syria.

The reported strike came as Lebanon's government was discussing Hezbollah's disarmament.

Third-hottest July

AFP | Paris

The third-hottest July worldwide ended a string of record-breaking temperatures, but many regions were devastated by extreme weather amplified by global warming, the European climate monitoring service said yesterday.

Heavy rains flooded Pakistan and northern China; Canada, Scotland and Greece struggled to tame wildfires intensified by persistent drought; and many nations in Asia and Scandinavia recorded new average highs for the month.

Two years after the hottest July on record, the recent streak of global temperature records is over.

Bahrain pushes proactive anti-trafficking model

Mahir Haneef
TDT | Manama

Bahrain has launched a new initiative to incentivise private companies to play a more active role in combating human trafficking, further expanding its rights-based labour ecosystem.

The Labour Market Regulatory Authority (LMRA) has introduced the 'Best Practices Award for Combating Trafficking in Persons in the Private Sector', a recognition scheme aimed at rewarding firms that demonstrate exceptional commitment to fair and safe labour environments.

The award was announced during the opening of the second edition of the Anti-Trafficking in Persons Forum, held under the theme 'The Role of the Private Sector in Addressing Trafficking in Persons'. The forum was attended by diplomats, members of the National Committee to Combat Trafficking in Persons, and senior government officials.

Rewarding Ethics

LMRA Chief Executive Officer and Chairman of the National Committee to Combat Trafficking in Persons, Nibras Mohammed Talib, said the initiative reflects Bahrain's ongoing efforts to institutionalise fair labour practices.

He reaffirmed the Kingdom's commitment to fighting trafficking through a national strategy built on prevention, protection, justice, partnership, and the integration of anti-trafficking principles into long-term policy planning.

Talib praised the role of the private sector as a key partner, noting that recent inspection campaigns revealed a compliance rate of nearly 99 percent during the first half of the year.

Transparent Wages

The LMRA also highlighted its partnership with the private sector to provide all expatriate workers with International Bank Account Numbers (IBANS), enabling electronic wage transfers through authorised financial institutions.

This system improves transparency in wage payments, ensures proper documentation, and reduces the number of disputes that escalate into legal cases.

Awareness Drive

The authority has also intensified awareness efforts. Last year, it launched the 'Ma'an Na'mal' (Together We Work) initiative in collaboration with the International Organization for Migration, to educate employers and workers about their rights and available protection services.

Bahrain also runs structured orientation programmes for domestic workers and their employers, making it the first country in the region to implement such initiatives in coordination with both the IOM and the International Labour Organization.

Training Core

National workforce development remains central to Bahrain's approach. The LMRA's regional anti-trafficking training centre has certified 87 trainers from six public and private sectors since its launch in 2021.

Forum Voices

The forum featured two discussion panels focused on community-led strategies to combat trafficking and the importance of awareness in building national partnerships.

Speakers stressed the need to strengthen joint efforts with civil society and the business community to reinforce Bahrain's position as a regional and international leader in anti-trafficking reform.

The newly launched award aims to celebrate and sustain ethical employment practices while encouraging the private sector to serve as an active force in Bahrain's anti-trafficking efforts.

Bahraini rescued, another dies in diving tragedy

TDT | Manama

Intensive search and rescue efforts have led to the successful recovery of a Bahraini citizen and the discovery of the body of another, after the two went missing at sea during a diving trip near the King Fahd Causeway.

The two Bahraini nationals, both experienced diving enthusiasts, departed on a speedboat at around 1:30 p.m. yesterday in the Sunny Marine area.

An hour later, contact with them was lost amid reports of strong sea currents that are believed to have caused their boat to veer off course and lose control.

Search operations were swiftly launched following the report of their disappearance, with coordinated efforts by Bahraini and Saudi authorities, the Coast Guard, Civil Defense teams, and local volunteers combing the area throughout the night.

At approximately 1:30 a.m., rescue teams located Aziz Naseeb alive.

In a remarkable account of survival, he managed to stay afloat by inflating a balloon using one of the boat's gas cylinders.

He was immediately transferred to a hospital for medical evaluation and was later released in stable condition.

