Planning to put up an advertisement? Make sure you have a licence first.

Under a new bill being reviewed by Parliament, anyone who puts up an advert without prior approval from the relevant authority could face fines of up to BD 20,000 or even imprisonment.

The proposed amendments aim to update Bahrain's 1973 advertising law, originally issued under Decree-Law No. 14 of 1973 and attached to Decree No. 8 of 2025.

If approved, the new law will allow the ministry to inspect and remove illegal advertisements and revoke existing licences. It also widens the definition of what counts as an advertisement to include any message shown to the public or a specific group using pictures, symbols, sounds, or lights — whether displayed on wood, metal, plastic, or glass. Article 16 proposes fines ranging from BD 1,000 to BD 20,000 or imprisonment for offences such as advertising without a licence, breaching licence conditions, providing false information, or obstructing ministry inspectors. Each illegal advert will attract its own penalty.

Licences could be cancelled permanently or for a set period, with advertisers required to bear the cost of restoring the site. Article 17 adds further penalties, setting a fine of up to BD 1,000 for anyone who removes, tears, defaces, or damages a licensed advertisement.

The Ministry of Municipalities Affairs and Agriculture has backed the government's proposal, along with the Capital Trustees Board and the municipal councils of Muharraq, the Northern area, and the Southern area.

UN rapporteur says deadly Israel strikes on vehicles in Lebanon could be war crimes

'Flood Gaza with Food'

The United Nations yesterday urged to open all crossings and to "flood Gaza with food" as it will take time to reverse the famine at the war-shattered Palestinian territory.

Close to 3,000 tonnes of food supplies had been moved into strip since the US-brokered ceasefire between Israel and Hamas took hold, announced the UN's World Food Programme.

"It's going to take some time to scale back the famine" declared by the UN in late August, WFP spokeswoman Abeer Etefa told a media briefing in Geneva.

Rising medicine prices push residents abroad, MPs call for GCC-level rates

● Lawmakers urge stronger price controls to ensure fair access at home

● Regulators disagree say prices have already dropped by up to 70% since 2014

Many citizens and residents are forced to buy medicines abroad as prices soar here.

MPs say this calling for medicine prices in the kingdom to match those in other Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) countries, saying rising and uneven costs are pushing citizens and residents to neighbouring states, particularly Saudi Arabia, to find cheaper medicines. The proposal seeks firmer controls to give patients clearer, steadier pricing at home.

MP Bader Al Tamimi said aligning prices would save citizens and residents from crossing borders to buy medicines and would provide patients with more predictable costs.

The proposal was tabled by Al Tamimi along with MPs Hamad Al Doy, Najeeb Al Kuwari, and

Unanimous

After reviewing the proposal, the Services Committee unanimously recommended approval, citing the public interest in stronger oversight, improved pharmacy services, and fairer access for low-income families. Supporters argue the law would reduce price gaps, ease the financial burden on households, and spare patients the need to shop around.

Regulators differ

Regulators, however, said prices are already governed by law. Industry reports show medicine prices have fallen by up to 70 per cent since 2014.

The National Health Regulatory Authority (NHRA) warned the plan would be difficult to implement, noting that Bahrain already prices medicines under Article 86 of Decree-Law No. 18 of 1997 and Decision No. 32 of 2020. These rules link profit to import cost, set ceilings by category, and use unified GCC lists or official import invoices (CIF). The NHRA also conducts routine inspections and ensures the same shelf price across pharmacies, factoring in whether a product is an originator or generic and when it was registered.

Pharmacies disagree

The Pharmacies Owners & Importers Society said the goal is already being met, pointing to price drops of up to 70 per cent since 2014. It called for ongoing reviews rather than a fixed cap and warned that large pharmacy chains face financial strain, with some nearing insolvency.

Al Tamimi said rising and uneven prices had pushed some citizens and residents to buy medicines abroad. Firmer control, he added, would give patients steadier, clearer pricing.

A proposal for Bahraini pharmacy sector is gaining momentum, aiming to prioritise local hires and reduce reliance on foreign staff.

The Legislative and Legal Affairs Committee has backed a motion put forward by MPs Jaleela Alawi, Dr Hesham Al Ashiri, Mamdouh Al Saleh, Mo-

Bahrainis with pharmacy degrees currently have active state applications, while just 273 staff are employed in government pharmacies.

