HH Shaikh Nasser expressed thanks, appreciation, and gratitude to HM King Hamad, and for his royal directives.

Plan

He added that the plan also aims to complete the development of lands within the city as interconnected neighbourhoods, utilising adaptive and complementary uses of existing buildings.

HH Shaikh Nasser said that the plan includes commercial, office, and residential units, as well as green spaces, in addition to a pedestrian and sports pathway that harmoniously links new and existing neighbourhoods.

He confirmed that the project's vision ensures the creation of an integrated urban fabric that reflects the distinct character of Awali City and a contemporary lifestyle, as an extension of the city's civilisational heritage since 1934.

Limited internet returns in Iran

AFP | Paris

Limited internet access has returned in Iran, a monitor said yesterday, 10 days after authorities imposed a communications blackout that rights groups have said was aimed at masking a violent protest crackdown that killed thousands.

Demonstrations sparked in late December by anger over economic hardship exploded into protests widely seen as the biggest challenge to the Iranian leadership in years.

The rallies subsided after the crackdown that rights groups have called a "massacre" carried out by security forces under the cover of a communications blackout that started on January 8 as the protests grew in size and intensity.

Shura Council approves amendment to strengthen legal safety for children online

● Rules would bar under-15 kids from creating accounts on digital platforms

● Teenagers aged 15 to 18 would be able to use online services under controls

The Shura Council voted yesterday to allow a proposed amendment to Bahrain's Child Law that would set new rules for children using digital platforms, then sent it to the government to be redrafted as a bill.

The chamber discussed the Women and Child Affairs Committee's report on the proposal to amend parts of the Child Law, Law No. 37 of 2012.

The proposal was submitted by Dr Jihad Al Fadhel, Jamal Fakhro, Dalal Al Zayed, Dr Ali Al Rumaihi and Khaled Al Maskati.

Risks

Committee rapporteur Dr Jameela Al Salman said the proposal aims to "entrench the principle of protecting the child from digital risks as an extension of comprehensive legal protec-

She said it takes an age-based approach, moving between a ban and a rules-based model, and excludes education platforms from the scope.

The draft would bar children who have not completed 15 from creating accounts on digital platforms.

Added chapter would address threats, including exploitation, cyberbullying, and exposure to content that is not appropriate for their ages

LINA HABIB, SHURA COUNCIL MEMBER

Teenagers aged 15 to 18 would be able to use such services under controls meant to strengthen privacy and limit exposure to harmful content.

Platforms used for education would be excluded, with the services covered to be named by a decision from the Minister of Education.

Success would also depend on parents and guardians, and called for stronger awareness so families can guide children's use of websites and apps

HALA RAMZI, SHURA COUNCIL
MEMBER

During the debate, Shura Council member Hala Ramzi called the proposal "of the utmost importance", saying risks facing children now extend beyond the traditional setting into the online space.

She said success would also depend on parents and guardians, and called for stronger awareness so families can guide children's use of websites and apps.

Chapter

Shura Council member Lina Habib said the added chapter would address threats she said were not covered well enough under current law, including "exploitation, cyberbullying, and exposure to content that is not appropriate for their ages".

She pointed to the time children spend on phones, smart devices, electronic games and social platforms.

Habib also drew attention to the role set for the Telecommunications Regulatory Authority.

Amendment

"The amendment specified the Telecommunications Regulatory Authority as the body responsible for implementing the child digital safety chapter, and this is of major importance given its technical and oversight role in regulating the telecommunications sector, digital technologies and the internet," she said.

The committee said placing digital safety within the Child Law would keep child protection rules in one place and avoid splitting them across separate laws.

It said the technical parts, including age checks and administrative penalties, would be handled through secondary rules.

Shura Council backs adverts on public buildings under new rules

TDI | Manama

The Shura Council approved yesterday a draft amendment that lets government bodies sell advertising space on unused parts of public buildings, under rules to be set by ministerial decision, and voted to move it forward on an urgent basis.

The change amends Article (12) of Decree-Law No. (14) of 1973 on the regulation of advertisements, attached to Decree No. (27) of 2025.

It keeps the general ban on placing adverts on public buildings, or on parts of buildings set aside for public services, but adds an exception allowing adverts in designated vacant locations under terms to be laid down by the minister concerned with municipal affairs.

Basis

Ali Al Shehabi, rapporteur of the Shura Council's Public Utilities and Environment Committee, said the draft law was meant "to provide a legislative basis allowing government entities to invest vacant sites in public buildings or parts of buildings allocated to public services, by using them as marketing advertising spaces".

Minister of Municipalities Affairs and Agriculture, His Excellency Wael bin Nasser Al Mubarak, said the change was intended to improve the look of built-up areas and create a new advertising market while keeping the character of government buildings.

"The draft law aims, among other things, to develop the urban frontage of areas, open a new advertising market, and make best use of available sites in government buildings, while preserving their urban and functional character," he said, adding that the controls would be issued through a ministerial decision, with further detail in implementing rules.

Licensing

During the debate, Shura member Dalal Al Zayed described the amendment as an exception to a total ban, with licensing kept under ministry control, but asked what legal route would be open to a rejected applicant.

"When an advertising request is refused, will the refusal be open to challenge before the competent court, or not?" she said.

Second Deputy Chairperson of the Shura Council Dr. Jehad Al Fadhel backed tying the exception to minister-issued conditions, saying this keeps public buildings from losing "their dignity or neutrality".