Tragically, the body of Muhammad Ismail, the second individual, was recovered about an hour later at around 2:30 a.m. His remains were transported to complete legal formalities.

Authorities have launched an investigation into the circumstances of the incident and have reiterated the importance of following maritime safety regulations.

Seafarers, particularly those engaged in diving and fishing activities, have been urged to notify relevant authorities before setting out and to take all necessary precautions to ensure their safety at sea.

Labour Court orders firm to pay accountant after false theft claim

TDT | Manama

A company has been ordered to pay a former accountant all his outstanding dues after its attempt to avoid doing so by accusing him of embezzlement failed in court.

The High Labour Court ruled in the accountant's favour, granting him unpaid wages from his final period of work, interest calculated until the full amount is settled, and compensation for annual leave, notice pay, unfair dismissal, and end-of-service benefits.

The court also ordered the employer to issue a service certificate covering his entire time at the firm, along with either a plane ticket or its cash value.

Dues

The accountant had worked on a fixed-term contract and took legal action after the company withheld his dues.

According to his lawyer, Eman Al Ansari, the employer lodged a police report accusing him of stealing funds. The case was later shelved by prosecutors due to lack of proof. Al Ansari said the ruling showed that raising unfounded allegations would not relieve an employer of their legal obligations.

Trio jailed over bank details scam

TDT | Manama

Two Asian men have been jailed for three years by the High Criminal Court for helping to steal nearly BD500 from a man through a bogus phone call that tricked him into entering his banking details online.

The victim had received a call urging him to update his bank card information by following a link.

Once he opened it, he was told to press a button and enter a series of codes.

Account

Moments later, he was alerted by his bank that more than BD1,000 had been taken from his account.

Realising the money had vanished through a scam, he turned to the Cybercrime Directorate.

A police investigator traced the movement of the stolen money with help from an electronic wallet firm.

Cash trail

The cash trail led to a man who had withdrawn the money at a currency exchange and then sent it abroad.

Security footage captured the suspect in the act.

He was arrested and later found to have been working with another defendant and a third man based outside Bahrain, who was behind the scam calls.

In return for commissions, the arrested men helped move the funds across borders.

Toxic trade busted

Shop owner fined, stock confiscated for selling expired pesticides and fertiliser without permission

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

A shopkeeper has been fined BD2,200 and had his stock confiscated after a court found he had tampered with pesticide and fertiliser containers, repackaging them without authorisation, and selling expired chemicals without a licence.

The Minor Criminal Court issued the sentence after hearing that the man, who owns a commercial outlet, had imported pesticides and fertilisers without the required clearance and intended to put out-of-date products on the shelves.

The case began when the Ministry of Municipalities Affairs and Agriculture filed a report with the Public Prosecution.

Inspectors had uncovered a batch of agricultural supplies brought in without approval, along with expired pest control products stored for sale.

Prosecutors questioned the judicial officers involved in the raid and summoned the shop owner for interview.

He admitted the offences and was referred to court, which handed down the fine and ordered the confiscation of the goods.

The Chief of the Ministries and Public Bodies Prosecution reminded businesses of the rules surrounding chemical products, warning that unauthorised handling of dangerous substances puts the environment and public health at risk.

Drug dealer jailed, fined and set for deportation

● Accused loses appeal, five years behind bars

TDT | Manama

An Asian man caught selling marijuana in Manama has lost his final appeal and will serve five years behind bars.

Bahrain's top court also ordered him to pay a BD5,000 fine, forfeit the car used during the transaction, and leave the country once his sentence is complete.

The man was arrested after striking a deal with a police informant to sell marijuana for BD20.

Officers had been tracking him following reports that he was arranging drug sales.

Investigators confirmed the claims through a contact who had built rapport with the suspect and arranged a meeting in the capital.

Handover

Police watched as the handover took place.

The man was seized with the marked money in hand, along with other sums.

He resisted and had to be brought under control using force.

A search of his home uncovered marijuana plants and additional narcotics.

Drop points

Questioned about the source, he said the drugs came from various drop points agreed on with another party.

Prosecutors charged him with selling and possessing marijuana without authorisation.

The court ordered the destruction of the seized drugs and the permanent confiscation of the vehicle used during the sale.

