

Beyonce drops lawsuit over 'Feyonce' items

Reuters | Los Angeles

A lawsuit brought by Beyonce over the sale of "Feyonce" items to engaged couples has been dismissed at the singer's request, court documents

showed on Wednesday.

The pop superstar had complained in a 2016 lawsuit that the shirts, hoodies and other items sold to engaged couples by a Texas company under the name Feyonce infringed on her trademark rights and would confuse customers.

One of the Feyonce items was a mug with the phrase "he put a ring on it," which Beyonce said was intended to recall the lyrics of her 2008 global hit song "Single Ladies (Put a Ring on It)."

A federal judge in New York in October rejected the singer's request for a permanent injunction to stop the sale of the Feyonce items and ordered both sides to discuss trial dates and a possible settlement.

Beyonce in December asked the court to dismiss the case. It was not clear from Wednesday's court filing granting the dismissal whether the two sides had reached a settlement. Attorneys did not return a request for comment.

Zendaya's fashion line inspired by her grandfather

IANS | Los Angeles

Actress Zendaya, who has teamed up with American clothing company Tommy Hilfiger for the Paris Fashion Week 2019, says her collection is inspired by her grandfather.

In an interview to Harper's Bazaar magazine, the "The Greatest Showman" star said that she has "re-created" her grandfather's old shirts to be part of the selection.

"My Grandpa's work shirts, they're my most favourite clothes I've ever owned. I actually re-created them for the TommyxZendaya collection," she added.

Zendaya was delighted to have been given "creative control" over all aspects of her collection.

She said: "When I was first presented with the opportunity, I was told that Tommy Hilfiger himself wanted to talk to me about it. And sure enough he was on the phone, explaining how he wanted me to be as creative as I wanted."

"He told me how I would be able to truly have creative control from concept to clothing, down to the font on the packaging."

"I was in heaven when I showed up with my inspiration boards and a million ideas, and I was allowed to just go for it, with all support in the world."

Miley Cyrus shuts down pregnancy rumours with viral egg meme

ANI | Washington

Miley Cyrus shut down reports suggesting that she is expecting a baby with her husband Liam Hemsworth like a boss!

The 26-year-old singer took to Twitter to put a stop to all the pregnancy rumours using the viral egg meme.

Under a Daily Mail Twitter post to a story titled "Miley Cyrus and Liam Hemsworth 'are expecting their first child together,'" Miley used the egg's picture that recently beat Kylie Jenner's picture of baby Stormi Webster as the most liked Instagram photo ever to reply to the article.

"I'm not 'Egg-xpecting' but it's 'Egg-celent' to hear everyone is so 'Happy For Us' we're happy for us too! 'Egg-cited' for this next chapter in our lives.... Now, can everyone leave me alone and go back to staring at an egg," she tweeted alongside a photo of her, covering her belly with the egg meme.

The 'Wrecking Ball' star sparked rumours that she was pregnant when she was spotted out in Miami with what some tabloids alleged was a baby bump. Liam has not yet commented on their plans to start a family.

The couple has been enjoying the marital bliss and celebrating Liam's recent 29th birthday.

Earlier, Miley had shared a heartfelt message for Liam on his birthday. The 'Malibu' singer raved about her loving husband and gave a beautiful insight into her relationship with Liam.

Cyrus and Hemsworth tied the knot in a secret wedding at their home in Franklin, Tennessee on December 23, reported E! Online.

The couple first met on the sets of the movie 'The Last Song' in 2008. After dating on and off for many years, Liam popped the big question for the second time in 2016.

Julia Roberts won't return for 'Homecoming' season 2

IANS | Los Angeles

Actress Julia Roberts won't be appearing in season two of thriller TV series "Homecoming".

According to sources, Roberts' initial deal for "Homecoming" -- her first TV series regular role -- was for a one-season commitment based purely on the Amazon drama's creative storyline.

The Oscar-winning actress will still remain involved as an executive producer alongside showrunner Sam Esmail.

It is not clear if there will be any other major cast departures for season two or if any of the other stars -- including Stephan James, Bobby Cannavale, Shea Whigham, Alex Karpovsky and Sissy Spacek -- will return.

The show hails from Anonymous Content and Universal Cable Productions where Esmail is under an overall deal.

"Homecoming", adapted from a podcast with the same name, follows the life of case worker-turned-waitress Heidi Bergman (Roberts) as she struggles to remember her time working at a facility that treats soldiers returning from war.

January Jones

January Jones to star in skating drama series

IANS | Los Angeles

"Mad Men" star January Jones is set to play a lead opposite Kaya Scodelario in "Spinning Out", an upcoming drama series set in the world of competitive figure skating.

In the Netflix series, the 41-year-old actress will play Carol Baker, a former competitive figure skater who had to forfeit her dreams when she became pregnant with her oldest daughter at a young age, reports deadline.com.

Created by Samantha Stratton, "Spinning Out" revolves around Kat Baker (Scodelario), an up-and-coming, high-level single skater who is about to turn in her skates after a disastrous fall took her off the competition track. Scodelario is popular for "Clash of the Titans", "Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Men Tell No Tales" and "Maze Runner: The Death Cure", which will air on Star Movies on January 20.

Other cast members include Johnny Weir, Sarah Wright Olsen, Will Kemp, Kaitlyn Leeb, Amanda Zhou and Mitchell Edwards.