Decision

She also urged that the ministerial decision require adverts to respect the built identity and public taste, and asked the government what income lift it expects for the ministry's budget.

The Council decided to send the bill to the Speaker of Parliament for referral to the Prime Minister ahead of submission to His Majesty King Hamad bin Isa Al Khalifa.

Shura approves reserve accounts

Thumbs up for audited annual reports and financial statements for two consecutive financial years

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

The Shura Council yesterday approved the audited annual reports and financial statements for Bahrain's Future Generations Reserve Account for the financial years ending 31 December 2022 and 31 December 2023.

It also agreed to forward the observations contained in the Financial and Economic Affairs Committee's two reports.

Yusuf Abdullah Al Hammoud, Undersecretary for Financial Affairs at the Ministry of Finance and National Economy, told members the reserve's assets reached $924 million in 2024.

He said amounts withdrawn during the Covid-19 period were fully covered through two sources: oil deductions transferred to the account and investment returns achieved over the same period.

Investment

Al Hammoud said the decree establishing the reserve tasks it with investing outside Bahrain and in non-dinar currencies, while domestic investment is handled by other bodies.

On a direct investment in pharmaceuticals, he said the factory produces 17 drug types, with around 15 licensed, and that products are being sold locally, including to Salmaniya Medical Complex and the military hospital, alongside sales across the region.

He said the ministry is working to exit the project in 2026 with favourable returns.

Al Hammoud also updated members on a tower project linked to the reserve, saying completion is expected in May 2026 and leasing has already begun, with interest from government and private entities in renting space.

Fees

On costs, he said fees rise because the account relies on external portfolio managers, and those fees increase as the size of investments grows.

He added that headcount had recently risen by about 15 employees, all Bahrainis.

“On portfolio liquidity, we are cautious and apply set measures. Part of our analysis is whether we can liquidate an investment within a short period, and we assess that before investing. Most of our holdings — shares, bonds and other assets managed through portfolio managers can be liquidated very very quickly,” Al Hammoud said.

Committee rapporteur Dr Anwar Khalifa Al Sadah said transfers received from the Ministry of Finance and National Economy for the reserve totalled $54,525,990 by the end of the 2022 financial year, while amounts received in 2023 were about $92.4 million.

Losses

He said 2022 recorded losses of about $71 million due to the revaluation of investments under the accounting basis used, compared with profits of roughly $51 million in 2021, linking the 2022 outcome to global market swings that reduced asset values and coincided with tighter monetary policy.

He said 2023 then recorded profits transferred to the reserve of about $64 million.

The committee said total assets rose to about $768.9 million at end-2023, up from about $614.3 million a year earlier, alongside an annual return of 8.4 per cent in 2023 after a negative return in 2022.

Expenses

It also referred to operating expenses of about $6.1 million in 2023, up from about $5.5 million in 2022, and said it was better to study paying those costs directly from the reserve account to ease recurring pressure on the state budget and clarify the account's financial position.

It also noted receivables described as “indebtedness” of

Yusuf Abdullah Al Hammoud

$13.6 million at end-2023, up from about $7.7 million a year earlier, and called for follow-up to collect sums due.

First Deputy Chairman Jamal Fakhro compared the reserve's returns with those of a regional fund and said: “One fund in the region invests $110 billion, with an annual return of 1.5 to 2.5 per cent. We have reached returns of 9 per cent, several times that figure, which means we manage our money well.”

He also raised the $450 million withdrawn from the reserve in 2019 and said: “The law states the amount should be covered when the emergency financial repercussions end. It should not be covered from the annual deductions or from investment returns, but from other resources.”

Aim

Committee chairman Khalid

YOU KNOW WHAT

The decree establishing the reserve tasks it with investing outside Bahrain and in non-dinar currencies, while domestic investment is handled by other bodies.

Al Maskati said: “The aim of presenting final accounts to the legislative authority is to allow it to exercise effective financial oversight and to raise observations at the right time.”

He criticised delays in handling the 2022 accounts, saying the government sent them to the elected chamber in September 2023 and they reached the Shura Council in October 2025, about 25 months later, adding: “Delays in presenting the final account practically remove the legislative purpose of granting the Council the right to comment.”

Security cooperation

His Excellency General Shaikh Rashid bin Abdullah Al Khalifa, Minister of Interior, received Shaikh Khalid bin Ali bin Jaber Al Khalifa, Deputy National Security Advisor and Deputy Secretary General of the Supreme Defence Council. The meeting discussed means to further develop cooperation and strengthen coordination mechanisms, thereby promoting security and stability and safeguarding the nation's achievements and resources.

BD62mln housing projects under way across Muharraq

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

Housing projects worth about BD62 million are under way across Muharraq Governorate, the Ministry of Housing and Urban Planning has told Parliament, with major builds in Hidd nearing completion and further work planned through 2026.

In a written reply to MP Hamad Al Doy, the ministry said the projects are funded through the State's 2025–2026 general budget and cover ownership apartments, housing units, plots and 'Masaken' apartments across the governorate, including Hidd and Busaiteen.

It said the work forms part of the housing targets in the Government Programme for 2023–2026.

Apartments

The ministry said its largest project now under construction in Hidd Housing City, comprising 740 ownership apartments, is about 90 per cent complete.

The cost is BD45.5 million and completion is expected in the first quarter of 2026.

