

celebs

Sydney Sweeney 'has always been tapped into fashion'

Bang Showbiz | Los Angeles

Sydney Sweeney has "always been tapped into fashion".

The 28-year-old actress recently launched her own lingerie line called SYRN, and Amanda Seyfried - who starred alongside Sydney in The Housemaid, the hit thriller film - is convinced that her co-star will make a success of the venture.

Amanda, 40, told People: "I think she's always been tapped into fashion."

"She seems to always have a nice 'fit. The sexier the better."

"It's funny, I haven't seen a lingerie line in a long time, and you know, if you've got the eye for it and the body, it's fun to celebrate that."

Amanda also opened up about her own sense of style, revealing that she's worn a belly button ring since the age of 17.

The Hollywood star - who has Nina, eight, and Thomas, five, with husband Thomas Sadoski - shared: "I never got rid of it. I've had it since I was 17. "I took it out when I was pregnant both times, I put it straight back in. Nobody really ever sees it, but it's always there."

Sydney Sweeney

Meanwhile, Amanda previously heaped praise on Sydney, describing her co-star as a "sweetheart".

The actress told Vanity Fair: "I don't envy anything she's going through."

"I've spent a lot of time with her; we just hit it off immediately. She's a sweetheart. She's a very generous, kind person at her core. I have to be honest: I did not have a moment like she's having ever."

[My Mean Girls co-star] Lindsay Lohan, we're buddies, and it's really, really, really harmful to people to have that kind of overnight spotlight. Because any press, good or bad, is still a blinding spotlight, and you have to maneuver and negotiate your way around it and outside of it. It's acrobatics that I don't think most people are capable of figuring it out at that age."

Amanda thinks a sudden rise to stardom can actually be "dangerous". However, the actress praised Sydney for how she's coped with the extra attention.

She said: "It's just dangerous, because when you have people s***** on you—or idolising you and following you around—it can't be good for your psyche. It can't make you feel safe in the world."

"But I actually admire the way Syd shows up for work. She always has a smile on her face, even if she's miserable. I hope it doesn't change."

Margot Robbie is a 'terrible' cook

Bang Showbiz | Los Angeles

Margot Robbie is a "terrible" cook.

The Barbie star opened up about her lack of ability in the kitchen during a joint interview for Complex with pop star Charli XCX with the actress admitting she leaves all culinary duties to her husband Tom Ackerley because he's an "unbelievable cook".

When asked what dish she would like her significant other to cook, Margot said: "He's an unbelievable cook. Spag bol is a good one because everyone has their own version of it. He makes one that takes like two days. There's a lot of effort that goes into it but it's worth it. It's so worth it."

Asked if she's good at cooking, Margot replied: "No. I'm terrible ... You only need one in the relationship. You don't both need to be good at it ... And I love eating so it works."

Charli - who is married to The 1975 star George Daniel - confessed she's also a terrible cook, telling the actress: "Babe that's the same with me. My husband's an amazing cook ... We're [Charli and Margot] too busy not that they're [their husbands] not ... We love you boys!"

"My husband makes a really good shwarma. It's not quite two days. But it is like a day of marination ... is that a word?"

Margot then jokes: "You can tell how often we're in the kitchen."

Margot Robbie

Gwyneth Paltrow felt 'amazing' after blood-filtering treatment

Bang Showbiz | Los Angeles

Gwyneth Paltrow underwent a treatment to filter toxins from her blood after battling "chronic fatigue" and "brain fog".

The Hollywood actress-turned-wellness guru, 53, has revealed she turned to a therapy called therapeutic plasma exchange to cleanse her blood of toxins such as microplastics and mould - and the Iron Man star felt "amazing" afterwards.

According to the Daily Mail newspaper's Richard Eden in his Eden Confidential column, she said:

Gwyneth Paltrow

"I'd been going through lots of health stuff with that kind of ambiguous chronic stuff that medicine normally has a harder time dealing with: chronic fatigue, brain fog."

