Last March, Tamkeen also extended support for another six months to institutions operating in exhibitions, conferences and gyms due to the suspension of their activities in implementation of the precautionary measures.

MPs to tackle retirement pension bills

TDT | Manama

The retirement pension, the media and the lawyers' laws will be discussed in the fourth and final session of the current legislative term, according to MP Sayed Falah Hashim.

He explained that the MPs will have many hot items on their table when they return from their annual break as they will try to race against time to discuss several bills, including the aforementioned ones.

He added that retirees are keeping a close eye on the parliament's discussions after a decision was made to freeze their annual 3% increment as the government is working hard to curb spending to balance books especially amid the coronavirus crisis and the growing demands on the public health services.

“We will work hard, that's for sure, because we will have limited time. It's our last session before new representatives will be elected. The new retirement pension will be a priority because it touches a big segment of people,” he said.

“There are different opinions in place in this regard, and hopefully the best will be decided.”

Rare knee surgery performed at Royal Bahrain Hospital successfully

TDT | Manama

When Saleh, age 38, walked into the office of Dr Gianluca Cusma Guatteri, Consultant-Orthopedics at the Royal Bahrain Hospital, with severe knee arthritis secondary to congenital deformity, only one thing surfaced his mind – will I be able to walk freely without any pain?

For a condition like this, a normal approach would be total knee replacement, explained Dr Gianluca, considering the ultimate aim of the surgery would be to realign the limb.

“However, we evaluated the possibility of partial knee replacement and were weighing our chances should Hazem was to pursue the same. Which he ultimately did,” he said.

Dr Gianluca explained that partial knee replacement or unicompartmental knee replacement (UKR) is a minimally invasive surgery in which only the damaged compartment of the knee is replaced with an implant.

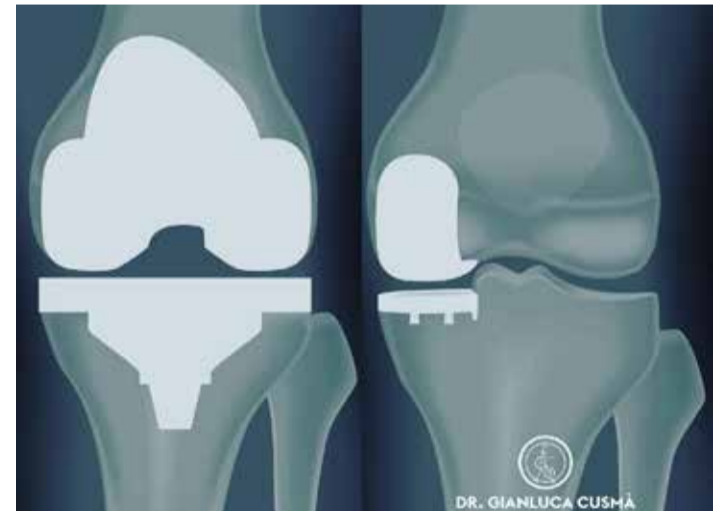

Usually, this procedure is done for people who have arthritis in a specific area of

“In few weeks Hazem will be able to not just walk but run as well without facing any difficulty or pain,” he said.

UKR is a small but at the same time very demanding surgery and is usually done by surgeons who have reached extreme proficiency.

Dr Gianluca, who has performed more than 500 UKRs in the past 5 years in Italy, tells us that there is a lot of innovation in the type of implant as well.

In fact, Dr Gianluca has also designed and patented a UKR implant which is made of titanium and Vitamin E polyethylene to avoid allergies, minimise oxidation and wearing off with an estimate of a 20 year life of the implant.

He gave a presentation detailing the Council's future plans and current projects and referred to a number of success stories about investing in waste recycling, treatment and reuse in cooperation with the private sector.

They include the establishment of a 35,000-tonne aluminium lining cell treatment and recycling unit by Aluminium Bahrain (Alba), which will start operation this year.

He stressed the role of the private and public sectors in achieving environmental goals, and exchanging stories of successful cooperation in recycling and reducing waste.

Dr Bin Daina also stressed the need to invest in recycling and treating various types of waste generated in the primary and transformative aluminium industry, for which Bahrain plays an important centre in the region and the world.

"The private and public sectors play an important role in achieving environmental goals, and exchanging stories of successful cooperation in recycling and reducing waste."

- DR MOHAMMED BIN MUBARAK BIN DAINA, SPECIAL ENVOY FOR CLIMATE AFFAIRS AND CEO OF THE SUPREME COUNCIL FOR ENVIRONMENT

He noted that there is a need to invest in the recycling of electronic and electrical waste due to the increasing volume of production.

The Council is seeking the lawmakers' help in issuing special legislation regulating the management of this type of waste to encourage the private sector to invest in it.

Undersecretary Shaikh Mohammed bin Ahmed Al Khalifa said that the Works Ministry, with the help of experts in this field, is currently studying the establishment of a waste recycling plant.

The Ministry is expecting the completion of research studies for this project soon for its implementation.

Shaikh Mohammed said that the Ministry, in cooperation with the private sector, has succeeded in setting up a pilot project to recycle construction and demolition waste, which amounts to 600,000 tonnes. They were treated and turned into useful products.

About 79,000 tonnes of green waste were also recycled and converted into fertilisers, and reused last year.

The Undersecretary revealed that the largest volume of waste comes from household, followed by construction and building materials, and industrial and commercial products.

With regard to waste tyres, he said that Bahrain exports large quantities of it to Malaysia for recycling. The Kingdom produces 8,939 tonnes of waste tyres annually that are dumped at the Askar landfill.

Meanwhile, BCCI's Industry and Energy Committee chairman Farid Badr stressed that plans are underway to implement various programmes on sustainable development in line with Bahrain's Economic Vision 2030.

Bitcoin fund launches on Dubai bourse in ME first

AFP | Dubai

The Middle East's first bitcoin fund launched on the Dubai bourse yesterday, with Canadian digital asset manager 3iQ Corp seeking to raise around $200 million in the offering.