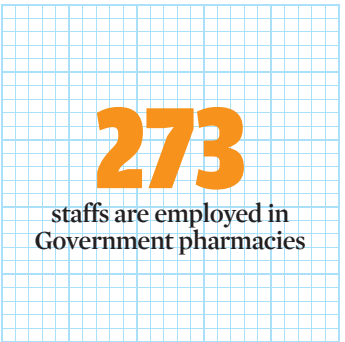

The MPs say the proposal aims to expand pharmacy roles in the government health sector, increase local employment, cut unemployment, and reduce reliance on expatriate labour.

Ministry data point to unmet demand. The Ministry of Health reports 273 employees working in pharmacies across primary healthcare centres and public hospitals. The Ministry of Labour lists 42 pharmacy jobseekers on its 2024 rolls, while the Civil Service Bureau confirms 278 active applications from Bahrainis with bachelor's degrees in pharmacy—196 of whom are insured in the private sector, representing 70.5 per cent.

Supporters argue that hiring locally would strengthen medicine security across manufacturing, distribution, and specialist advisory roles. They also want national universities to expand specialist pharmacy programmes aligned with market needs, alongside investment in training to build a steady pipeline of Bahraini pharmacists.

Alawi said increasing posts would help reduce youth unemployment, improve the cultural fit of services, and direct spending toward developing national talent.

Parliament to debate ‘oldest-first’ housing allocations

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

A proposal to prioritise housing allocations based on application date goes before Parliament on Tuesday, as MPs consider moving away from entitlement-certificate dates and regional rules.

The motion, tabled by MP Zainab AbdulAmeer, would rank applicants according to the day each request was filed across all active projects. Supporters say this approach prevents newer applications from jumping the queue and eliminates uneven outcomes caused by area-based rules.

The proposal cites Articles 4 and 9(f) of the Constitution, highlighting a fairness standard for low-income housing.

The Ministry of Housing and Urban Planning says the current rules already prioritise filing date for ownership grants. Ministerial Decision 909 of 2015, in Article 79, allows the ministry to consider, on a case-by-case basis, factors such as the applicant and spouse's family location, past and current addresses, project site, applicant preferences, and any special circumstances deemed relevant by the minister.

Article 81 permits faster allocation after consultation with the Housing Committee in defined cases, including family size, household finances, health, living conditions, filing date, home location, and other special factors.

On this basis, the ministry says the motion's goal is already in practice, with seniority as the baseline and other criteria applied only when necessary. The Public Utilities and Environment Committee has reviewed the proposal and unanimously recommended its approval.

Domestic worker jailed for stealing BD778 from employer via BenefitPay App

The First High Criminal Court has sentenced a 39-year-old African domestic worker to one year in prison, fined her BD1,000, and ordered her permanent deportation after serving her sentence for stealing BD778 from her Bahraini employer's bank account using the BenefitPay app.

Court records show the defendant exploited her sponsor's hospitalization, using her employer's PIN code to withdraw the money. During a previous hearing, she confessed to unlawfully using her employer's electronic signature and bank-linked PIN in 2025 to access the app and seize the funds.

The victim, a woman in her sixties, discovered an unexpected BD180 transfer while checking her BenefitPay app.

She handed her phone to her sister, who found four additional unauthorized transactions totaling BD778.

Investigations traced the transfers to another African woman, who admitted receiving the amounts from the defendant and later returned the last payment. A second witness confirmed that the recipient's husband had transferred the money to the defendant's relatives.

MPs seek One-Stop hub to end duplicate inspections

Lawmakers propose a central hub to improve coordination

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

Businesses in the Kingdom are facing repeated inspections. Multiple government agencies often visit the same establishments without knowing previous checks have been done. This lack of coordination is creating delays and confusion. Lawmakers say a solution is urgently needed.

Mohammed Al Refai, MP

To address the problem, MPs have proposed a National Centre for Oversight and Inspection. The centre would act as a central hub for all government inspections and maintain a single national database.

The proposal, tabled by Mohammed Al Refai, Abdulwahid Qarata, Hassan Bukhamas, Hamad Al Doy, and Jameel Mulla Hassan, seeks a mechanism for coordination and follow-up among oversight bodies, in line with existing laws and regula-the plan would reduce repeated visits by different agencies, apply common rules and instructions, and improve the quality and efficiency of inspections. It would also enhance the business climate, protect consumers, prevent delays in permits and procedures, and track the implementation of judicial or administrative measures for breaches.