Mahir Haneef
TDT | Manama

Bahrain is opening a new chapter in its energy transition by launching its largest-ever solar project with a clear focus on private sector participation.

The 150-megawatt solar power plant, to be located near Bilaj Al Jazayer in the Kingdom's southern region, marks a strategic shift in how Bahrain develops its clean energy infrastructure. For the first time, the Electricity and Water Authority (EWA) is turning to a competitive, international engagement model to invite developers into Kamal bin Ahmed Mohammed the process.

The Authority will begin a Global Market Sounding exercise on August 14, allowing local and global entities to review the project's technical and commercial framework. This process will lay the groundwork for a competitive tender expected in the fourth quarter of this year.

"This is among our most strategic initiatives," said EWA President Kamal bin Ahmed Mohammed. "It reflects our commitment to a sustainable energy ecosystem and to strengthening public-private partnerships that reinforce Bahrain's infrastructure and energy security."

GCC Model Shift

The solar facility is part of the Kingdom's National Renewable Energy Plan, which aims to ensure 20 percent of Bahrain's energy comes from clean sources by 2035. Commercial operations are expected to begin in the third quarter of 2027.

The plant will span 1.2 square kilometres and is expected to generate enough electricity to power about 6,300 homes while cutting over 100,000 tonnes of carbon emissions annually.

To ensure international standards and transparency, EWA has engaged a specialised consortium for advisory services throughout the project. KPMG Fakhro will serve as financial advisor, WSP Parsons Brinckerhoff as technical advisor, and Trowers & Hamlin as legal advisor.

Open Invitation

EWA has invited developers and stakeholders to submit expressions of interest via email at project@ewa.bh. The Authority says the initiative is a defining step in shaping Bahrain's clean energy future through broad-based private sector engagement.

Trump demands CEO of US chip maker Intel resign ‘immediately’

TDT | Manama

President Donald Trump demanded Thursday that the new boss of US chip maker Intel resign “immediately,” after a Republican Senator raised national security concerns over his links to firms in China.

“The CEO of INTEL is highly CONFLICTED and must resign, immediately. There is no other solution to this problem,” Trump posted on his Truth Social platform, a day after Senator Tom Cotton said he had written to Intel questioning ties between CEO Lip-Bu Tan and Chinese firms.

Tan “reportedly controls dozens of Chinese companies and has a stake in hundreds of Chinese advanced-manufacturing and chip firms. At least eight of these companies reportedly have ties to the Chinese People’s Liberation Army,” Cotton wrote in his letter, a copy of which he posted on his website.

Cotton also noted Tan’s role as the previous head of Cadence Design Systems, which he said recently “pleaded guilty to illegally selling its products to a Chinese military university and transferring its technology to an associated Chinese semiconductor company without obtaining licenses.”

Tan was head of the company at that time, Cotton said.

The Malaysia-born tech industry veteran took the helm at struggling Intel in March, announcing layoffs as White House tariffs and export restrictions muddled the market.

He has said it “won’t be easy” to overcome challenges faced by the company.

Intel is one of Silicon Valley’s most iconic companies, but its fortunes have been dwarfed by Asian powerhouses TSMC and Samsung, which dominate the made-to-order semiconductor business.

Bahrain Needs to Rein In Aerosol Pollution

KOTA SRIRAJ

The tiny solid or liquid particles suspended in the air are called Aerosols. They can be naturally occurring in the form of simple dust or man made like those generated by vehicles and thermal power plants burning fossil fuels. Aerosol pollution is a real time challenge for Bahrain as this type of pollution can negatively impact both human health and the environment. Given the surrounding desert environment, Bahrain is continuously subjected to natural aerosol pollution in the form of mineral dust riding on northwesterly winds. Known as Shamal, these winds can bring airborne particles from as far as Iraq. This spikes the aerosol optical depth (AOD) levels over Bahrain.