Created in 2008 as an alternative to traditional currencies, bitcoin is the world's most popular virtual unit, but its price has slumped recently due to fresh moves from China to crack down on cryptocurrencies.

"3iQ Corp., Canada's largest digital asset investment fund manager... today officially listed The Bitcoin Fund on Nasdaq Dubai, the region's international exchange," the bourse said in a statement.

It said that "this fund is the world's first regulated major Bitcoin fund to be listed on the capital markets in the Middle East North Africa region".

"Bitcoin trades 24 hours a day around the world, and in Canada we trade around North American market times and Dubai is almost perfectly opposite of (those) trading hours," 3iQ Corp chief executive Fred Pye told Bloomberg Television.

"We think if the market holds up for the next few months while we get the listing going, we expect to probably be quite far north of ($200 million)."

Bitcoin fell under $30,000 on Tuesday for the first time in five months, hit by concerns over

China's ongoing crackdown.

The unit had recovered some lost ground by 1040 GMT on Wednesday, punctuating a rollercoaster month of trading, standing at $34,104 a piece.

Chinese mines power nearly 80 percent of the global trade in cryptocurrencies despite a domestic trading ban since 2017.

But in recent months several provinces have ordered mines to close as Beijing puts the industry under the regulatory microscope.

The 3iQ fund finished up 10.38 percent at $38.30 following Wednesday trading, according to the Nasdaq Dubai website.

The fund's prospectus says that it seeks to invest in long-term holdings of bitcoin as a less volatile alternative to direct investments in unpredictable cryptocurrencies.

Reuters | Dubai

Emirates Global Aluminium, one of the world's largest aluminium producers, is in talks with banks to refinance and change the terms of a loan of about $6 billion it secured in 2019, two sources with knowledge of the matter said yesterday.

The United Arab Emirates firm, which is owned equally by Abu Dhabi state fund Mubadala and the Investment Corporation of Dubai, is seeking to extend the tenor and lower the pricing of the seven-year loan through a refinancing facility to take advantage of low rates, the sources said.

"EGA is fortunate to have a large relationship bank group who support our business. We are always looking at ways to optimise our financing arrangements," the company said in response to a Reuters request for comment.

EGA's fundraising exercise comes as borrowers in the Gulf seek to improve their financing arrangements to reflect better market conditions after last year's coronavirus-driven downturn.

EGA, which produces 4% of the world's total aluminium, took a loan of over $6 billion in early 2019 to refinance a $4.9 billion loan secured in December 2015 as well as to fully repay a $1.8 billion loan raised by EGA's subsidiary Dubai Aluminium.

The syndicated loan EGA is seeking to restructure was issued on Jan. 28, 2019 and totalled $6.545 billion, according to Refinitiv data.

Crypto is 'rat poison', a third of mainstream firms tell JPM

Reuters | London

Only 10% of institutional investment firms surveyed by JPMorgan trade cryptocurrencies, with nearly half labelling the emerging asset class as "rat poison" or predicting it would be a temporary fad.

Bitcoin, the world's largest cryptocurrency, fell to a five-month low on Tuesday, extending losses from China's deepening crackdown on mining and trading cryptocurrencies. The US Securities and Exchange Commission has said it would like to see more regulation around trading in the space.

Of those firms who did not invest, 80% did not expect to start investing or trading in cryptocurrencies, according to the survey conducted at JPMorgan's Macro, Quantitative and Derivatives conference, attended by some 3,000 investors from around 1,500 institutions.

However, asked about their personal investments, 40% of the investors said they were active in cryptocurrencies.

Four-fifths of investors also expected regulators to get tougher on the asset class, while a whopping 95% of them believed fraud in crypto world was "somewhat or very much prevalent", the survey released late on Tuesday found.

Germany's coronavirus infection levels are encouraging but cases of the Delta variant are rising and the country should exercise sound judgment so as not to risk what it has achieved, Chancellor Angela Merkel said yesterday. Nine Catalan separatists who were long prison sentences for their role in a failed 2017 independence bid were released from jail on Wednesday a day after being pardoned by Spain. Rain was falling as the seven male prisoners walked out of Lledoners jail some 70 kilometres (45 miles) northwest of Barcelona, where they were met by umbrella-carrying supporters shouting "Independence, independence!" As they walked through the gates, they were embraced by newly-appointed Catalan leader Pere Aragonés, and posed for a photograph alongside a Catalan independence flag and a banner reading "Freedom for Catalonia", an AFP correspondent said. At the same time, the two remaining prisoners, both women, were released from two other facilities.

Thai authorities warned demonstrators against gathering to mark the anniversary of the Siamese Revolution on Wednesday, citing the kingdom's soaring Covid-19 infections. Key pro-democracy groups have announced plans for demonstrations across Bangkok on Thursday to commemorate the 89th anniversary of the Siamese Revolution, an uprising that transformed Thailand from absolutism to a constitutional monarchy. Mass protests against the government of Prime Minister Prayut Chan-O-Cha shook Bangkok in the second half of last year, fuelled by discontent at the former military chief who came to power via a 2014 coup, but tailed off as covid cases rose.

A massive manhunt is underway in central India after a gang of robbers stole nearly a tonne of cow dung from a village, police said. Villagers in the central state of Chhattisgarh complained to police last week after more than 800 kilogrammes (1,770 pounds) of poo disappeared from their storehouse. Police said the gang struck at night, breaking into the depository in Korba district's Dhurena village and fleeing with their pungent plunder estimated to be worth some 1,600 rupees ($22). "We have questioned some suspects but no arrests have been made yet," local police officer Harish Tandekar told AFP on Wednesday. He added that it was not clear how the suspects had been able to transport such a large amount of faeces, or why they had stolen it. "Investigations are continuing and every effort is being made to find the culprits," Tandekar said.

