MOVIE REVIEW

Brahms: The Boy II: wilfully unscary evil doll horror

● Katie Holmes is as bored as the audience in this lazy retread of the 2016 chiller about a havoc-causing dollm

Brahms: The Boy II is a 2020 American supernatural horror film directed by William Brent Bell and written by Stacey Menear. A stand-alone sequel to the 2016 film The Boy, it stars Katie Holmes, Ralph Ineson, Owain Yeoman, and Christopher Convery. Brahms: The Boy II was released in the United States on February 21, 2020, by STX Entertainment. On Rotten Tomatoes, the film holds an approval rating of 9% based on 22 reviews with an average rating of 3.29/10. On Metacritic, the film has a weighted average score of 32 out of 100, based on nine critics, indicating "generally unfavourable reviews." Audiences polled by CinemaScore gave the film an average grade of "C-" on an A+ to F scale, and PostTrak reported

Katie Holmes in 'Brahms: The Boy II'

The creepy doll tortures a new family (and new star Katie Holmes), but this time without a sense of humor or even much sense at all it received an average 0.5 out of 5 stars, with 24% of people saying they would definitely recommend it.

Benjamin Lee, writing for The Guardian, gave the film one star out of five, describing it as "so punishingly dull to watch, filled with dry, perfunctory dialogue from Stacey Menear's consistently uninventive script and shot without even a glimmer of style, that even at a brisk 86 minutes, it feels like unending torture" with a finale "that buckles under the weight of its own stupidity, as well as some god-awful CGI."