A second project in Hidd Housing City, comprising 507 housing units, is 60 per cent complete, it said.

The cost is BD11.3 million, with completion expected in the third quarter of 2026.

A separate 'Masaken' project of 49 apartments has been completed, at a cost of BD2 million.

Plots

In North Busaiteen, the ministry said work is under way to provide 138 housing plots as part of alternative housing options.

The cost is BD2.9 million and completion is expected in the fourth quarter of 2026. It said these projects are financed through the approved 2025–2026 State general budget.

Future projects in Muharraq Governorate include 128 housing units and 376 ownership apartments in Hidd Housing City, funded through the State general budget, the ministry said. It also plans 522 ownership apartments in Muharraq (Block 207) and 700 ownership apartments in Busaiteen (Block 221), with the funding source to be decided after later technical studies.

The ministry also outlined the allocation rules.

Application

It said Decision No. 909 of 2015 on the Housing System, especially Article 79, makes seniority of application the main basis for allocating ownership services, with other factors used as guidance depending on the case.

These include where the applicant has lived, years of residence recorded in official data, the project location, where the applicant's parents and grandparents live, where the applicant's spouse's parents and grandparents live, the preference recorded in the application, and any special circumstances assessed by the minister.

Projects delivered with the private sector, it added, are allocated immediately through the ministry's financing programmes.

Reply

The reply also covered the Muharraq City Development Project, which the ministry described as a government redevelopment project aimed at preserving the city's historical and cultural identity and supporting the return of residents.

It said the first phase, funded by the government and due to be completed by the end of 2026, is expected to benefit 300 Bahraini families and includes restoring 16 heritage-value buildings along the Pearling Path for tourism and cultural uses, alongside the construction and development of 300 housing units.

Al Salam Bank marks 20 years of transformational growth and market leadership

Manama

Al Salam Bank marks its 20th anniversary, celebrating two decades of strategic evolution, institutional resilience, and sustained leadership within Bahrain's banking sector. Since its establishment on 19 January 2006, the Bank has evolved from a new market entrant into Bahrain's largest and fastest growing bank, driven by disciplined execution, a clear consolidation strategy, and a long-term value creation approach anchored in client trust and shareholder alignment.

From the outset, the Bank positioned itself as part of the broader regional banking evolution, developing governance, risk, and operating frameworks aligned with international best practices. Its early trajectory was shaped by a landmark Initial Public Offering in 2006 that attracted subscriptions exceeding BD 2.7 billion, setting a national record and signaling strong market confidence. Through successive economic cycles, including the 2008 global financial crisis, Al

Salam Bank preserved profitability and liquidity, reinforcing a balance-sheet-driven culture that laid the foundation for its emergence as a leader in banking consolidation and M&As. Over time, this strategic rigor enabled the Bank to successfully execute and integrate four major banking acquisitions in the Kingdom, including Bahrain Saudi Bank in 2009 and BMI Bank in 2014, establishing a consolidation track record unmatched in Bahrain's banking sector and reflective of financial resilience, governance strength, and execution discipline.

Transformation strategy

A pivotal inflection point came in 2018 when the Bank

As we look ahead, our ambition is to continue delivering sustainable value through disciplined growth, prudent investment in innovation, and long term partnerships that reinforce financial resilience, operating strength, and consistent execution excellence over the long term commenced the execution of an intricate transformation strategy. The Bank transitioned from measured organic growth to transformational scaling built on three pillars: market consolidation, digital scalability, and asset diversification. This strategy culminated in the acquisition of Ithmaar Bank's consumer banking portfolio in 2022 and Kuwait Finance House – Bahrain in 2024. Along with market leading organic growth, these transactions significantly expanded the Bank's footprint and grew its client base by more than ten folds since 2018. Through disciplined integration and regulatory alignment, Al Salam Bank emerged as a reference model for post-merger value realization.

The Bank's financial performance underscored the effectiveness of this approach. Total assets increased three folds, market capitalization tripled, profitability expanded by almost four times, and return on tangible equity reached 35.3%, placing the Bank among the region's fastest growing financial institutions. These results reflect not scale alone, but efficient cost structures, disciplined execution, and a technology-enabled operating model designed to support optimized and sustainable growth.

Europe hits back at Trump tariff threat over Greenland

● France's President Emmanuel Macron will ask the EU to activate a never-before-used "anti-coercion instrument" against the United States

● The bloc's weapon -- dubbed its trade "bazooka" -- allows for curbing imports of goods and services into the EU

● Trump has repeatedly expressed his desire to seize Greenland since returning to the White House for a second term

AFP | Brussels, Belgium

European leaders on Sunday slammed US President Donald Trump's threat of tariffs over their opposition to his designs on Greenland, warning transatlantic ties were at risk.

Several European countries -- including Denmark, of which Greenland is an autonomous territory -- emphasised they "stand united" against Trump's vow on Saturday to hit them with tariffs of up to 25 percent unless Greenland is ceded to the United States.

"Tariff threats undermine transatlantic relations and risk a dangerous downward spiral," Britain, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, the Neth-

What Trump said

From February 1, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, France, Germany, the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, and Finland would be subject to a 10-percent tariff on all goods sent to the United States, Trump said on his Truth Social platform.

"On June 1st, 2026, the Tariff will be increased to 25%. This Tariff will be due and payable until such time as a Deal is reached for the Complete and Total purchase of Greenland," he wrote.