Adding to the natural aerosol pollution due to dust, anthropogenic activities in the form of industrial and vehicular emissions have worsened the aerosol pollution burden for Bahrain. Studies have shown that construction activities such as earthworks, demolition, heavy machinery use, and material transport on construction sites generate substantial amounts of dust and pollutants. These emissions contain various harmful substances including particulate matter (PM10 and PM2.5), nitrogen oxides (NOx), carbon monoxide (CO), sulfur dioxide (SO₂), and volatile organic compounds (VOCs). All of these further worsen the aerosol pollution levels.

But perhaps the most concerning consequence of aerosol pollution is its impact on human health. Studies show a correlation between high aerosol pollutant levels and an increase in respiratory-related health issues and hospital visits. Diseases such as chronic obstructive pulmonary diseases (COPD), cardiovascular diseases, including stroke and heart disease have been constantly linked to aerosol pollution. Given these concerning aspects, there is an urgent need for an effective aerosol pollution mitigation strategy that may not be able to stem the natural sources of this pollution such as dust but may effectively slow down the man made sources of aerosol pollutants generation.

In the mitigation measures, firstly steps must be taken to ensure dust control measures during demolition, earthworks, and material handling. Usage of drones over construction sites and satellite imagery can be deployed to control construction related dust generation. This must be accompanied by live monitoring of air quality at the construction sites the data of which is constantly relayed to the authorities on a real time basis. Additionally, sustainable construction methods like waste management, energy-efficient building designs, and renewable energy sources can further add efficiency to the aerosol pollution mitigation efforts.

Secondly, there is also a need to dial down the usage of fossil fuels for energy and transportation purposes. This can have a telling positive impact on bringing down the aerosol pollution load in Bahrain. Notably in this regard Bahrain has already made exceptional progress to promote clean fuels under various policies and initiatives and this can be further built upon by integrating solar power, biofuels and other renewable energy sources to mainstream energy and transport needs. This is only possible if these clean energy sources are scaled up and their capacity increased so that they prove to be realistic alternatives to fossil fuels.

Aerosol pollution poses a silent threat that can only be mitigated through a sustainable shift to clean energy.

Kremlin confirms Trump-Putin talks

Summit expected within days as US pushes for Ukraine ceasefire deal

● Trump-Putin summit planned for next week

● UAE likely venue, but not confirmed

● Putin rejects direct talks with Zelensky

AFP | Moscow

The Kremlin said yesterday that a summit between US President Donald Trump and Russian counterpart Vladimir Putin on Ukraine was set for the "coming days" as US-led efforts to broker peace rumble on.

The Russian president named the United Arab Emirates (UAE) as a potential location for the summit with Trump, but essentially ruled out a meeting with Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky.

The Trump-Putin summit would be the first between sitting US and Russian presidents since Joe Biden met Putin in Geneva in June 2021. It comes as the Republican seeks an end to Russia's military assault on Ukraine.

Three rounds of direct talks between Moscow and Kyiv have failed to yield any progress towards a ceasefire. The two sides appear as far apart as ever in the conditions they have set for an end to the more than three-year-long conflict.

Trump said on Wednesday that he was likely to meet Putin face-to-face "very soon".

They last sat together in 2019 at a G20 summit meeting in Japan during Trump's first term as US president, but have spoken by telephone several times since the former reality TV star returned to the White House earlier this year.

"Both sides showed interest" in a meeting, Putin told reporters

yesterday.

"We have many friends who are willing to help us organise such events. One of our friends is the president of the United Arab Emirates," he said, standing next to UAE leader Mohamed bin Zayed Al Nahyan.

Earlier yesterday, Kremlin aide Yuri Ushakov said that the plan to hold a bilateral summit was "at the suggestion of the American side".

"Next week has been set as a target date," said Ushakov, adding that both sides have already agreed the venue "in principle", without naming it.

However, Washington later yesterday denied that a venue or date had been set.

"No location has been determined," a White House official said, adding that the meeting "could occur as early as next week".

Putin-Zelensky meeting?

Putin personally named UAE President Mohamed bin Zayed as a willing host—cementing the Emirates' rising role as a "neutral ground" for global diplomacy, and making Abu Dhabi a likely stage for historic superpower talks on Ukraine

Russian bombardments have forced millions of people to flee their homes and have destroyed swathes of eastern and southern Ukraine.

Putin has resisted multiple calls from the United States, Europe and Kyiv for a ceasefire.