Russian forces reportedly fire warning shots at British destroyer in Black Sea

British Royal Navy's Type 45 destroyer HMS Defender arrives for a port visit in Istanbul, Turkey

Reuters | Moscow

A Russian military ship fired warning shots at a British Royal Navy destroyer after it entered Russian waters in the Black Sea, and a Russian jet dropped bombs in its path as a warning, Interfax cited Russia's defence ministry as saying on Wednesday.

The British Ministry of Defence did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

The HMS Defender left Russian waters soon after the incident, having ventured as much as 3 kilometres (2 miles) inside, the Russian ministry said, adding that the confrontation took place near Cape Fiolent, a landmark on the coast of Crimea.

Russia annexed the Crimean peninsula from Ukraine in 2014 in a move condemned by the West which still considers it Ukrainian territory.

"The destroyer had been warned that weapons would be used if it trespasses the border of the Russian Federation. It did not react to the warning," it said.

A Russian bomber dropped four high explosive fragmentation bombs as a warning in the British destroyer's path, according to the Russian ministry.

Three killed in bomb targeting police in Pakistan's Lahore

AFP | Lahore, Pakistan

A bomb killed three people in Pakistan's eastern megacity Lahore yesterday, in an attack officials believe targeted police and security forces.

The blast happened outside a house near a checkpoint in an affluent neighbourhood, the province's police chief Inam Ghani said.

"Our assessment is that the most obvious target was the police and security forces," he said, adding that the blast was being treated as a terrorist incident.

He said it was unclear whether a vehicle was packed with explosives that were remotely detonated or if a suicide bomber was behind the blast.

A woman is taken to Ayder Referral Hospital, in Mekelle, after an air strike in Togoga, Ethiopia's Tigray region

An air strike killed at least 43 people in the town of Togoga in Ethiopia's Tigray region yesterday, a medical official told Reuters, after residents said new fighting had flared in recent days north of the regional capital Mekelle.

Ethiopian military spokesman Colonel Getnet Adane did not confirm or deny the incident. He said air strikes were a common military tactic and that government forces do not target civilians.

The bomb hit a market at around 1:00 p.m., according to a woman who said her husband and two-year-old daughter had been injured.

"We didn't see the plane, but we heard it," she told Reuters on Wednesday. "When the explosion happened, everyone ran out. After a time we came back and were trying to pick up the injured."

The woman said the market had been full of families, and she did not see any armed forces in the area. "Many, many" people had been killed, she said.

Reuters could not independently verify her account. She and other sources asked not to be identified for fear of reprisals.

The medical official confirmed at least 43 fatalities, citing witnesses and first responders.

A spokesperson for Prime Minister Abiy Ahmed and the head of a government task force on Tigray did not respond to requests for comment on the incident.

News of the airstrike came as Ethiopian officials counted ballots from national and regional parliamentary elections held this week in seven of the nation's 10 regions.

No voting was held in Tigray, where the military has been battling forces loyal to the Tigray People's Liberation Front (TPLF), the region's former ruling party, since November. Security concerns and

The Justice Department said the 33 domains used by IRTVU are owned by a United States company and that IRTVU did not obtain a license from Treasury's Office of Foreign Assets Control prior to utilising the domain names.

KH also did not obtain a license. Notices appeared earlier on Tuesday on a number of Iran-affiliated websites saying they had been seized by the United States government as part of law enforcement action.

Iranian news agencies said the US government had seized several Iranian media websites and sites belonging to groups affiliated with Iran such as Yemen's Houthi movement.

problems with ballot papers also delayed voting in two other regions.

Residents reported that TPLF forces had entered several towns north of Mekelle in the past three days, withdrawing from one of them within hours.

The official and two other health workers helping with the response in Togoga told Reuters on Wednesday that Ethiopian soldiers were blocking the main road from Mekelle to the town and preventing ambulances from reaching the scene.

"Patients are dying right now," said the official.

He said two ambulances had been able to reach the town via a back road late on Tuesday but did not have the necessary equipment and were not being allowed to leave.

He said the teams had counted at least 40 dead at the scene, three people had died overnight, and there were 44 critically wounded patients needing treatment.

Another medical worker said around 20 health workers in six ambulances had tried to reach the wounded on Tuesday but soldiers stopped them at a checkpoint.

Japan top court backs ban on separate married surnames

AFP | Tokyo

Japan's top court yesterday ruled a law requiring married couples to have the same family name is constitutional, rejecting plaintiffs who sought the right to keep separate surnames, local media said.

The plaintiffs -- three couples -- submitted marriage registration documents with different surnames for wives and husbands in 2018. But municipal governments refused to accept the documents, the Mainichi Shimbun newspaper reported.

The plaintiffs argued requiring married couples to choose a single name "is against equality under the law and freedom of marriage, which are guaranteed by the constitution."

The ruling is in line with a 2015 Supreme Court decision that also found the law constitutional but urged lawmakers to discuss a bill addressing growing calls for flexibility on the issue.

Calls to allow separate surnames have been growing in recent years. The couples argued that the "reasons for the 2015 verdict are no longer valid given changes in society", Jiji Press said.

Supreme Court officials could not immediately confirm details of Wednesday's verdict, which was widely reported by local media.

Under existing legislation, couples can choose to adopt either the husband or wife's surname when they marry. But in practice, the vast majority of couples opt for the husband's name.

The surname rule has been in place since the late 19th century as part of a family system gathering members under one head of household, usually male.

Backers say having a single family name is important to promote family ties and consider efforts to change the rules an attack on traditional values.

lks with US would lead 'nowhere'

restart diplomacy with the nuclear-armed nation.

But US hopes for a revival of talks were rebuffed by influential official Kim Yo Jong, the sister of North Korea's leader, saying Washington had "wrong" expectations for dialogue.

Foreign minister Ri Son Gwon said yesterday he welcomed Kim's rejection of the "hasty judgment, conjecture and expectation of the US".

