Bahrain and Cyprus sign key deals

HM King holds talks with President Anastasiades to boost bilateral ties and cooperation in various fields

TDT | Manama

His Majesty King Hamad bin Isa Al Khalifa and Cyprus President Nicos Anastasiades hailed the two important agreements signed yesterday, expressing hope they will contribute to developing cooperation between the two countries.

This came as HM the King received Anastasiades and his accompanying delegation at Gudaibiya Palace.

In the presence of His Majesty and the Cypriot leader, an agreement was signed between Bahrain and Cyprus on the exemption of visa requirements for

HM the King with President Anastasiades

diplomatic, special, and service passports holders to enable citizens from both countries holding those passports to enter or exit both countries, transit and reside without a visa.

It was signed by Foreign Minister Dr Abdellatif bin Rashid Al Zayani and counterpart Nikos Christodoulides.

A Memorandum of Understanding on economic and technical cooperation was also signed by Finance and National Economy Minister Shaikh Salman bin Khalifa Al Khalifa and Cypriot Minister of Energy, Commerce and Industry Natasa Pilides.

Upon arrival, the official reception protocols were held for President Anastasiades.

HM the King held talks with him in the presence of the two delegations as they discussed ways of boosting bilateral relations and cooperation in various fields.

His Majesty underlined the importance of the Cypriot President's visit to Bahrain in fostering partnership in light of the promising investment opportunities existing in both countries.

They exchanged views on regional and international developments and issues of common interest. President Anastasiades expressed happiness about visiting the Kingdom and thanked HM the King for the gracious welcome and hospitality.