At talks in Istanbul, Russian negotiators outlined hardline territorial demands if Ukraine wants Russia to halt its advance -- calling for Kyiv to withdraw from some territory it still controls and to renounce Western military support.

Reports of the possible summit came after US envoy Steve Witkoff met Putin in Moscow on Wednesday.

Witkoff proposed a trilateral meeting with Zelensky, but Putin appeared to rule out direct talks with the Ukrainian leader.

"I have nothing against it in general, it is possible, but certain conditions must be created for this," Putin told reporters, adding: "Unfortunately, we are still far from creating such conditions."

Putin said in June that he was ready to meet Zelensky, but only during a "final phase" of negotiations on ending the conflict.

Zelensky earlier yesterday had renewed his call for a meeting with Putin -- which he says is the only way to make progress towards peace.

Cockatoos can bust a move: Australian research

AFP | Sydney

Cockatoo birds are renowned in Australia for their raucous singing, but researchers said yesterday they also boast an impressive array of dance moves.

Many Australians regard cockatoos as something of a nuisance, a reputation owed in part to the parrots' cacophonous, screeching cries.

But when they are not using their sharp beaks to rifle through rubbish, a new study found many cockatoo species seemed to enjoy shaking their tail feathers.

Charles Sturt University researcher Natasha Lubke docu-

Cockatoos looking for food in a garbage bin near restaurants in the New South Wales coastal city of Wollongong mented 30 different dance moves while studying various species of cockatoo -- from headbanging to body rolls.

"I showed that dancing behaviour is more common in cockatoos than previously thought, and was seen in 10 of the 21 cockatoo species," said Lubke.

Lubke scrolled through YouTube videos to document the dancing behaviours of pet cockatoos around the world, as well as observing the birds at Australia's Wagga Wagga Zoo.

The research suggested that cockatoos "can experience pleasure and enjoy dancing", she said.

Israel plans Sa-Nur rebuilding

Far-right minister announces reconstruction of evacuated West Bank settlement

● Sa-Nur evacuated during 2005 disengagement

● Smotrich calls eviction a “historic mistake”

● Settlements illegal under international law

AFP | Sa-Nur

An Israeli minister announced yesterday plans to rebuild Sa-Nur, a settlement in the occupied West Bank that was evacuated two decades ago, as the far right spearheads a major settlement expansion push.

Sa-Nur’s settlers were evicted in 2005 as part of Israel’s so-called disengagement policy that also saw the country withdrawing troops and settlers from the Gaza Strip.

Many in the Israeli settler movement have since called to return to Sa-Nur and other evacuated settlements in the northern West Bank.

On a visit to the area yesterday along with families who say they are preparing to move there,

Israeli settlers return to the settlement of Sa Nur, which lies between the cities of Nablus and Janin in the occupied West Bank, on July 24, 2018 as they mark 13 years since their evacuation as part of the 2005 disengagement plan

Finance Minister Bezalel Smotrich said that “we are correcting the mistake of the expulsion” in 2005.

“Even back then, we knew that... we would one day return to all the places we were driven out of,” said the far-right minister who lives in a settlement.

“That applies to Gaza, and it’s even more true here.”

Israeli settlements in the West Bank, which Israel has occupied since 1967, are illegal under international law and seen by the international community as a major obstacle to lasting peace, undermining the territorial integrity of any future Palestinian state.

The Ramallah-based Palestinian Authority issued a strong condemnation for yesterday’s visit, which it regards as part of Israel’s “plans to entrench the gradual annexation of the West Bank, posing a direct threat to the possibility of implementing the two-state solution”.

In a statement, the Palestinian foreign ministry said the push “to revive settlements that were evacuated 20 years ago” would lead to further confiscation of Palestinian lands.

In May, Israel announced the creation of 22 settlements in-

Despite being presented as “new,” several of the 22 settlements recently approved already existed as unauthorized outposts and were retroactively legalized by the Israeli government cluding Sa-Nur and Homesh -- two of the four northern West Bank settlements that were evacuated in 2005.

Israeli NGO Peace Now, which monitors settlement activity in the West Bank, said some of the 22 settlements the government announced as new had in fact already existed on the ground.