"We are not considering even the possibility of any contact with the US, let alone having it, which would get us nowhere, only taking up precious time," he was quoted as having said by the state-run KCNA news agency.

Talks between Washington and Pyongyang have long been stalled over the international sanctions imposed on the nuclear-armed state and what the North should give up in return for their lifting.

In her Tuesday statement, Kim Yo Jong derided recent comments made by US national security adviser Jake Sullivan, who called her brother's remarks an "interesting signal".

Individuals Ethics vs Corporate Ethics

JOEL INDRUPATI

"Água", he said and pushed aside the Coca-Cola bottle from his table.

With that, Cristiano Ronaldo also pushed down the market value of Coca-Cola by a shocking 4 billion dollars, overnight. And who was happy?

Everyone. Well, everyone, except the company's shareholders.

The following day, Paul Pogba too removed a bottle of alcoholic beverage placed in front of him at another Euro 2020 press conference.

Both bottles, we know, were placed by companies that had bid for and paid enormous amounts of money to get those placings in those football briefings. So that their brands can get visibility.

In fact, if it were not for such sponsorships and advertisements, we would not be enjoying many shows, sports or otherwise. TV broadcasting rights and online streaming rights are often bitterly contested for, with the sole aim of making revenue from sponsors. And we all know that, ultimately, advertising pays for all the shows we freely watch.

So, here is the question. Did Ronaldo, Portugal's soccer-team captain and the poster-boy for health and fitness, do the right thing? And did Pogba, France's midfielder and a professing Muslim, do the right thing?

By standing up for their individual beliefs, and by winning the applause of most of the world as 'excellent role models' for the young generation, did they really act in the best interest of the community?

Maybe yes. But then, wouldn't that be a breach of contract? At least between the broadcasters and the sponsoring companies? Can these individual sports persons act, brashly, to the detriment of their sponsors? If you scare away the sponsors, will they come back next time?

After all, it is the money that matters in the business of sports. Just like in the others.

Which is why - to cash-in on the controversy - Ikea has already launched a reusable water bottle called 'Cristiano'.

The real question is, therefore, about the conflict between individual ethics and corporate ethics. One's individual beliefs need not be aligned with those of one's organisation.

I remember cricket tournaments being sponsored by Wills, Rothmans, and Benson and Hedges. All cigarette companies. That contrast was so striking that some cricketers had to state they stay healthy, and they really do not smoke.

On the 'American Idol' show, I often find it odd to see paper cups of Coke on the tables of those judges. Amidst all that glitz and the glamour on those shiny and smooth sets, I find those huge red paper-cups sticking out like sore thumbs. Perhaps, some would call those organisers and judges as suckers. Of not just that drink from those cups, but for the money the sponsors put in, which pays them.

Celebrities are often wooed with large sums of money because advertisers seek endorsements of their products. But if it backfires, like in Cristiano's case now, advertisers might think twice before sponsoring again.

The fact that Cristiano himself had promoted Coca-Cola in his earlier days is overlooked. His 2006 advertising campaign for Coca-Cola has now been dug out by social media users who are sharing it and calling him a hypocrite.

But times are different. He is wealthy and wise now. And he probably regrets that old endorsement. And his individual ethical beliefs may have changed. That is understandable.

But, in the same way, organizational ethics should also be understood. After Cristiano's act, Coca Cola had responded saying "everyone is entitled to their drink preferences" and that "players are offered water, alongside Coca-Cola and Coca-Cola Zero Sugar" at these events. So, did the company take away anyone's choice? No.

Celebrities must regularly remind themselves of the adage, "with great power comes great responsibility".

Lost parts of Rembrandt masterpiece restored by AI

AFP | Amsterdam

It's one of the great acts of art vandalism. In 1715 large chunks of Rembrandt's masterpiece "The Night Watch" were cut off in order to fit the colossal canvas into a new home. Now for the first time in more than 300 years, visitors to Amsterdam's Rijksmuseum can see the painting in its original form thanks to a stunning reconstruction of the lost pieces.

Based on a small 17th century copy of "The Night Watch", scientists used artificial intelligence to recreate the missing sections, which have been printed and mounted around the famed artwork.

"It's very exciting to see," Rijksmuseum director Taco Dibbits told AFP.

"Because you know the painting since you're a child, and you feel that suddenly you've taken a step back in time for 300 years." The reconstruction has revealed the true dynamism of Rembrandt's original composition, with the two key people at the centre of the painting, Captain Frans Banninck Cocq and Lieutenant Willem van Ruytenburch, now offset to the side, said Dibbits.

For the first time in more than 300 years, art lovers can see Rembrandt's "The Night Watch" after a stunning reconstruction

The lost figures of two men and a small boy have meanwhile been restored to the left hand side where a 60-centimetre (24-inch) strip was cut off the painting, which even in its smaller form measures a huge 3.79 metres by 4.36 metres (12 feet, five inches by 14 feet, four inches). The Rijksmuseum, which recently reopened after the relaxation of coronavirus measures, will keep the panels in place for three months, as part of a huge restoration of the painting launched in 2019.

'Sending AI to art school'

Rembrandt painted "The Night Watch" in 1642 after a commission by Cocq, the mayor and leader of the civic guard of Amsterdam, to depict the officers and other members of the militia.

After hanging in the civic guards' club house for 73 years the painting was moved to Amsterdam town hall where it was destined for a space between two doors but "it didn't fit", said Dibbits.

"The people who moved it decided to cut it and really took scissors and just cut on all four sides."

The strips that were cut off have never been found.

"The people who moved it decided to cut it and really took scissors and just cut on all four sides." The strips that were cut off have never been found.

It was the first of many trials suffered by "The Night Watch", which was stabbed by a man with a knife in 1911, hidden in a bunker when Nazi Germany invaded the Netherlands, slashed by another knifeman in 1975 and sprayed with acid in 1990.