"These Countries, who are playing this very dangerous game, have put a level of risk in play that is not tenable or sustainable," Trump said.

"Therefore, it is imperative that, in order to protect Global Peace and Security, strong measures be taken so that this potentially perilous situation end quickly, and without question." Trump added that he was "immediately open to negotiation with Denmark and/or any of these Countries."

People take part in a demonstration that gathered almost a third of the city population to protest against the US President's plans to take Greenland, in Nuuk, Greenland.

erlands, Norway and Sweden warned in a joint statement.

The European Union, which clinched a deal with Washington in July for most EU exports to face a 15-percent US levy, has called an extraordinary meeting of its ambassadors in Brussels on Sunday.

France's President Emmanuel Macron will ask the EU to activate a never-before-used "anti-coercion instrument" against the United States if Trump makes good on his tariff threat, Macron's aides said.

The bloc's weapon -- dubbed its trade "bazooka" -- allows for curbing imports of goods and services into the EU, a market of 27 countries with a combined population of 450 million.

Trump has repeatedly expressed his desire to seize

Greenland since returning to the White House for a second term. His rhetoric towards that goal has hardened since he ordered a military operation against Venezuela early this month to capture its leader, Nicolas Maduro.

'Blackmail'

Trump and his administration have argued that Greenland coming under US rule would serve American "national security".

He and his aides have also argued that Denmark -- although a NATO ally -- would be unable to defend Greenland should Russia or China ever seek to invade.

Denmark and several of its European NATO allies responded by recently sending small numbers of military personnel to Greenland for an exercise, to which the United States was also invited.

Some German soldiers were seen boarding a flight on Sunday to leave Greenland after completing a reconnaissance mission.

And on Saturday, thousands of people in Greenland and in Denmark held protests to declare that they did not want the Arctic island to fall under US control.

"Make America Go Away" read the wording on caps worn by many of the protesters, riffing on Trump's "Make America Great Again" slogan.

Trump responded with a threat to slap goods coming into the US from Britain, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, France, Germany, the Netherlands, and Finland with 10-percent tariffs starting February 1.

The tariffs would rise to 25 percent from June 1 "until such time as a Deal is reached for the Complete and Total purchase of Greenland", Trump wrote on his social media platform, Truth Social.

Even Trump's European allies balked at the threat.

Italy's far-right Prime Minister, Giorgia Meloni, called the threatened tariffs a "mistake".

"I believe that imposing new sanctions today would be a mistake," she told journalists during a trip to Seoul, adding that "I spoke to Sunday he would visit fellow Donald Trump a few hours ago and told him what I think".

Dutch Foreign Minister David van Weel meanwhile called Trump's threat an "inexplicable" form of "blackmail".

British Prime Minister Keir Starmer was planning to discuss the situation with Trump "at the earliest opportunity", UK culture minister Lisa Nandy told the BBC, calling the president's tariff threat "wrong".

"We believe it's deeply unhelpful, and we believe it's counterproductive, and the prime minister has not shied away from making that clear," she said.

Trade war fear

France's Agricultural Minister Annie Genevard warned that tariffs would hurt Washington, too. "In this escalation of tariffs, (Trump) has a lot to lose as well, as do his own farmers and industrialists," she told broadcasters Europe 1 and CNews.

Norway, targeted by Trump's tariffs threat but, like Britain, not an EU member, said it was not currently looking at retaliation against US goods.

"I think one needs to stop and think so that a trade war can be averted that would lead to a downward spiral. Nobody would win," Norwegian Prime Minister Jonas Gahr Store told NRK television.

Faced with the increased pressure over Greenland, Denmark's Foreign Minister Lars Lokke Rasmussen announced Sunday he would visit fellow NATO members Norway, Britain and Sweden in the coming days to discuss the alliance's Arctic security policy.

Cuba holds defense panel meeting amid tension with US

Demonstrators take part in the “Anti-Imperialist” protest in front of the US Embassy against the US incursion in Venezuela, where 32 Cuban soldiers lost their lives, in Havana

AFP | Havana, Cuba

Cuba held a meeting of a key national defense committee to assess its readiness for war, state-run media said Sunday as tensions run high with the United States after the ouster of Venezuela’s Nicolas Maduro. President Donald Trump has been ramping up pressure on Cuba, one of the few Latin American countries still run by an authoritarian leftist administration after US special forces seized Havana’s ally Maduro and his wife on January 3. The National Defense Committee is supposed to take control of Cuba in case of war or a natural disaster. It met Saturday “to increase and perfect the level of preparation and cohesion of the leadership and personnel organs,” said a statement published in state media. The goal of the meeting was “to analyze and approve plans and measures for shifting to a state of war” in the event of conflict with another country, the statement added without giving details. It was the first time the committee, led by President Miguel Diaz-Canel, has met since the US attack on Venezuela. Among the dozens killed in the raid were 32 Cuban soldiers, some of them assigned to Maduro’s security detail. Diaz-Canel last week reacted defiantly to Trump’s threat to Cuba to “make a deal” or pay the price in the aftermath of Maduro’s ouster. Diaz-Miguel denied Trump’s assertion that the two countries were holding talks. Trump has vowed to cut off all oil and money Venezuela had been providing to Cuba’s ailing economy.