Some are neighbourhoods that were upgraded to independent settlements, and others are unrecognised outposts given formal status under Israeli law, according to Peace Now.

The West Bank is home to some three million Palestinians as well as about 500,000 Israeli settlers.

WHO says 99 dead from malnutrition in Gaza this year

The World Health Organization said yesterday that 99 people were now known to have died from malnutrition in the Gaza Strip so far this year, with the figure likely an underestimate.

International outrage over the humanitarian situation in Gaza has ratcheted up pressure on Israel, with UN agencies warning of famine in the devastated Palestinian territory.

WHO chief Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus called for scaled-up, sustained and unimpeded aid to be allowed to flow into Gaza, via all possible routes.

Gazans “have limited access to basic services, have faced repeated displacement and are now suffering from a blockade of food supplies”, Tedros told the UN correspondents’ association ACANU.

Israel seeks control of Gaza, won’t ‘keep it’: Netanyahu

Israel intends to take full control of Gaza but does not want to keep or govern it, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said ahead of a security cabinet meeting yesterday.

“We intend to,” Netanyahu replied, when asked in a televised Fox News interview if Israel will take control of “all of Gaza.”

Fox News said the interview occurred just before Netanyahu was to attend a security cabinet meeting on Gaza war plans.

Netanyahu is expected to seek approval at the meeting for an expansion of military operations, including in densely populated areas where hostages are believed to be held, according to Israeli media.

Asked by Fox News if Israel would control the entire 26-mile Gaza Strip “as it was 20 years ago,” Netanyahu replied: “Well, we don’t want to keep it. We want to have a security perimeter. We don’t want to govern it.”

“We want to hand it over to Arab forces that will govern it properly without threatening us and giving Gazans a good life. That’s not possible with Hamas,” he added.

India’s Modi unwilling to compromise on agriculture as US tariff war escalates

AFP | New Delhi

Prime Minister Narendra Modi said yesterday he would not compromise on the agriculture sector, a day after US President Donald Trump announced 50% tariffs on Indian goods.

Washington announced the hike in levies on Wednesday, citing New Delhi’s purchasing of Russian oil, a key revenue source for Moscow’s war in Ukraine.

For New Delhi, one of the main sticking points in trade negotiations has been Washington’s demand to access India’s vast agricultural and dairy market.

India has remained steadfast about its labour-intensive agricultural sector, unwilling to risk angering farmers, a powerful voting bloc.

“We will not compromise with the interests of our farmers, our dairy sector, our fishermen,” Modi said during a speech at a conference in New Delhi, his remarks widely seen as his first public response to the tariffs.

“I know I will have to pay a personal price for this, but I am ready for it,” he added, without giving further details.

India has also refused to allow the import of genetically modified products.

Additionally, New Delhi fears that allowing the import of dairy products may upset the cultural and religious sensitivities of India’s majority Hindus, who revere cows as sacred.

The Fed needs a decisive 0.5% cut. Bank of England has already cut three times in 2025. The too-late Fed? Zero cuts. It should have cut already so doing only a 0.25% cut in September will leave it even further behind the curve. High rates are blocking growth in output.

Osaka, Mboko set up Montreal final

Osaka edges Tauson, Mboko stuns Rybakina in thrilling Canadian Open semi-finals

● Mboko stuns Rybakina after injury scare

AFP | Montreal

Four-time Grand Slam champion Naomi Osaka and Canadian teen sensation Victoria Mboko booked a championship showdown with gritty semi-final wins on Wednesday in the WTA Canadian Open in Montreal.

Japan's Osaka, chasing her first tour-level title since the 2021 Australian Open, saved a pair of set points in the second-set tiebreaker to polish off a 6-2, 7-6 (9/7) victory over Denmark's Clara Tauson -- who was coming off victories over Wimbledon champion Iga Swiatek and Australian Open winner Madison Keys.

Mboko saved a match point in a thrilling 1-6, 7-5, 7-6 (7/4) victory over former Wimbledon champion Elena Rybakina.

The 18-year-old wild card fed off the energy of the crowd, crediting ecstatic supporters with carrying her through after a tumble left her with a sore right wrist in the third set of her first tour-level semi-final.