The reconstruction of the missing pieces was possible because of a much smaller copy made in the 17th century by the artist Gerrit Lundens -- but that copy was in a somewhat different style and colour, and from a slightly different perspective. The solution was "sending artificial intelligence to art school", said Robert Erdmann, Senior Scientist at the Rijksmuseum, who led the project.

'A delight'

"If we were to simply blow this up and put it next to "The Night Watch" it wouldn't match in any way," Erdmann told AFP.

"So to help it match, I've trained three separate neural networks to help with this process, so that's a kind of artificial intelligence in which we can teach the computer by giving it examples."

The computer compared Rembrandt's original to the copy, and once it had mastered his style, Erdmann set it to work on recreating the lost pieces.

Its mimicry was so successful it even learned to copy the minute cracks in the surface of the existing Night Watch, he said.

Finally the image was printed onto canvas, which was varnished and then placed on four metal frames that were placed around the painting.

"It was really a delight" to see the restored painting, said Erdmann. "It really changes the entire composition."

Art experts can now see how the black-clad captain and his white-uniformed lieutenant were in fact set off to the side to show how the militia was in motion, while the extra figures on the left give depth and perspective.

"The key is that Rembrandt keeps on surprising us, he keeps on doing things that you wouldn't expect him to do," said Dibbits.

More than 150 Texas hospital staff fired or quit over vaccine ruling

AFP News

More than 150 employees at the Houston Methodist hospital in Texas were fired or resigned after failing to comply with orders to get a Covid-19 vaccination to continue working there, a hospital spokeswoman said Tuesday.

Officials Houston Methodist told its staff they needed to have received a Covid vaccination by June 7 or be suspended for two weeks.

Hospital spokeswoman Gale Smith said that 153 employees "either resigned in the two-week suspension period or were terminated today.

"The employees who became compliant during the suspension period returned to work the day after they became compliant," she said.

Nearly 200 staff had been suspended, the New York Times reported, and protests were staged against the mandatory vaccine rule.

Last month, 117 staff members filed a lawsuit against the hospital, accusing it of "forcing its employees to be human guinea pigs" as a condition for continued employment."

The lawsuit was dismissed by a judge who said the vaccines' safety was not at issue, and that Texas law only protects employees from refusing to commit a crime.

"Receiving a Covid-19 vaccination is not an illegal act, and it carries no criminal penalties," Judge Lynn Hughes wrote.

The judge also reprimanded one of the main plaintiffs behind the lawsuit, nurse Jennifer

Bridges, for the analogy that the threat of being fired for not getting vaccinated was like "forced medical experimentation during the Holocaust."

"Equating the injection requirement to medical experimentation in concentration camps is reprehensible," Hughes wrote.

Vin Diesel explains feud with Dwayne Johnson

Fox | Los Angeles

Vin Diesel and Dwayne 'The Rock' Johnson were co-stars who didn't see eye-to-eye when they first worked on the "Fast Five" back in 2011.

The actors, who played Dominic Toretto and Luke Hobbs, respectively, had a feud on set that spilled over into the public arena when Johnson, 49, called out an anonymous actor via social media from the franchise's set and many fans narrowed it down to Diesel.

"It was a tough character to embody, the Hobbs character," Diesel told Men's Health of Johnson's Hobbs, who was a government agent tasked with stopping Toretto and his car gang.

The "Bloodshot" actor, 53, said he thinks their difference of opinion originated because Diesel was a tough producer.

Britney Spears pushed for 'controlling' conservatorship to end for years

Fox | Los Angeles

Britney Spears' dad has such total control over the 39-year-old pop star's life that he even has final say over what colour cabinets she has in her kitchen, according to a new report on her infamous conservatorship.

The "Toxic" singer allegedly told her dad, Jamie, that she wanted to re-stain the cabinets, but he thought such renovation work would be too expensive, the New York Times reported, citing newly revealed confidential documents.

Spears' conservatorship — of which her dad is a member along with a financial firm — has led the singer to complain to a court investigator in 2016 that she was "sick of being taken advantage of" and felt she was "the one working and earning her money but everyone around her is on her payroll," the report said.

That year, the pop star also informed the investigator that she wanted the conservatorship terminated altogether, reportedly stating that her father was "obsessed" with controlling her life.

"She articulated she feels the conservatorship has become an oppressive and controlling tool against her," the court investigator wrote, adding that Spears said, "Too much control ... Too, too much!"

Anya Taylor-Joy thought she'd never work again after 'The Witch' role

Anya Taylor-Joy

Actress Anya Taylor-Joy, who made her feature film debut with "The Witch" six years ago, says she thought her career was over with the role, despite getting praised for her performance as Thomasin in the horror film.

"Rob showed us the film, maybe, two hours before the audience screening and I was devastated," Taylor-Joy told The Hollywood Reporter, reports femalefirst.co.uk.

She added: "I thought I'd never work again. I still get shivers thinking about it. It was just the worst feeling of, 'I have let down the people I love most in the world. I didn't do it right.'" "And I'm quite verbose, I like to talk, I like to communicate. I did not talk, I just cried. I couldn't handle seeing my face that large."

Nicolas Cage to star in 'Butcher's Crossing' movie adaptation

ANI | Washington

American actor Nicolas Cage is set to play a buffalo hunter in a film adaptation of John Williams' novel 'Butcher's Crossing'.

As per Variety, the upcoming movie is being helmed by Gabe Polsky, who has directed documentaries like 'Red Army' and 'Red Penguins'. Shooting for the film will begin in the US in October.

The movie is also a reunion of sorts, as Polsky was a producer on Cage's 2009 movie 'Bad Lieutenant: Port of Call New Orleans'.

The film is set in the 1870s and finds Cage playing Kansas buffalo hunter Miller, who takes on a young Harvard dropout seeking his destiny out West.

The movie is based on the 1960 transcendentalist novel by Williams, which explores man's relationship with the natural world and details a largely untold but significant chapter in American history.