Mohammed Al Refai said the centre would serve as a database for inspectors' work, creating a clear coordination mechanism between relevant authorities. The plan also proposes that the government study the creation of an honour roll for Bahraini companies with clean inspection records.

Parliament to debate AI tools for diplomacy

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

Bahrain's Parliament will discuss the use of AI and crisis-forecasting tools in foreign affairs on Tuesday, as MPs weigh a proposal to integrate such technologies into diplomatic work.

The motion, filed by Khalid Buanaq and Ahmed Al Salloom, urges the government to deploy decision-support systems capable of analyzing large datasets, issuing early alerts of rising tensions, and speeding information flow between embassies and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, enabling timely and well-informed decisions.

The Information and E G o v - ernment Authority, on behalf of the Interior Ministry, studied four potential tools: an AI geopolitical analyst to detect trends and guide strategy, a training tool for negotiation and protocol, a crisis-management assistant for coordination, and a protocol manager to oversee virtual meetings with sensitivity to local customs. The study highlighted benefits such as improved accuracy and reduced time and costs if data are reliable and systems are properly maintained, while noting risks including data gaps, bias, cyber threats, and resistance to change.

The Foreign Ministry said it already operates a network linking Bahrain's diplomatic and consular posts to headquarters, is developing an AI virtual-assistant application, and uses platforms to analyze open data and produce reports. It added that it seeks to integrate any useful public AI tools.

The Ministry of Transportation and Telecommunications sees potential to enhance performance but warned against ceding final decision-making to machines. It stressed the need for strict data and ethics rules, local server storage, and caution against cyber threats, disinformation, and privacy risks.

Mr Buanaq said AI can scan information in real time, detect emerging risks, run scenario analyses, and help embassies coordinate with the ministry more effectively.

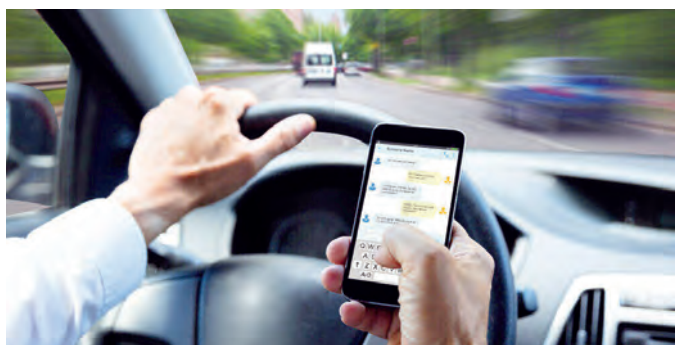

Parliament's Committee on

Foreign Affairs, Defence and National Security recommends approval of the proposal, citing the public interest benefits outlined.

Driver jailed six months for fatal accident while using mobile phone

Representative picture

Rehab Mohammad
TDT | Manama

The First High Criminal Court has sentenced a female driver to six months in prison, with bail set at BD100 to suspend the sentence, after she was found guilty of causing the death of a cleaner through negligent driving while distracted by her mobile phone.

The incident occurred on July 14, 2025, around 5 p.m., when the defendant drove from west to east. The victim, a cleaner, was pushing a garbage cart along the street when the driver, distracted by her phone and driving without proper caution, struck him. He was rushed to the hospital but later died from his injuries.

Traffic investigators found that the driver had failed to exercise due care, drove with an expired vehicle registration, and endangered pedestrians. The front-right side of her car hit the cart, pushing both the cart and the victim into a sandy area, resulting in fatal injuries.

During questioning, the defendant denied negligence, claiming she was familiar with the street and had been attentive. However, evidence confirmed that her mobile phone distraction contributed directly to the accident.

Heavy trucks told: stay in right-hand lane

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

A proposal to direct heavy trucks onto outer routes and enforce their use of the right-hand lane will be taken up in Parliament on Tuesday. Lawmakers backing the motion say the move is aimed at reducing congestion and speeding up the movement of goods, particularly on routes between Sitra and Khalifa Port.

The motion, submitted by Lulwa Al Rumaihi, Dr Munir Seroor, Hassan Bukhamas, Hanan Fardan, and Dr Mahdi Al Shuwaikh, calls on the government to designate alternative routes for large freight vehicles and strengthen enforcement of lane restrictions.

