His Majesty King Hamad bin Isa Al Khalifa yesterday returned to Bahrain after visiting UAE, UK and paying his respects to Queen Elizabeth II, laid to rest alongside her beloved husband after 70 years on the throne.

Upon arrival in Bahrain yesterday, His Royal Highness Prince Salman bin Hamad Al

Khalifa, the Crown Prince and Prime Minister welcomed HM King. Earlier yesterday, HM the King left the UAE and was seen off by UAE President HH Shaikh Mohammed bin Zayed.

During talks, the two leaders reviewed the solid fraternal Bahraini-UAE relations and the latest regional and global developments.

The funeral, according to

BBC, was watched by 32.5 million viewers there. Among the 2,000 congregations were some 500 presidents, prime ministers, foreign royal family members and dignitaries, including Joe Biden of the United States.

HM King Hamad offered condolences and sympathy to His Majesty King Charles III, the UK Royal Family, the British people and the government.

HRH Prince Salman calls, congratulates Chef Tala Bashmi

TDT | Manama

His Royal Highness Prince Salman bin Hamad Al Khalifa, the Crown Prince and Prime Minister, yesterday congratulated Bahraini Chef, Tala Bashmi, for being honoured as one of the 100 Best Chefs in the world, in a phone call.

Tala Bashmi was selected as one of the 100 Best Chefs of the world at the sixth edition of the Best Chef Award, held in Madrid, Spain.

HRH wished Chef Bashmi continued success and expressed pride in her accomplishment, which builds on those already made by Bahraini women across fields.

Putin's war call-up spurs exodus

● Demand soars for flights out of Russia, border traffic up

● Ukraine's Zelenskiy appeals to world to punish Moscow

● UN Security Council to discuss Ukraine conflict

new mobilisation campaign escalates a war that has already killed thousands, displaced millions, pulverised cities, damaged the global economy and revived Cold War confrontation.

Though polls have suggested widespread domestic backing for Russia's intervention in Ukraine, mass conscription may be a domestically risky move after past Kremlin promises it would not happen and a string of battlefield failures in Ukraine.

"Every normal person is (concerned)," said one man, identifying himself only as Sergey, disembarking in Belgrade after a flight from Moscow. "It is OK to be afraid of the war."

Putin's defence minister has said the call-up is intended to enlist about 300,000 men.

Moscow does not fully control any of the four regions it is apparently seeking to annex, with only around 60% of Donetsk and 66% of Zaporizhzhia regions held by its forces.

Prices for air tickets out of Moscow soared above $5,000 for one-way flights to the nearest foreign locations, with most sold out for coming days. Traffic also surged at border crossings with Finland and Georgia.

One Russian man arriving at Istanbul Airport said he left partly over the Kremlin's decision. "It can lead to lots of problems for lots of Russians," said Alex, grabbing his suitcase at a baggage carousel.

Addressing world leaders at the annual UN General Assembly in New York, Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskiy urged the United Nations to create a special tribunal and strip Moscow of its Security Council veto power.

"A crime has been committed against Ukraine, and we demand just punishment," Zelenskiy, dressed in his trademark green military T-shirt, said by video on Wednesday.

Israeli PM Lapid backs two-state solution with Palestinians

Israeli Prime Minister Yair Lapid called on yesterday for a two-state solution to decades of Israeli-Palestinian conflict and reasserted that Israel would do "whatever it takes" to stop Iran from developing a nuclear bomb.

Surgeons in Saudi Arabia gave a new lease of life to a patient suffering from a tumour in the lower left jaw for three years using a 3D printed jaw.

The challenging procedure was successfully done at Buraidah's General Hospital (central Saudi Arabia).

The 18-year-old man, Qassim Health cluster said, received the new jaw in a procedure that lasted for 15 hours.

The man is currently recovering.

The new jaw bone prepared using his leg fragment was aided by 3D-printed missing parts. The team used 3D MRI & CT scans to develop an exact fitting model of the missing jaw parts.

Cancer that appears in the jaw region is a rare type of head and neck cancer