Polsky is adapting the novel alongside Liam Satre-Meloy. '1917' director Sam Mendes was believed to have been interested in adapting the book around 10 years ago.

Altitude is handling international sales and will introduce the project to buyers at the Cannes Virtual Market, 21-25 June. Altitude has also secured the film for the UK and Irish distribution.

Rachel Zegler to play lead in Disney's 'Snow White' remake

ANI | Washington

White and the Seven Dwarves', first released in 1937.

The sequel will be helmed by Marc Webb, and this move has been described as a new take on the classic, which follows a princess that is fed a poisoned apple by her stepmother, the queen and then falls into a deep sleep that can be broken only by a kiss from the prince.

The Greatest Showman and Dear Evan Hansen team Benj Pasek and Justin Paul will write new songs for the movie. The original's soundtrack included songs 'Heigh-Ho', 'Someday My Prince Will Come' and 'Whistle While You Work'.

The film is slated to go on floors next year.

Olympic swim champ Paltrinieri sidelined with glandular fever before Tokyo Games

Winner Ukraine's Mykhaylo Romanchuk (up) and second-placed Italy's Gregorio Paltrinieri react after the final of the Men's 800m Freestyle Swimming event

AFP | Milan

Olympic swimming champion Gregorio Paltrinieri is suffering from glandular fever a month before his 1,500m title defence in Tokyo, the Italian swimming federation (FIN) announced.

"Paltrinieri is suffering from mononucleosis although his symptoms are light," FIN president Paolo Barelli said.

"We'll know the effects of the infection day by day," added Barelli of the infectious viral illness commonly known as mononucleosis or mono.

"Paltrinieri is a phenomenal champion and he'll fight to the last metre to take the medals he dreams of in Tokyo.

"He has never given up on anything."

The 26-year-old has cut back on training and will not take part in the Sette Colli Trophy in Rome starting Friday.

Paltrinieri, a two-time world champion over 1,500m, took silver over 800m and 1,500m at this year's European championships in Budapest.

Sweden scores late to beat Poland at Euro 2020

Claesson's late strike for Sweden seals top spot with victory over Poland

● Two goals from Robert Lewandowski weren't enough to save Poland, who fought hard but still go home

AFP | London

Viktor Claesson scored an injury-time winner as Sweden beat Poland 3-2 in Saint Petersburg yesterday to clinch top spot in Group E and knock their opponents out of Euro 2020.

Emil Forsberg struck twice, the first coming after just 81 seconds, but Robert Lewandowski's double gave Poland hope of qualifying before Claesson's late goal sent Sweden through as group winners.

Sweden will likely play Ukraine in the last 16 after pipping Spain to first place, with Slovakia exiting alongside Poland following a crushing 5-0 defeat in Seville.

Janne Andersson's side, safe in the knowledge they were assured of a place in the next round before kickoff, made a dream start as Forsberg scored for the second game in a row, netting the second-fastest goal in European Championship history.

The RB Leipzig attacker collected a loose ball just outside the Poland area after Kamil Glik flattened Alexander Isak, riding a challenge from Kamil Jozwiak before firing into the far corner.

Zielinski forced Robin Olsen into a pair of flying saves with shots from distance either side of halftime, with the Sweden goalkeeper also making a fine stop from Grzegorz Krychowiak's long-range shot.

Juventus winger Dejan Kulusevski came on 10 minutes into the second half for his first appearance after testing positive for Covid-19 just before the tournament.

Poland had not scored more than once in any of their previous 13 matches at the finals

His driving run and pass set up Forsberg to curl in Sweden's second on 59 minutes, but Poland responded to set up a thrilling finish.

Lewandowski halved the deficit with a brilliant solo effort on 61 minutes, bending into the top corner to become his country's all-time leading scorer at the tournament.

Poland had not scored more than once in any of their previous 13 matches at the finals, but Lewandowski took advantage of confusion between Victor Lindelof and Marcus Danielson to equalise six minutes from time.

As Poland desperately pushed for a winner, Sweden snatched all three points right at the death when Kulusevski played in fellow substitute Claesson to slot beyond Wojciech Szczesny.

Modric leads Croatia into Euro 2020 last 16 at Scotland's expense

Scotland's Euro 2020 dreams dashed as Croatia and Modric turn on the style

● Scotland got their first goal of the tournament but Luka Modric made the difference to end the hosts' last-16 hopes

AFP | London

Scotland's hopes of reaching the knockout stage of a major tournament for the first time were ended in a 3-1 defeat to a Luka Modric-inspired Croatia at Hampden Park on Tuesday that took the World Cup runners-up into the last 16 of Euro 2020.

After ending a 23-year wait just to qualify for a major tournament, another historic feat was beyond Steve Clarke's Scotland side who were undone by a moment of magic from Modric.

Callum McGregor cancelled out Nikola Vlasic's early opener to give the hosts hope heading into half-time.

But Modric showed the class that made him the man to break Lionel Messi and Cristiano Ronaldo's grip on the Ballon d'Or in 2018, a stunning strike with the outside of his foot just after the hour mark restoring Croatia's lead.

Croatia's midfielder Luka Modric (C) shoots to score the second goal

"No one is sure how Luka manages that," Croatia boss Zlatko Dalic said of the 35-year-old.

"We expect that Luka will go down, lose his strength, but he is the force that pulls the whole team.

"Anything I would say about Luka would not be sufficient. I'm very proud to have such a player as part of our team."

Ivan Perisic's header rubbed salt into Scottish wounds 13 minutes from time as Croatia pipped the Czech Republic to second place in Group D behind England.

Dalic's side will face the runners-up from Group E, featuring Spain, Sweden, Slovakia and Poland, in Copenhagen next Monday.

Scotland's preparation had been blighted by the loss of Billy Gilmour to a positive test for coronavirus after the 20-year-

“No one is sure how Luka manages that. We expect that Luka will go down, lose his strength, but he is the force that pulls the whole team” old had shone on his first international start in the 0-0 draw against England on Friday.