The Ministry of Interior said existing laws already require trucks to remain in the right-hand lane on main and secondary roads. Compliance is monitored by the General Directorate of Traffic and road cameras, and trucks are prohibited from certain roads during morning and evening peak hours.

The Ministry of Works said it had studied the proposal but noted that creating truck-only lanes or new outer roads is challenging due to limited space and the presence of public-service utilities. It added that traffic-safety standards guide road classification, speed limits, and vehicle types, and that trucks have already been kept out of many residential areas in coordination with the General Directorate of Traffic, municipal councils, and the Capital Trustees Board.

The Foreign Affairs, Defence and National Security Committee backed the proposal unanimously, citing public-interest benefits such as fewer jams and accidents, reduced disruption to road users, and faster delivery of goods.

Al Rumaihi said: "Truck-car mixing causes severe congestion, more accidents, and delays in the movement of goods. It has become necessary to tighten oversight and prevent trucks from changing lanes except when turning."

Mini Gulf — A Homecoming Vision for Kerala's Global Workforce

P. UNNIKRISHNAN

Many Keralites in Bahrain yesterday attended a public function addressed by Kerala Chief Minister Mr Pinarayi Vijayan. For the expatriate community, it felt deeply personal — a homecoming moment, albeit one away from home.

In Bahrain, Indians form one of the largest expatriate groups, with a vast majority coming from a single state — Kerala. Whether it's a businessman, doctor, engineer, accountant, nurse, or blue-collar worker, Keralites are everywhere. The story is no different across the GCC. Of the 3.5 million Indians living in the Gulf, more than 65 per cent are estimated to be from Kerala. They remain the invisible backbone of the region's workforce.

Critics have often accused Kerala's communist governments of offering fewer opportunities for entrepreneurs — traditionally branded as the bourgeoisie — in their efforts to uplift the proletariat. Yet, the irony is that Kerala today provides some of the highest wages for blue-collar workers in India. This is one reason why labourers from other states migrate to Kerala in search of better livelihoods.

Whatever the reason, Keralites have ventured across the world — perhaps driven by limited opportunities at home or simply by their instinctive risk-taking spirit. Coupled with the state's 100 per cent literacy rate, this has made Kerala a true land of skills.

But the world is changing fast. Localisation and nationalisation drives are reshaping job markets from the U.S. to Canada to the Gulf. Expatriates are being asked to return home, raising an important question: How can Kerala reabsorb this globally trained, disciplined, and skilled workforce into the state's economy?

It's time for Kerala to take a bold step — to create a "Mini Gulf Free Zone" within the state. Imagine a self-contained township or corridor where returning Non-Resident Keralites can invest, innovate, and collaborate to start enterprises — supported by special tax benefits, fast-track clearances, and world-class infrastructure, much like those found in the Gulf. A place where Gulf efficiency meets Kerala's intellect and culture.

Kerala receives nearly USD 23.4 billion in annual remittances. If even a small fraction is channelled into such ventures, it could redefine the state's economic future. "Mini Gulf" would honour decades of expatriate contribution and turn brain drain into brain gain, giving Keralites who built the Gulf a dignified platform to rebuild their homeland.

If the Chief Minister seriously considers this idea, it could bring new hope to many Non-Resident Keralites concerned about their future. And if this vision becomes a reality, the government could rightly take pride in initiating a model that truly embodies the spirit of socialism — by transforming the proletarians into the bourgeoisie, through opportunity, ownership, and enterprise.

Parliament to debate industrial development fund amid government concerns

A push to fund a new industrial body using Mumtalakat profits and public money comes before Parliament on Tuesday, as the Government warns of legal risks, overlap, and lack of feasibility studies.

sectors such as renewable energy, petrochemicals, green and blue hydrogen, manufacturing, and food, pharmaceutical, and micro-electronics industries.

The Government says similar roles already exist across the Economic Development Board, Tamkeen, the Ministry of Industry and Commerce, the Bahrain Investors Centre, and Bahrain Development Bank, which handle investment, policy, start-ups, and finance. A new Fund, it argues, would duplicate existing work.

