Qatar urged to stop rhetoric of hatred

● The UAE called Doha to review its practices, activities and national laws in relevant to terrorism issues.

Dubai

The United Arab Emirates, UAE, has urged Qatar to stop programmes that promote hate rhetoric and incitement of hatred in its local media, saying the trend threatens the security of countries in the region, including Qatar itself.

A delegation from the Al Ghufra tribe has taken their case to the 39th session of the UN Human Rights Council in Geneva.

While delivering the UAE statement before the forty-second regular session of the Human Rights Council held in Geneva to discuss the Universal Periodic Review, UPR, of Qatar,

Amira Al Amri of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and International Cooperation, said the UAE had taken note of conclusions made by the UPR team of experts and urged Qatar once again to pay proper attention and care to 92 recommendations, including those presented by the UAE, regarding unlawful practices by Qatar in harbouring and supporting terrorist groups.

recommendations have been placed before Qatar by the UPR team.

Protests in Egypt Cairo

Hundreds protested in central Cairo and several other Egyptian cities late on Friday against President Abdel Fattah El Sisi, responding to an online call for a demonstration against government corruption, witnesses said.

Protests have become very rare in Egypt following a broad crackdown on dissent under El Sisi, who took power after the overthrow of the former Islamist president Mohammed Mursi in 2013 following mass protests against his rule.

'Saudi will respond'

Riyadh says Iran bears responsibility for Aramco attacks

● The Kingdom says the weapons used in the attacks were Iranian-made.

Jeddah

Saudi Arabia will take appropriate steps to respond to an attack on its oil facilities if, as expected, a Saudi investigation confirms that Iran is responsible, a senior official said yesterday, as Iran's top commander warned that any country that attacks the Islamic republic will become the "main battlefield".

The comments were the latest salvos in the diplomatic crisis between Tehran and Washington after attacks on Saudi Arabia's oil infrastructure and US President Donald Trump's decision to send American troops to bolster the Kingdom's defences.

Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Adel Al Jubeir said the probe would prove that the September 14 strikes came from the north and that Iran bore responsibility, a charge Tehran denies.

"The Kingdom will take the appropriate measures based on the results of the investigation, to ensure its security and stability," Mr Al Jubeir told a news conference, declining to speculate about specific actions.

US to send more troops

US President Donald Trump has approved sending American troops to bolster Saudi Arabia's air and missile defences after the largest-ever attack on the Kingdom's oil facilities, which Washington has squarely blamed on Iran. The Pentagon said the deployment would involve a moderate number of troops - not numbering thousands - and would be primarily defensive in nature. It also detailed plans to expedite delivery of military equipment to both Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates.
