China to pass US in retail sales this year: forecast New York, United States

Thinese consumers Chillest Colline Should outspend their American counterparts in 2019, with retail sales in the Asian giant continuing to grow in the coming years, according to an industry forecast.

Retail sales in China are expected to hit $5.64 trillion, an increase of 7.5 per cent over 2018, while Americans are likely to spend $5.53 trillion, a 3.3pc increase, according to the market research firm eMarketer. Growth in China's retail sector has been driven by online sales, which should expand by 30pc this year, reaching $1.99 trillion.

This would mean more than 35pc of all Chinese retail sales will occur online, by far the highest proportion for ecommerce in the world. By comparison, online sales in the US represented only 10.9pc of the overall market in 2019, according to eMarketer.

China's online retail sales are already greater in value than in the US and should represent 55.8pc of global online ecommerce by the end of this year, rising to 63pc by 2022 -- when Americans will account for only

Volvo recalls 219,000 cars to check for fuel leaks

Stockholm, Sweden

Volvo Cars, owned by the Chinese group Geely, has recalled 219,000 diesel-engine cars to fix potential fuel leaks in the engine compartment, a spokesman said yesterday.

"Volvo preventatively recalls the cars to avert any possible future problems," the spokesman told AFP. "There are no reports alleging injuries or damages related to this issue."

The action concerns 11 models, including the upscale xcoo and xc90, that were sold in 2015 and 2016, he added.