Funding is another concern. Article 16 proposes drawing from Bahrain Mumtalakat Holding Company's profits and adding a state budget allocation. The Government warns that forcing Mumtalakat to finance an external body conflicts with its corporate objectives, blurs legal separation, and burdens the state budget without proper review.

Officials also point to the absence of economic, financial, and technical studies to assess value for money, funding sources, and risks. They stress any public finance initiative should be backed by clear analysis before new obligations are assumed.

The 21-article proposal empowers the Fund to offer long-term sharia-compliant loans and grants, finance feasibility studies, run specialist training centres, and commission sector research. It provides for a nine-member board and Chief Executive appointed by decree, conflict-of-interest rules, ministerial oversight, external audits, and financial disclosure for senior staff.

The bill originated with the Legislation and Legal Opinion Commission under constitutional and procedural provisions, which drafted the text and attached its legal opinion. The Government says it shares those observations and is exploring alternative ways to achieve the same goals within current law without overlapping existing institutions.

Dozens injured at state funeral for
Kenya opposition leader Odinga

Kenya Police officers control the crowd as supporters and mourners jostle for space during a stampede at an entrance to Nyayo Stadium, where the body of Kenya's opposition leader and former Prime Minister Raila Odinga lies in state

AFP | Nairobi

Dozens were injured, many seriously, at the state funeral of Kenya's revered opposition leader Raila Odinga yesterday as crowds rushed to see his coffin, journalists saw.

It came a day after at least three people were killed when security forces opened fire to disperse a crowd that had gathered to see Odinga's body in a separate ceremony.

The 80-year-old died from a suspected heart attack at a health clinic in southern India on Wednesday, triggering a huge outpouring of grief for a man known affectionately as "Baba" (father) by many Kenyans.

"He walked among us as a man but also charged among us as a movement for change, a movement for justice... for a better and greater Kenya," President William Ruto told the crowd gathered at Nairobi's Nyayo stadium for the funeral yesterday.

Moments later, a surge of mourners trying to reach the coffin on the pitch left dozens injured.

Journalists saw many had collapsed, some had broken bones or difficulty breathing after being crushed, with at least five ambulances on the pitch to help those hurt.

'The father'

Arguably the most important political figure of his generation in Kenya, Odinga served as prime minister from 2008 to 2013 but never succeeded in winning the presidency despite five attempts.

But he outlasted many rivals and is credited as a major player in returning Kenya to multi-party democracy in the 1990s and overseeing the widely praised constitution of 2010.

"I have freedom of speech because of Raila... I'm here because he is the father," said Paul Oloo, a supporter at the funeral.

Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky meets Donald Trump at the White House yesterday to push the US leader for long-range Tomahawk missiles that can strike deep inside Russia.

The meeting comes a day after Trump threw Zelensky a curveball by announcing a fresh summit with Russian President Vladimir Putin.

Trump also cast doubt on whether he would grant Ukraine's wish for the powerful Tomahawk cruise missiles, saying Washington could not "deplete" its own supplies.

Ukraine has been lobbying Washington for Tomahawks for weeks, arguing that they could help put pressure on Russia to end its brutal three-and-a-half year invasion.

But on the eve of Zelensky's visit, Putin warned Trump in a call against delivering the weapons, saying it could escalate the war and jeopardize peace talks.

Trump and Putin agreed to a new summit in the Hungarian capital Budapest, which would be their first since an August meeting in Alaska that failed to produce any kind of peace deal.

'Many questions'

Diplomatic talks on ending Russia's invasion have stalled since the Alaska summit.

Ukraine had hoped Zelensky's trip would add more pressure on Putin, especially by getting Tomahawks, which have a range of over 1,600 kilometers (1,000 miles).

But Trump, who once said he could end the war in Ukraine within 24 hours, appears set on pursuing a new diplomatic breakthrough to follow the Gaza ceasefire deal that he brokered last week.

The Kremlin said yesterday that "many questions" needed resolving before Putin and Trump could meet, including who would be on each negotiating team.

Hungary has guaranteed that Putin can attend the Budapest summit despite an International Criminal Court arrest warrant against him for alleged war crimes

"It could indeed take place within two weeks or a little later. There's an understanding that nothing should be put off," Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov said.

But the Kremlin appeared to brush off suggestions Putin would have difficulty flying over European airspace.

Hungary said yesterday it would ensure Putin could enter and "hold successful talks" with the US despite an International Criminal Court (ICC) arrest warrant against him for alleged war crimes.