Israel PM holds coalition meeting after objecting to panel

AFP | Jerusalem, Undefined

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu convened a meeting of his ruling coalition partners yesterday after objecting to the composition of a Gaza advisory panel formed by the White House, according to an official and media reports. The executive board, described as having an advisory role, includes Turkish Foreign Minister Hakan Fidan and Qatari diplomat Ali Al-Thawadi, alongside other regional and international officials. Late on Saturday, Netanyahu’s office objected to the composition of the executive board. “The announcement regarding the composition of the Gaza

Despite a ceasefire and increased aid deliveries, acute food insecurity and severe humanitarian needs remain extremely high in the Gaza Strip, with most families still struggling to access adequate food, clean water, medical care and shelter. United Nations agencies say that while famine conditions have eased, the majority of the population continues to face critical shortages of food and other essentials, and uninterrupted humanitarian access is still essential to prevent conditions from worsening again

Executive Board, which is subordinate to the Board of Peace, was not coordinated with Israel and runs contrary to its policy,” the office of Netanyahu said. “The Prime Minister has instructed the Foreign Affairs Minister to contact the US Secretary of State on this matter.” It did not explain the reason for its objection, but Israel has previously objected strongly to any Turkish role in post-war Gaza. In addition to naming Turkey’s foreign minister to the executive board, Trump has also invited Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan to join the overarching Board of Peace. Media reports said that leaders of the country’s ruling coalition were scheduled to meet on Sunday to examine the composition of the executive board.

“There is a meeting scheduled of the coalition at 10:00 am (0800 GMT),” the spokesman of Netanyahu’s Likud Party told AFP, declining to provide further details. Alongside Likud, the coalition includes the Religious Zionist Party led by far-right Finance Minister Bezalel Smotrich and Otzma Yehudit (Jewish Power) led by far-right National Security Minister Itamar Ben Gvir.

Iraq announces complete withdrawal of US-led coalition from federal territory

Excludes the autonomous northern Kurdistan region

● Coalition forces had withdrawn from Iraqi bases under a 2024 deal

● US and allied troops had been deployed to Iraq and Syria since 2014

AFP | Baghdad, Iraq

Iraq said yesterday US-led coalition forces had finished withdrawing from bases within the country's federal territory, which excludes the autonomous northern Kurdistan region.

"We announce today... the completion of the evacuation of all military bases and leadership headquarters in the official federal areas of Iraq of advisers" of the US-led coalition, the military committee tasked with overseeing the end of the coalition's mission said.

With the withdrawal, "these sites come under the full control of Iraqi security forces", it said in the statement, adding that they would transition to "the stage of bilateral security relations with the United States".

The vast majority of coalition forces had withdrawn from Iraqi bases under a 2024 deal between Baghdad and Washington outlining the end of the mission in Iraq by the end of 2025 and by September 2026 in the Kurdistan region.

US and allied troops had been deployed to Iraq and Syria since 2014 to fight the Islamic State group, which had seized large swathes of both countries to declare their so-called "caliphate".

The jihadist group was territorially defeated in Iraq in 2017 and in Syria in 2019, but continues to operate sleeper cells.

The vast majority of coalition troops withdrew from Iraq over previous stages, with only advisers remaining in the country.

The military committee on Sunday said Iraqi forces were now "fully capable of preventing the reappearance of IS in Iraq and its infiltration across borders".

"Coordination with the international coalition will continue with regards to completely eliminating IS's presence in Syria," it added.

It pointed to "the coalition's role in Iraq offering cross-border logistical support for operations in Syria, through their presence at an airbase in Erbil", the capital of Iraq's Kurdistan region.

In December, two US soldiers and a civilian interpreter were killed in Syria in an attack blamed on IS, sparking fears of a resurgence in the country.

The statement added that anti-IS operations would be coordinated with the coalition through the Ain al-Assad base in Anbar province in western Iraq.

IS attacks in Iraq have massively declined in recent years, but the group maintains a presence in the country's mountainous areas.

A UN Security Council report in August said: "In Iraq, the group has focused on rebuilding networks along the Syrian border and restoring capacity in the Badia region."

Indonesia rescuers find body from plane crash

AFP | Makassar, Indonesia

Rescuers found debris and one body on Sunday from a small plane that crashed in eastern Indonesia with 10 people on board, officials said.

The Indonesian Air Transport turboprop plane lost contact with the air traffic controller on Saturday afternoon while en route from Yogyakarta to the city of Makassar on Sulawesi island.

Among the debris, the joint search and rescue team found what is believed to be "the fuselage, the tail section, and the windows", local official Muhammad Arif Anwar told a press briefing.

Joint search and rescue teams climb towards the suspected crash site of an Indonesia Air Transport turboprop plane that lost contact a day earlier while flying from Yogyakarta to Makassar, in the Bulusaraung Mountains, South Sulawesi, Indonesia,

The body of one victim was found on a steep mountain slope in the same area, said Arif, head of the Makassar search and rescue agency.

"One male victim was found... at a depth of roughly 200 meters (656 feet) in the ravine and near aircraft debris," he said.

Another local rescue official, Andi Sultan, confirmed a body had been recovered, saying the remains would be evacuated on Monday due to poor weather conditions.

A unit was also deployed by air to search for the missing passengers, according to Arif.

The plane crashed into Mount Bulusaraung in Bantimurung-Bulusaraung National Park, which borders the city of Makassar, Arif said.

Three government workers from the ministry of marine affairs and fisheries were on board the plane along with seven crew members.

Minister Sakti Wahyu Trenggono said the employees were on a mission to conduct aerial monitoring of resources in the area.