CROATIA BOSS ZLATKO DALIC

Without the Chelsea midfielder, Scotland lacked anyone close to the class of Croatia's midfield maestros who eventually ran the hosts into the ground with nearly two-thirds of possession.

"Overall Croatia were the better team on the night and sometimes you just have to accept that," said Clarke.

"We're disappointed we haven't managed to get out the group stage. We'll all sit down, take stock, look and see what we can do better in the future and make sure it is not 23 years before we are at the next tournament."

Just as against the Czechs and England in their opening two games, Scotland were made to pay for not taking their chances.

Roared on by 12,000 fans inside Hampden, Che Adams was inches away from connecting with John McGinn's dangerous cross early on.

Chasing shadows

Croatia had barely threatened before they went in front on 17 minutes.

Perisic headed down a lofted ball into the box and Vlasic found space between three Scotland defenders to fire low into the corner.

Croatia then had Scotland chasing shadows for a spell as the midfield trio of Modric, Marcelo Brozovic and Mateo Kovacic took control of the game.

"Modric was incredible," said Arsenal defender Kieran Tierney. "I think tonight was a big learning curve for us all.

"They've been there before, the quality they showed it was hard for us to get going."

Modric's blistering drive from outside the box was brilliantly tipped over by David Marshall.

But Scotland bounced back to net their first major tournament goal since 1998.

McGregor pounced on a loose ball at the edge of the box and, on his weaker right foot, the Celtic midfielder drilled into the bottom corner to spark jubilant scenes.

Scotland went down the tunnel at half-time with a spring in their step, but the physical exertions of holding England four days earlier took their toll as the energy levels of Clarke's men dipped in the second period.

Modric's deft touch finally broke Scottish hearts on 62 minutes.

Croatia calmly worked the opening at the edge of the box before the Real Madrid midfielder caressed the ball into the top corner with the outside of his right foot.

Along with Modric, Perisic has consistently been one of his country's key performers at major tournaments for nearly a decade.

The Inter Milan winger's flicked header from a Modric corner dropped in off the inside of the post for his ninth goal at a World Cup or European Championship to end any hope of a Scottish revival.

Spain put five past Slovakia to book Croatia showdown

Spain claimed the biggest win of the tournament with a 5-0 thrashing of Slovakia in their final Euro 2020 Group E match

● Spain finish second in the group E

AFP | Seville

Spain finally have lift-off at Euro 2020 after a 5-0 hammering of Slovakia yesterday sent them through as runners-up in Group E, with Croatia their opponents in the last 16 on Monday.

Luis Enrique described his team as a bottle of cava about to be popped and they certainly exploded in Seville, where a scoring frenzy felt cathartic and could yet prove transformative for their chances in the knockout stages.

Spain were even about to progress as group winners until Viktor Claesson scored in the 94th minute against Poland to secure top spot for Sweden. Slovakia finish third and are out.

After two tension-filled draws against Sweden and Poland, Spain were left scrambling to qualify, with Luis Enrique admitting he would have taken any position in the group as long as it meant going through.

But Spain ran riot at La Cartuja, their early anxiety heightened by Alvaro Morata's missed penalty and then quickly eased by two dreadful mistakes by Slovakia's goalkeeper Martin

The first was an own goal that will surely go down as one of the strangest moments of the tournament before another Dubravka error allowed Aymeric Laporte to head in.

With the shackles off, Spain let loose in the second half as Pablo Sarabia, Ferran Torres and another own goal from Juraj Kucka confirmed an emphatic win, even if Croatia and Luka Modric will provide a much sterner test next week.

Spain monopolised the ball in the first half but for 30 minutes, it was a familiar story of chances missed and frustration growing.

England get the job done with 1-0 win over Czechs

England beat Czech Republic to top group as Raheem Sterling strikes again

● Raheem Sterling's early goal was enough for England to top Group D, as Bukayo Saka and Jack Grealish both impressed

AFP | London

Raheem Sterling scored the only goal as England found an attacking spark to beat the Czech Republic 1-0 at Wembley on Tuesday and clinch top spot in Group D at Euro 2020.

The Manchester City forward, who kept his place alongside Harry Kane in a rejigged attack also featuring Jack Grealish and Bukayo Saka, settled fans' nerves with an early headed goal, which ultimately proved decisive.

The result means Gareth Southgate's side finish top of their group with seven points while Croatia are second with four points. The Czech Republic will join them in the last 16 as one of the best third-placed teams.

With just two goals scored, England are the lowest-scoring side to ever finish top of a group at a European Championship but their defence is yet to be breached.

England now have the dubious privilege of a potential match-up against world champions France, holders Portugal or Germany but will have home advantage on June 29.

"We are not fluent but we have moments where we look a good side," Southgate told ITV.

"Different sorts of tests. All of our next opponents will be different games. There is a lot of good things we are doing. We are getting minutes for a lot of the players. Ninety minutes for Harry Maguire was important tonight. Jordan Henderson getting 45 minutes is a step forward. A lot of positives."

Grealish starts

There was clamour before the match for Aston Villa captain Grealish to start to shake up a blunt attack that produced an insipid display in the 0-0 draw against Scotland.

Southgate obliged, also bringing in Saka among four changes to his side.

Chelsea midfielder Mason Mount was unavailable as he was isolating due to coronavirus protocols while Southgate opted to leave Phil Foden out to prevent the risk of a suspension.

Manchester United defender Maguire made his first appearance of Euro 2020 alongside John Stones in central defence.

England started brightly in the evening sunshine and Sterling went agonisingly close in just the second minute but could only watch as his deft chip over the goalkeeper come back off the post after he collected a raking pass from Luke Shaw.

As chants of "Football's Coming Home" rang around the stadium, captain Kane -- heavily criticised for his toothless performances in the tournament so far -- shot from distance and Grealish let fly. England broke the deadlock in the 12th minute, when Grealish, on the left side of the penalty area, lifted the ball to the back post, where Sterling headed in for his second goal of Euro 2020.