"Budapest is the only suitable place in Europe for a USA-Russia peace summit," Hungarian President Viktor Orban said on X yesterday.

Zelensky's visit to Washington, Ukraine's main military backer, will be his third since Trump returned to office.

Venezuela deploys troops, reports of new US boat strike

Trump weighs land action

AFP | San Cristobal

Venezuela deployed thousands of troops near the Colombian border on Thursday in response to the US military buildup in the Caribbean, where US media reported a new strike on an alleged drug-smuggling boat.

The United States has sent several military vessels to the Caribbean Sea and launched a series of deadly naval strikes on boats in recent weeks, a campaign that experts say is illegal.

At least 27 people have been killed in the US strikes so far, with the military buildup sparking fears in Caracas that the ultimate goal is a change of government in Venezuela.

Caracas has launched military drills, including the deployment of 17,000 troops in Tachira state, which borders Colombia, according to the commander there, General Michell Valladares.

While President Donald

Trump weighs whether to expand US military action from the sea onto land, the admiral overseeing the naval strikes announced he will step down.

The latest boat attack on Thursday left survivors among those on board, media outlets including CBS, CNN and NBC reported, citing unidentified US officials.

The Pentagon did not respond immediately to an AFP request for information about the number of survivors or their condition.

In a significant escalation, Trump indicated on Wednesday he had authorized covert CIA action against Venezuela and was considering further action against the alleged drug cartels.

"We are certainly looking at land now, because we've got the sea very well under control," Trump told reporters in the Oval Office.

A day later, Admiral Alvin Holsey announced he would leave his position as head of US forces operating in Central and South America.

The head of US Southern Command gave no reason for retiring just a year into his tenure, which follows multiple top US military officers being dismissed in recent months.

Hamas vows to return all remains

Turkish experts await Israeli go ahead to help recover bodies in Gaza

● Hamas says committed to Gaza truce and returning hostage remains

● Process delayed by rubble and destroyed tunnels

AFP | Washington

Hamas insisted it was committed to returning all the hostage remains still unaccounted for under Gaza’s ruins, as a Turkish official said specialists dispatched to help find bodies were awaiting Israel’s authorisation to enter.

Responding to a call from Hamas for help locating the bodies of the 19 hostages, buried under the rubble alongside an untold number of Palestinians, Ankara sent specialists to help in the search.

A Turkish official said yesterday that dozens of disaster response specialists were at the Egyptian side of the border awaiting a green light from the Israeli government to enter the war-shattered Palestinian territory.

The 81-member team from Turkey’s Disaster and Emergency Management Authority (AFAD) is equipped with specialised search-and-rescue tools, including life-detection devices and trained search dogs.

“It remains unclear when Israel will allow the Turkish team

People watch as Palestinians use excavators to dig deep into the ground reportedly searching for bodies in Khan Yunis to enter Gaza,” the official said.

Under a ceasefire agreement between Israel and Hamas spearheaded by US President Donald Trump, Hamas returned 20 surviving hostages and the remains of nine of 28 known deceased hostages -- along with another body, which Israel said was not that of a former hostage.

In exchange, Israel freed nearly 2,000 Palestinian prisoners from its jails and halted the military campaign that it launched in Gaza after Hamas’s October 7, 2023 attack.

A Hamas source told AFP the Turkish delegation is expected to enter Gaza by Sunday.

The Turkish official noted that the recovery team’s complicated mission included locating both Palestinian and hostage bodies.

‘May require some time’

Israel’s Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu reaffirmed on Thursday his determination to “secure the return of all hostages” after his defence minister warned that the military would restart the conflict if Hamas failed to do so.

Hamas later insisted on “its commitment to the agreement and its implementation, including its keenness to hand over all remaining corpses”.

But it said the process “may require some time, as some of these corpses were buried in tunnels destroyed by the occupation, while others remain under the rubble of buildings it bombed and demolished”.

The families of the dead have fumed at Hamas’s inability to deliver their loved ones’ remains.

The main campaign group advocating for the hostages’ families has demanded that Israel “immediately halt the implementation of any further stages of the agreement as long as Hamas continues to blatantly violate its obligations”.

Trump appeared on Wednesday

The 81-member Turkish disaster team is equipped with specialized tools like life-detection devices and search dogs, but remains stalled on the Egyptian side of the border day to call for patience when it came to the bodies’ return, insisting Hamas was “actually digging” for hostages’ remains.