Mboko, who ousted top-seeded French Open champion Coco Gauff in the fourth round, didn't let it stop her.

After going down an early break in the third set she refused to go quietly, loading up on her forehand fending off a match point as she broke Rybakina in the 10th game to level the set.

A couple of untimely double faults helped ninth-seeded Rybakina break back for a 6-5 lead, but the ninth seed from Kazakhstan was broken at love in the next game, setting the stage for had worked her way up to 85th coming into the week by grinding away in lower-level tournaments.

She is assured of breaking into the top 40 no matter the result against Osaka, a former world number one who has struggled to find consistency since returning from maternity leave in 2024.

She has looked re-energized this week after a coaching shakeup and rolled through the first set against Tauson.

But Tauson twice regained a break in the second set as she pushed it to the tiebreaker where she had chances to level the match after taking a 6-4 lead.

Unable to convert her set points, the Dane saved one match point to make it 7-7, but Osaka won the next two to seal the victory and reach her first final in a WTA 1000 level event since Miami in 2022.

Khachanov topples Zverev to book ATP Toronto title clash with Shelton

AFP | Toronto

Karen Khachanov rallied to defeat top seed Alexander Zverev and book an ATP Toronto Masters title clash with Ben Shelton, who beat second seeded Taylor Fritz on Wednesday.

Khachanov fought back from 3-1 down in the final-set tiebreaker to beat Zverev 6-3, 4-6, 7-6 (7/4).

Shelton, seeded fourth, hammered Fritz 6-4, 6-3 in the first All-American Masters 1000 semifinal in 15 years to book the fifth, and most important, ATP final of his career.

Russia's Khachanov, seeded 11th, had lost two previous semi-finals in Canada. But he dug deep to advance, saving a match point as he levelled the deciding set at 6-6, with world number three Zverev hammering a backhand into the top

Bahrain Set for Qatar Test Ahead of Arab Cup Push

Bahrain's national team in training

TDT | Manama

Bahrain's senior men's national football team will travel to Doha next month for a friendly against regional rivals Qatar, the Bahrain Football Association (BFA) confirmed on Wednesday.

The match is set for September 3 at Al Thumama Stadium, with kick-off at 6:15pm Bahrain time. It serves as a key part of Bahrain's build-up to the FIFA Arab Cup 2025, which will also take place in Qatar this December.

Qatar, ranked 53rd globally and fifth in Asia, are preparing for both the Arab Cup and the AFC fourth-round qualifiers for the 2026 FIFA World Cup, starting in October. The friendly allows both teams to test tactical setups and assess squad depth.

A second friendly is also being arranged, with Bahrain possibly facing the UAE on September 8 in Dubai. Talks are ongoing. The Emiratis, 65th in the world and 10th in Asia, are also prepping for the Arab Cup and World Cup qualifying.

Bahrain, ranked 89th globally and 12th in Asia, recently held a training camp in Maribor, Slovenia, led by head coach Dragan Talajic. The camp included three friendlies: a 2-1 win over NK Primorje Ajdovščina, a 3-1 victory against NK Šopec Lesce, and a 1-3 loss to Croatian top-flight side NK Istra 1961.

Talajic used the camp to introduce new talent. The 28-man squad excluded veterans Ismaeel Abdullatif, Ali Haram, Mohammed Al Rumaihi, and retired goalkeeper Sayed Mohammed Jaafar, the country's most-capped player. Key midfielder Mohammed Jassim Marhoon missed out due to club duties, while rising star Sayed Ahmed Al Wadaie remained with Bahrain's U23 Olympic team.

Newer call-ups included Abdulla Al Subaie, Hussain Jameel, Omar Saber, Ahmed Dhiya, and goalkeepers Yousef Habib and Mohammed Al Gharabli, most of whom are uncapped.

Bahrain Victorious spirit returns as T100 Countdown begins

With 100 days to go, Dubai T100 eyes another blockbuster weekend

● T100 Dubai returns November 13–16

● Ghani Souleymane begins record-breaking quest

● Event includes pro, amateur, and fun runs

● Bahrain-linked stars expected to headline

TDT | Manama

The 100-day countdown to the return of the Dubai T100 triathlon has officially begun — and with it, anticipation builds for one of the world's most dynamic multisport events, set for November 13–16.