"I was so interested in this idea that we could filter out things in our blood that were making us more sick."

She added: "I felt amazing after. I felt this immediate unburdening and clarity and lightness."

The publication reports Gwyneth underwent five sessions of the treatment at a clinic in Chicago, Illinois with the final cost totalling around £36,500.

Priyanka Chopra has bodyguards to stop fans filming her 'without consent'

Bang Showbiz | Los Angeles

Priyanka Chopra has hired bodyguards to stop fans filming her "without consent".

The 43-year-old actress - who has a four-year-old daughter named Malti with her husband Nick Jonas - has admitted she hates being recorded when she's out in public so she now has a security team following her about to keep fans with camera phones away.

When asked about the bodyguards spotted with the couple at a recent party in Los Angeles celebrating the Golden Globe awards, Chopra told Variety: "I am OK with being approached by anyone and taking photos, and they know that I love people coming to talk to me."

"They [the bodyguards] were there to make sure we're not being recorded without consent. That's my biggest thing with everyone having cellphones."

"It happens often, especially with my daughter. We're in the park or having ice cream, and suddenly I'll see it online. My security is for that reason. Otherwise, I don't need it. Nobody's gonna kill me."

In the interview, Chopra also explained she has a complicated relationship with life in the public eye, saying: "I've had a push-and-pull relationship with fame always. And I've kind of divided myself into two. There's my public side and my personal side."

Priyanka Chopra

It comes after Chopra's husband opened up about the difficult time the couple endured after the birth of their daughter, who was welcomed via surrogate in January 2022.

The pop star revealed

Malti was premature and needed to be resuscitated shortly after she was born. During an appearance on the On Purpose podcast, Nick explained: "She came to the world under, sort of, very intense circumstances. "We were expecting her to arrive in April of the year she was born, and we get a call that it's going to be sooner."

Nick recalled his daughter looking "purple" shortly after she arrived into the world.

He said: "We basically, you know, went into action and she was born via surrogate. We got to the hospital, and she came out. She was 1 pound, 11 ounces and purple basically."

Malti ultimately spent nearly 100 days in a neonatal intensive care unit, and Nick admits that the situation felt perilous at one point in time.

Chris Hemsworth 'bribed' daughter to star in Avengers: Doomsday

Bang Showbiz | Los Angeles

Chris Hemsworth had to "bribe" his daughter with a motorbike to appear in Avengers: Doomsday.

The 42-year-old actor - who plays Thor across the Marvel Cinematic Universe (MCU) - admitted it took a bit of "negotiation" to get 13-year-old India to reprise her role as Love in the upcoming blockbuster, having previously played the character in 2022's Thor: Love and Thunder, because she was unimpressed about having to spend her days on set.

Chris Hemsworth and daughter India

Speaking on The View, he said: "She's now 13, so she's a teenager, so a bit different to when we shot the other one."

"And she walks on set and she's like, 'Ugh, how long is this gonna take?' I was like, 'We haven't even started!'"

After the first take, India asked if they were "done", only to be left horrified when her dad told her they had "another two or three days" of filming to complete.

He laughed: "She's like, 'Aww, God.' She had just this angst, sort of teenage attitude [about filming and would often retreat to her tent or sit in a chair]."

"And in the end, I had to bribe her to come onto set."

"She's like, 'I'm not coming! I'm not even getting paid! What am I even doing here?' And I go, 'You are getting paid.' She goes, 'Really? You didn't tell me that." But when Chris - who also has 11-year-old twin sons Sasha and Tristan with wife Elsa Pataky - tried to explain to India that the money she earned would be saved until she turned 18, she insisted things had to be different.

He recalled: "She goes, 'Nah! Nah, I want some of it now.' "And [Doomsday co-director] Joe Russo and the directors are there and they're like, '...We gotta get her on set.'"