The search on land and by air involved more than 1,000 people including members of the air force, police and volunteers.

Local military chief Bangun Nawoko told reporters that the search was hindered by harsh terrain and fog.

Iran considers 'gradually' restoring internet

Government officials have said calm has been restored

● Local messaging applications "will soon be activated" on Iran's domestic intranet

● Outgoing international calls have been possible since Tuesday

AFP | Paris, France

Iranian authorities have said they are considering "gradually" restoring internet access after imposing an unprecedented communications shutdown 10 days ago, which rights groups say masked a violent protest crackdown that killed thousands.

Demonstrations sparked in late December by anger over economic hardship exploded into protests widely seen as the biggest challenge to the Iranian leadership in years.

Iranian officials have said the demonstrations were peaceful before turning into "riots" and blamed foreign influence, namely from Iran's foes the United States and Israel.

The rallies subsided after the crackdown that rights groups have called a "massacre" carried out by security forces under

A protester burns fake US dollars during a pro-Iranian regime demonstration in front of the Iranian consulate in Istanbul the cover of a communications blackout that started on January 8 as the protests grew in size and intensity.

Government officials have said calm has been restored, with schools reopening on Sunday -- Iran's weekend falling on Thursday and Friday -- after a week of closure.

Late Saturday, the Tasnim news agency reported "the relevant authorities announced that internet access would also be gradually restored", but gave no further details.

Citing an unnamed "informed source", the agency said local messaging applications "will soon be activated" on Iran's domestic intranet.

On Sunday morning, AFP was able to connect to the internet from its Tehran office, though the vast majority of internet providers and mobile internet remain cut.

Outgoing international calls have been possible since Tuesday, and text messaging was restored Saturday morning.

For days, text messages and international phone calls -- and at times even local calls -- were cut off. Iran has since been relying on its intranet, which has supported local media websites, ride-hailing apps, delivery service and banking platforms.

NASA moves moon rocket to launch pad ahead of Artemis 2 mission

The crew of NASA's Artemis II mission: NASA astronauts Christina Koch, Reid Wiseman, Victor Glover, and CSA (Canadian Space Agency) astronaut Jeremy Hansen.

AFP | United States

NASA on Saturday rolled out its towering SLS rocket and Orion spacecraft as it began preparations for its first crewed mission to the Moon in more than 50 years.

The maneuver, which takes up to 12 hours, will allow the US space agency to begin a string of tests for the Artemis 2 mission, which could blast off as early as February 6.

The immense orange and white Space Launch System rocket and the Orion vessel were slowly wheeled out of the Vehicle Assembly Building at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida, and painstakingly moved four miles (6.5 kilometers) to Launch Pad 39B.

If the tests are all satisfactory, three Americans and one Canadian will head to the Moon sometime between February 6 and the end of April -- they will not land, but instead fly around Earth's satellite.

The mission -- which would last about 10 days -- would be a huge step towards Americans once again setting foot on the lunar surface, a goal announced by President Donald Trump in his first term.

"We're making history," Artemis 2 mission management team chair John Honeycutt told a press conference on Friday.

'Pretty pumped'

US astronauts Reid Wiseman, Victor Glover and Christina Koch, along with Canada's Jeremy Hansen, were on site Saturday for the rocket's rollout.

"I'm actually pretty pumped to see that," Hansen told reporters. "In just a few weeks, you're going to see four humans fly around the moon, and if we're doing that now, imagine what we can do next."

Glover added: "We're swinging for the fence, trying to make the impossible possible."

Before the mission can take off, engineers must ensure the SLS rocket is safe and viable. After a battery of tests, a pre-launch simulation will be carried out.

The uncrewed Artemis 1 mission took place in November 2022 after multiple postponements and two failed launch attempts.

NASA hopes to put humans back on the Moon as China forges ahead with a rival effort that is targeting 2030 at the latest for its first crewed mission.

Its uncrewed Chang'e 7 mission is expected to be launched in 2026 for an exploration of the Moon's south pole, and testing of its crewed spacecraft Mengzhou is also set to go ahead this year.

NASA is hoping that the Moon could be used to help prepare future missions to Mars.

But the program has been plagued by delays.

The US space agency surprised many late last year when it said Artemis 2 could happen as soon as February -- an acceleration explained by the Trump administration's wish to beat China to the punch.

Kurdish forces withdraw from Syria's largest oil field as govt forces advance

AFP | Tabqa, Syria

Kurdish-led forces withdrew yesterday from Syria's largest oil field, a conflict monitor said, as government troops extended their grip over swathes of territory in the country's north and east.

The push came after President Ahmed al-Sharaa issued a decree granting the Kurds official recognition in an apparent goodwill gesture, even as his Islamist government seeks to assert its authority across Syria after the ousting of long-time ruler Bashar al-Assad in 2024.

The Kurds' de facto autonomous administration, which controls large parts of the northeast, has said the announcement fell short, while the implementation of a deal to integrate Kurdish forces into the state has been stalled for months.

Early Sunday, the Kurdish-led Syrian Democratic Forces (SDF) suddenly withdrew "from all areas under its control in the eastern Deir Ezzor countryside, including the Al-Omar and Tanak oil fields", the head of the Syrian Observatory for Human Rights, Rami Abdel Rahman, told AFP.