The ceasefire deal has so far seen the war grind to a halt after two years of agony for the hostages’ families, and constant bombardment and hunger for Gazans.

The UN’s World Food Programme said yesterday it had been able to move close to 3,000 tonnes of food supplies into Gaza since the ceasefire took hold.

But it cautioned it would take time to reverse the famine in the Gaza Strip, saying all crossings needed to be opened to “flood Gaza with food”.

Trump’s 20-point plan for Gaza calls for renewed aid provision, with international organisations eagerly awaiting the reopening of southern Gaza’s strategic Rafah crossing.

Army colonel sworn in as Madagascar president

Newly sworn in President of Madagascar Michael Randrianirina speaks during his swearing in ceremony

AFP | Antananarivo

Army colonel Michael Randrianirina was sworn in as Madagascar’s president yesterday, just days after a military power grab that sent ex-president Andry Rajoelina fleeing and raised international alarm about a new coup on the island.

Randrianirina led the CAPSAT army unit that mutinied and joined anti-government protesters before announcing the military had taken over after Rajoelina was impeached for desertion of duty on Tuesday.

“Today marks a historic turning point for our country,” he said after taking the presidential oath.

“We will work hand in hand with all the driving forces of the nation to draft a fine constitution... and to agree on new electoral laws for the organisation of elections and referendums,” he said.

He also thanked the youth for spearheading the protests that ousted Rajoelina and said the army had intervened at the request of the top court to “avoid anarchy and disorder”.

The ceremony in the capital Antananarivo was attended by military officers, politicians, representatives of the Gen Z youth-led protest movement and several foreign delegations including from the United States, the European Union, Russia and France.

Bangladesh parties sign landmark reform charter after protests

AFP | London

Bangladesh’s most powerful political parties signed a charter yesterday aimed at ensuring democratic reform after next year’s elections, following a mass uprising that toppled the previous government.

Nobel Peace Prize winner Muhammad Yunus, 85, has championed the document as his legacy, saying he inherited a “completely broken down” system and that reforms are needed to prevent a return to authoritarian rule.

“This is the moment we are ushering in a new Bangladesh,” Yunus told the ceremony, held in front of parliament in Dhaka. “We have been reborn.”

The South Asian nation of 170 million people has been in political turmoil since Sheikh Hasina was ousted as prime minister by a student-led revolt in August 2024.

The document, dubbed the “July Charter” after last year’s uprising, has sparked intense arguments between parties jostling for power ahead of polls slated for February.

Yunus, who has pledged to step down after elections, says it will strengthen checks and balances between the executive, judicial and legislative branches.

It includes proposals for a two-term limit for prime ministers and expanded presidential powers.

It also aims to enshrine the recognition of Bangladesh as a multi-ethnic and multi-religious nation.

Leaders of the Bangladesh Nationalist Party (BNP), seen as among the election front-runners, as well as Jamaat-e-Islami, the Muslim-majority nation’s largest Islamist party, signed the charter.

However, the National Citizen Party (NCP), made up of many students who spearheaded the uprising that ended Hasina’s rule, did not participate.

The document is expected to be ratified either by a referendum or by the new parliament to be elected.

Aramco F4 Saudi Arabian Championship Concludes Round 2 in Bahrain, Sets Sights on Jeddah

Belofsky, Al Azhari split Bahrain victories

TDT | Manama

Round 2 of the FIA-certified Aramco F4 Saudi Arabian Championship concluded yesterday at the Bahrain International Circuit. The event was promoted by ALTAWKILAT Motorsport under the supervision of the Saudi Automobile and Motorcycle Federation (SAMF).

The Bahrain International Circuit hosted the opening two rounds of the Aramco F4 Saudi Arabian Championship, each delivering two thrilling races that highlighted the rising standards of Saudi Arabia's FIA-accredited single-seater series. In Round 1, Kit Belofsky (PEAX) claimed victory in Race 1, while Emirati driver Adam Al Azhari (VALVOLINE) triumphed in Race 2. The momentum continued into Round 2, where Al

The Jeddah Corniche Circuit – the world's fastest street track – will host the remaining three rounds, bringing Saudi Arabia's premier F4 championship to a spectacular close in December Azhari secured the win in Race 3 before Belofsky sealed the weekend with an impressive victory in Race 4.