This year's edition kicks off with an extraordinary challenge from Ghani Souleymane, one of the UAE's most renowned endurance athletes, who will attempt to complete 100 triathlons in 100 consecutive days, each covering the full T100 distance: 2km swim, 80km bike, and 18km run. The journey begins tomorrow at Kite Beach and will culminate with his 100th triathlon at the Dubai T100 on November 16. The feat, officially recognised as a Guinness World Record attempt, also serves a charitable purpose — raising funds for children impacted by conflict.

"The effort is personal," said Souleymane, who previously completed 30 Ironmans in 30 days. "It's about doing something extreme for a reason that matters."

Dubai T100 is part of the Professional Triathletes Organisation's (PTO) global T100 Triathlon World Tour and is increasingly seen as a key date in the international triathlon calendar. It blends professional competition with mass participation, all staged against the backdrop of the Dubai skyline. As part of the Dubai Fitness Challenge, the event also aims to mobilise the wider community through accessible races like the Music Run, a 5K fun run drawing thousands.

Returning to Dubai is also a deep field of elite athletes — none more anticipated than the reigning world champions from Bahrain Victorious 13, the Bahrain-backed professional triathlon

Bahrain's Marten Van Riel competing in Dubai

The reigning men's and women's T100 World Champions both ride for Bahrain Victorious 13 team that has dominated the global circuit. With the Dubai T100 acting as the penultimate stop on the tour before the championship final in Qatar, top contenders will be chasing critical points in the Race to Qatar standings.

Last year's event delivered drama and speed in equal measure. Julie Deron, current women's T100 leader, praised the energy and atmosphere, calling it "one of the best events of the season." The 2025 edition promises even more, with a packed four-day schedule including a Corporate Relay, Sprint Triathlon, elite men's and women's T100 races, and a 100km amateur triathlon where age-groupers will race the same course as the pros.

Egypt Hand Bahrain Second Loss at IHF Youth Worlds

● Egypt overpower Bahrain with first-half surge

● Al Showaikh continues standout scoring form

Hussain Almaskati
TDT | Manama

Bahrain's under-19 national handball team suffered their second straight loss at the 11th IHF Men's Youth World Championship in Egypt, losing 36–28 to the hosts on Thursday night. The Group G clash drew 2,500 spectators to Cairo Stadium, where Egypt's early pace and home advantage overwhelmed a Bahrain side still reeling from their narrow defeat to Japan the day before.

Trailing 19–13 at halftime,

Captain Haider Salman (R) fires up his team before the throw-off

Bahrain never recovered the gap, and while they have one group match remaining, their path to the main round is now mathematically closed.

Al Showaikh Impresses Again

Despite the result, Salman Al Showaikh put in another standout performance, scoring 10 goals to follow up his double-digit effort against Japan. The left back remained Bahrain's most effective attacking option.

Ali Abbas contributed seven goals but was twice penalised with 2-minute suspensions. Mahmood Yusuf and Mohamed Tarrada added three goals each,

Bahrain's Mahmood Yousif (C) in action vs. Egypt yesterday and Fadhel Ebrahim chipped in two.

Hosts in Control

Egypt controlled the match from the opening whistle, capitalising on turnovers and maintaining pressure with a deep rotation. Aly Hassan and Adel Eletter scored six each, as Bahrain's defensive structure struggled to adapt.

Although Bahrain converted 8 of 9 penalty shots, they had fewer clear chances in open play against Egypt's compact 6–0 defence.

President's Cup Path Ahead Bahrain faces South Korea tomorrow at 5:15 PM (Bahrain time) in their final Group G match of the championship. Ja-

Salman Al Showaikh's 20 goals across two games place him among the tournament's top scorers pan's 34–32 and Egypt's 46–27 wins over South Korea give them 4 points each, securing main round spots. Bahrain, with 0 points after losing to Japan (30–32) and Egypt (28–36), is eliminated and will play in the President's Cup for 17th–32nd place alongside South Korea.