He said the SDF withdrawal in Deir Ezzor and Raqa provinces came as "fighters from local tribes, including Arab

Members of the Kurdish Internal Security Forces known as "Asayish", and residents rally during a demonstration against the attacks by the Syrian government forces and in support of Kurdish fighters in Qamishli, the main Kurdish city in the country's northeast fighters who are part of the SDF, advanced in coordination with government troops".

The areas are now effectively controlled by government forces, the Observatory said.

Al-Omar is the country's largest oil field, and was home to the United States' largest base in Syria. It had been controlled by Kurdish-led forces since 2017 after the Islamic State jihadist group was pushed out.

The Kurds' reported withdrawal from Al-Omar follows the government's announcement that it had retaken two other oil fields, Safyan and Al-Tharwa, in Raqa province.

The government's push has so far captured Arab-majority areas that came under Kurdish control during the fight against IS, whose defeat in Syria was secured with the help of the US-backed SDF.

Energy Minister Mohammad al-Bashir said the return of the area's resources to state control "means opening the door wide for reconstruction, revitalising agriculture, energy and trade".

Artemis 3, currently scheduled for 2027, is expected to be pushed back, as industry experts say Elon Musk's SpaceX is behind on delivering the Starship megarocket needed for the mission.

No Venus fairytale in Melbourne as Alcaraz, Sabalenka win openers

Top seeds cruise to victory while Venus Williams sets a historic age record in defeat

● Alcaraz beats home hope Walton in straight sets

● Sabalenka defeats French debutant 6-4, 6-1

● Venus Williams, 45, falls in marathon to Danilovic

● Zverev recovers from poor start to advance

AFP | Melbourne

Top-ranked Carlos Alcaraz and Aryna Sabalenka launched their Australian Open title bids with straight-sets wins but there was no fairytale for 45-year-old Venus Williams yesterday.

On a hot Melbourne day in which a ball girl fainted, last year's men's beaten finalist Alexander Zverev dropped a set before easing into the second round.

World number one Alcaraz joined him, the Spaniard beating 81st-ranked home player Adam Walton 6-3, 7-6 (7/2), 6-2 on Rod Laver Arena.

Alcaraz, who is desperate to win the Australian Open to complete the career Grand Slam of all four majors, plays Germany's Yannick Hanfmann next.

"I think this kind of level and the difficulties in the first round is pretty good for me," said Alcaraz, who was pushed all the way in the second set.

"But overall just happy. I'm pleased about the level that I played today," added Alcaraz,

Spain's Carlos Alcaraz hits a return against Australia's Adam Walton who was playing his first competitive match for nine weeks.

Alcaraz has won the US Open, Wimbledon and French Open, but Melbourne is the one Grand Slam missing from his impressive resume.

The furthest he has gone at the opening major of the year is the quarter-finals and he has made it clear that dethroning rival Jannik Sinner as champion is his main aim for 2026.

If he does so, the 22-year-old would surpass compatriot Rafael Nadal to become the youngest man to complete the career Grand Slam.

Earlier, in steamy conditions approaching highs of 30C, Zverev threatened to implode in losing the first set to Canada's Gabriel Diallo.

But the 28-year-old German recovered to win 6-7 (1/7), 6-1, 6-4, 6-2 and next meets Australian Alexei Popyrin or Alexandre Muller of France.

Asked how he reset from his first-set wobble, the third seed said: "I was thinking it can't get worse than that."

British qualifier Arthur Fery scored the first big upset by taking down 20th seed Flavio Cobolli of Italy, 7-6 (7/1), 6-4, 6-1.

Novak Djokovic, who is chasing a record 25th major title, begins his title assault on Monday, as does three-time runner-up Daniil Medvedev.

Organisers said that a record 100,000 people came through the gates, although there were complaints about long queues in the heat.

Underlining how fierce it was on court, a ball girl collapsed during the match between Zeynep Sonmez and Ekaterina Alexandrova, with both players rushing to help her.

Venus makes history

Sabalenka began her bid for a third Australian Open title in four years with a patchy start before coming good in the second set.

The world number one, stunned by Madison Keys in the 2025 final, ultimately had too much power, guile and quality for French wildcard Tiantsoa Rakotomanga Rajaonah.

But the Belarusian took time to find her touch, making a series of unforced errors before taming the spirited 20-year-old 6-4, 6-1 on Rod Laver Arena.

"It is always tricky playing someone young, someone you don't know, and a lefty (left-hander)," said the top seed and title favourite.

Sabalenka said she had felt added pressure with tennis legends Roger Federer and Rod Laver court-side.

"I hope you guys enjoyed watching me play, I hope you enjoyed it even a little bit," she said in her on-court interview, addressing the duo.

Sabalenka faces Chinese qualifier Bai Zhuoxuan next.

At 45, Venus Williams was the oldest woman ever to play the Australian Open. She showed flashes of brilliance but ultimately lost to 23-year-old Olga Danilovic in a grueling match lasting over two hours

Also safely through was seventh-seeded Italian Jasmine Paolini as she outclassed Belarusian qualifier Aliaksandra Sasnovich 6-1, 6-2.

Elina Svitolina, the Ukrainian 12th seed, eased past Cristina Bucsa of Spain 6-4, 6-1.

But seeded fellow Ukrainians Dayana Yastremska and Marta Kostyuk were dumped out early, as was the American great Williams.

The seven-time major champion was the oldest woman to play in the history of the Australian Open.