His Highness welcomed the return of the Aramco Saudi F4 Championship, expressing his pleasure with the level of organization delivered by Altawkilat Motorsport, as well as the impressive performances of the drivers and intense competition witnessed throughout the race.

His Highness said: "This championship is important for Saudi and international drivers alike, serving as a platform to prepare the next generation of Saudi drivers capable of competing regionally and globally. These championships contribute to developing drivers both physically and mentally, while enhancing their technical skills and readiness to face motorsport challenges with a high degree of professionalism.

He concluded by saying: "We look forward to continuing this momentum as the championship moves to Jeddah for the upcoming rounds, further reinforcing the Kingdom's position as a leading destination for motorsport, in line with Saudi Vision 2030's goals of empowering youth and developing the sports sector." With the Bahrain rounds now complete, attention turns to the Jeddah Corniche Circuit, the fastest street circuit in the world, which will host the remaining stages of the Aramco F4 Saudi Arabian Championship. Round 3 will take place on November 10-11, followed by Round 4 on November 14-15, before the season finale on December 5-6.

The championship continues to reflect the Saudi Automobile and Motorcycle Federation's commitment to developing and empowering young Saudi talent on and off-track by providing a competitive and professional environment that refines their skills and prepares them to succeed on the regional and international stages. It also underscores SAMF's vision to position Saudi Arabia as a global motorsport hub and strengthen the presence of Saudi drivers internationally, in alignment with the goals of Saudi Vision 2030, which continues to drive youth development and the growth of the national sports sector.

Lutfalla the Hero as Muharraq Hold Riffa

Bouhra brilliance lifts Khaldiya back on track

- Late penalty chaos stuns fans
- Ebrahim Lutfalla saves both in stoppage
- Khaldiya batter Bahrain SC ruthlessly

TDT | Manama

Week 5 of the Nasser bin Hamad Premier League produced fireworks as Muharraq and Riffa played out a fascinating 1-1 draw, while Al Khaldiya blew past Bahrain SC 4-0 to get their season back on track. Ebrahim Lutfalla's heroics in goal kept Muharraq in the game, while Moroccan Saifeddine Bouhra's brilliance powered Khaldiya and marked him as a player to watch this season.

At Khalifa Sports City Stadium, Soufiane Mahrouk looked set to give Muharraq an early lead after being brought down in the box, but the referee controversially waved away the penalty. In the 25th minute, Mahrouk was fouled again—this time by Samuel Conceicao—and Edimar Ribeiro da Costa “Juninho” calmly converted from the spot, continuing his fine start to the season. Riffa responded almost

Controversy and Drama

The tension hit fever pitch in stoppage time. Riffa were awarded a ninth-minute added-time penalty after Youssef Ben Souda was held back by Ahmed Rabeea. Ben Souda's first attempt was brilliantly saved by Muharraq goalkeeper Ebrahim Lutfalla. When the penalty was ordered to be retaken, controversy erupted within Riffa's ranks. Ben Souda wanted to take it again, but Rodrigo Yuri insisted on stepping up, delaying the restart as tempers flared. The indecision cost precious seconds, and Yuri's strike was also saved, leaving Muharraq to celebrate a hard-

Post-Match Reactions

Lutfalla spoke after the game with humility and confidence, saying “Alhamdulillah, a point is better than nothing. People will say saving penalties is down to luck, but they should see my record from last season”. Nandinho, Muharraq's coach, added: “The first penalty was very soft, but these are the games where our heroes make the difference.” Teammate AlHardan didn't mince words either, calling Lutfalla “the best keeper in the Gulf”.

Khaldiya Respond in Style

After a shaky start to the season and last week's defeat, Khaldiya bounced back in style, with Moroccan Saifed-

Mohammed Romaihi made it three with a sharp near-post finish, before Bouhra capped the rout late on with a superb strike off the post, having created the move himself.

Sunday's fixtures promise plenty of intrigue, with Malkiya chasing the chance to leapfrog Riffa and Al Ahli aiming to claim vital points against Al Shabab. Today, Budaiya take on Sitra at 4:35pm at Khalifa Sports City, followed by Al Hidd hosting Al Najma at 7pm at Shaikh Ali bin Mohammed Al Khalifa Stadium.
