MOVIE REVIEW

The Current War: A solid historical drama drowned in cinematic tricks

The battle over rival electricity systems fought out between Edison and fellow inventor George Westinghouse is illuminating

● Benedict Cumberbatch transmits medium voltage portrait of Thomas Edison

● There's something worthwhile to discover at the film's heart, it's just a question of whether it's worth the effort of tuning out all the unnecessary noise

The Current War is a 2017 American historical drama film directed by Alfonso Gomez-Rejon and written by Michael Mitnick.

The film stars Benedict Cumberbatch, Michael Shannon, Nicholas Hoult, Tom Holland, Katherine Waterston, Simon Manyonda, and Tuppence Middleton, and depicts the war of the currents between Thomas Edison and George Westinghouse. Martin Scorsese serves as an executive producer on the film.

ronto International Film Festival on September 9, 2017. Originally to be distributed by The Weinstein Company in November 2017, the film was shelved and sold off following the Harvey Weinstein sexual abuse allegations.

It was eventually bought by Lantern Entertainment (the successor of TWC), who then sold the domestic distribution rights to 101 Studios.

On Rotten Tomatoes, the film holds an approval rating of 32% based on 44 reviews, with an average rating of 4.74/10. The website's critical consensus reads:

The opening text of 'The Current War' describes the events it's about to portray as "a race to create the modern world". If true, then the race is circuitous, and changes the number of its competitors part-way through "The Current War is powered by an outstanding cast and an intriguing, history-inspired story, which makes this drama's low wattage all the more shocking."

On Metacritic, the film has a weighted average score of 44 out of 100, based on 13 critics, indicating "mixed or average reviews".

David Rooney for The Hollywood Reporter wrote: "For all its aggressive energy, The Current War is an uninviting bore, making it unlikely to measure up as the kind of Oscar-baity prestige entry The Weinstein Co. obviously had in mind."

Andrew Barker of Variety wrote: "Benedict Cumberbatch and Michael Shannon face off in this flashy but unilluminating story of America's early electrical system."

Dan Jolin of Empire magazine called the film a "stylish portrayal of a literal power struggle based on truly interesting historical figures and events. But it tries to take in too much in too little time, when all it needed was to centre on Edison and Westinghouse."

Peter Bradshaw of The Guardian gave the film 3 out of 5 stars and wrote: "This a watchably stylised period film, with interesting visual setpieces and faces looming up at us out of intricately contrived backgrounds." He concluded that the film "is illuminating – but perhaps not quite as much as it could have been."