She showed glimpses of what once made her world number one, but ultimately fell after an epic battle with an opponent more than 20 years her junior.

Olga Danilovic of Serbia outlasted the veteran 6-7 (5/7), 6-3, 6-4 over a gruelling 2hrs 17mins.

"It was such a great game, such a great moment. The energy from the crowd was amazing. That lifted me up so much," Williams said.

Bahrain's Muharraq Club face Saudi Arabia's Al Ittihad tonight at 8 PM in Jeddah, in the sixth and final round of the 2025-26 FIBA WASL Gulf League.

The Red Wolves enter the match with 7 points from two wins and three losses, including a narrow 84-83 defeat to UAE's Shabab Al Ahli in their most recent outing. That loss, decided by a game-winning shot from Deshawndre Washington in the final seconds, saw Muharraq drop to third place in Group A, though they have already secured a spot in the Qualification to the Semi-Finals, where they will face Kuwait SC.

Al Ittihad lead the group with 8 points, holding a 4-1 record, and will look to finish the group stage on a high note. For Peter Schomers' side, the result is largely symbolic, but the team aims to maintain competitive form ahead of the playoffs, despite key injuries to Timmy Bond and Roche, which could impact their rotation.

Earlier in the tournament, Peter Schomers' side showed resilience, keeping games close against top sides, including a dramatic battle with Shabab Al Ahli where they briefly led late in the fourth quarter. The team's core, led by Bond, Nick West, and Kerwin Roach Jr., has shown plenty of promise that will be vital in the postseason.

Current standings ahead of tonight's final round are: Al Ittihad on 9 points, Shabab Al Ahli 8, Muharraq 7, and Kazma SC 6. While the final group match may be "a formality" for Muharraq, it also offers an opportunity to build momentum and fine-tune their game for the upcoming playoff clash.

Bahrain’s Olympic 3000m steeplechase champion Winfred Yavi lived up to her status as the pre-race favourite at the 11th World Athletics Cross Country Tour Gold meeting, claiming first place in the women’s 7.62km race at the Cross Internacional Juan Muguerza in Elgoibar, Spain yesterday. Yavi crossed the line in 25:23, ahead of Kenya’s Sheila Jebet and Tunisia’s Marwa Bouzayani, who finished second and third respectively.

From the opening meters, Yavi surged to the front, asserting control over the race with remarkable speed and endurance. Only Jebet and Bouzayani could initially stay with her, while a chasing pack, including Britain’s Lucy Jones and Kate O’Neill, and Spain’s Isabel Barreiro and Angela Viciosa, trailed by a few seconds. By 2.1km, Bouzayani began to fall behind, and Yavi pulled clear of Jebet before the third kilometre. She continued to extend her lead, covering the penultimate 2.2km loop in 6:57, and crossed the finish line unchallenged, 1:06 ahead of Jebet and 1:25 ahead of Bouzayani.

The 26-year-old Olympic champion, World champion, Diamond League Final winner, and World Championships silver medallist, has been in outstanding form this season, highlighted by a victory in Seville last November and a steeplechase-5000m double at the Islamic Games in Riyadh. “I’m delighted,” said Yavi. “In Elgoibar, the people are so nice and they make me feel special. I came here very well prepared both physically and mentally. Winning here after finishing three years ago is a great success for me.”

The Cross Internacional Juan Muguerza is renowned for its depth, having previously hosted legends such as Haile Gebrselassie, Selemon Barega, and Linet Masai. Yavi’s success

Bahrain maintained their flawless start at the 22nd Asian Men’s Handball Championship yesterday with a convincing 40-29 victory over China in their second Group B match at the Saad Al Abdullah Sports Hall in Kuwait City. The result not only keeps the kingdom unbeaten, but also all but secures their qualification for the main round, with just one preliminary game remaining.

Under Swedish coach Robert Hedin, the Bahrainis were dominant from the first throw, combining rapid ball movement with aggressive defensive pressure that disrupted the Chinese attack. Jassim Khamis led the charge with eight goals, earning Man of the Match honors, while Mohamed Habib Ahmed and Mohamed Nasser Mohamed added six goals each. Star player Salman Al Showaikh contributed four goals and created key scoring opportunities, helping Bahrain steadily pull away. Other contributors included Ahmed Kadhem (4), Qasim Qambar (2), Ali Alasheeri (2), Hasan Madan (2), Sayed Ali Al Sayyad (2), and single goals from Jaafar Farsan, Mohamed Rabea, Ali Shubbar, Abdulla Abdulkarim, and Ali Mohamed.

China struggled to mount a response, managing only sporadic bursts of scoring. Bahrain took a commanding 20-10 lead by halftime and maintained control throughout the second half, ultimately closing the match with an 11-goal margin. The victory cements Bahrain’s position in the main round and highlights their pedigree as gold medal winners from the sixth Islamic Solidarity Games.

The tournament also serves as the qualifier for the 30th IHF Men’s Handball World Championship in Germany 2027. The single round-robin group stage sees the top two teams advance, with the semi-finalists determined on January 27, all of whom will qualify for the World Championship. Teams not advancing will compete for the Martyr Fahad Al Ahmad Al Sabah Cup.

Bahrain return to action tomorrow at 4pm against Iraq in a crucial clash that could decide Group B’s top spot, with both teams currently undefeated on 4 points, while China and Jordan are yet to score. The championship runs until January 29 in Kuwait City, featuring 15 nations in total.