Grealish and man-of-the-match Saka were inventive and direct on either side of Kane, showing a willingness to run at their opponents.

Kane went close midway through the first half, forcing a fine left-handed save from Tomas Vaclik and thumping the ground in frustration.

But the Czechs carried a threat of their own on their forays forward, growing in menace as the half wore on.

Tomas Holes forced a flying save from England goalkeeper Jordan Pickford just before the half-hour and Tomas Soucek fired wide of the left post.

Liverpool midfielder Henderson replaced Declan Rice at half-time and the Czechs made their own change, bringing on Petr Sevcik for Jakub Jankto.

The sides were evenly matched in the second half, with the reduced crowd making an impressive noise in the cavernous stadium.

Both sides made further changes as the match wore on and the intensity dipped, with fans having to wait until the 83rd minute for the first attempt at goal in the second half.

Up to 10,000 fans allowed at Tokyo 2020 venues, despite warnings

Reuters | Tokyo

Up to 10,000 domestic spectators will be allowed in Tokyo 2020 venues, Olympics organisers said on Monday, a decision that cuts against the recommendation of medical experts who said holding the event without fans was the least risky option.

The announcement ends months of speculation and highlights Japan's determination to push on with the Games and salvage the multi-billion-dollar extravaganza amid public opposition and deep concern about a resurgence in infections.

The decision was widely expected after some recent comments by organisers and as the government's own medical experts last week appeared resigned to the event going ahead with fans.

Gauff beaten by Sevastova in Eastbourne

Coco Gauff hits a return

AFP | Eastbourne

American teenager Coco Gauff's Wimbledon preparations suffered a blip as she bowed out of the Eastbourne tournament yesterday, losing to Latvian Anastasija Sevastova 4-6 7-5 6-2.

The 17-year-old Gauff came back after losing the opening eight games the previous evening against seventh seed Elise Mertens, but this time she succumbed after leading.

Sevastova, a lucky loser from qualifying, cruised through the deciding set as Gauff's game went off the boil.

She will face Kazakhstan's Elena Rybakina next after she knocked out Ukraine's Elina Svitolina in straight sets.

World number 23 Gauff reached her first Grand Slam quarter-final at the French Open this month and will head to Wimbledon where she took the tournament by storm in 2019, beating former champion Venus Williams en route to the fourth round.

Former French Open champion Jelena Ostapenko showed signs of coming back to her best form as she knocked out Tunisia's Ons Jabeur, winner of last week's WTA event in Birmingham.

Ostapenko, who is playing doubles at Eastbourne with Gauff, won 5-7 6-4 6-3. Qualifier Camila Giorgi reached the third round after beating American Shelby Rogers.

Top seed Aryana Sabalenka was in action later against American Alison Riske.

New Zealand enjoyed the greatest triumph in their cricket history as they beat India by eight wickets in the inaugural World Test Championship final at Southampton yesterday.

Two years on from their agonising Super Over loss to England in the 50-over World Cup final at Lord's, the Blackcaps claimed their first major global title.

Set a modest target of 139 in 53 overs, New Zealand finished on 140-2 with plenty of time to spare in a match extended into a reserve sixth day following two days lost to rain.

Off-spinner Ravichandran Ashwin reduced New Zealand to 44-2 by removing openers Tom Latham and Devon Conway to the delight of India fans.

But New Zealand captain Kane Williamson and Ross Taylor, the team's most-experienced batsmen, settled any lingering nerves in an unbroken stand of 96.

Williamson, who won plaudits for the sporting way he dealt with defeat in the 2019 World Cup final, was 52 not out following his first-innings 49, with Taylor -- who hit the winning boundary -- unbeaten on 47.

India's last hope of turning the tide evaporated when, with New Zealand 55 runs shy of victory at 84-2, Cheteshwar Pujara dropped a regulation slip catch off the luckless Jasprit Bumrah to reprieve Taylor on 26.

Bumrah dropped Williamson shortly before one of the most outstanding batsmen of his era completed an 86-ball fifty, including eight fours.

Taylor ended the match in the 46th over when he whipped Mohammed Shami off his pads for four.

Southee strikes

In a match in which bowlers held sway it was New Zealand's all-pace attack that did most damage yesterday by dismissing India for just 170 in their second innings despite blue skies providing the best batting conditions of the game.

Tim Southee took wickets at both ends of the innings in a return of 4-48 in 19 overs, with longtime new-ball partner Trent Boult striking twice in an over during his 3-39.

And the towering Kyle Jamieson followed his first-innings 5-31, by snaring India captain Virat Kohli for the second time in the match during a miserly 2-30 in 24 overs.

New Zealand, whose only previous men's title in an International Cricket Council tournament was their 2000 Champions Trophy one-day final win over India, would have confronted an even smaller target had Rishabh Pant not been dropped on five during his innings of 41.

Few cricket lovers would begrudge New Zealand, a country with a population of around five million compared with cricket powerhouse's India's 1.3 billion, their success.

Djokovic, Barty are Wimbledon top seeds, Federer, Serena seventh

Defending champion Novak Djokovic was named as the top seed at Wimbledon yesterday as he seeks a 20th Grand Slam title while Roger Federer and Serena Williams will begin the grass-court tournament next week seeded seventh.

Top-ranked Ashleigh Barty is seeded first on the women's side. The Australian hasn't played since retiring from her second-round match at the French Open due to the flare-up of an upper-leg injury.

The draw is Friday and the tournament begins Monday.

Eighth-ranked Federer has the seventh seed because third-ranked Rafael Nadal is sitting out Wimbledon to rest and recover after his loss to Djokovic in the French Open semifinal.

Daniil Medvedev is the second seed, followed by Stefanos Tsitsipas and Dominic Thiem, although the Austrian retired from a match in Mallorca on Tuesday because of wrist pain.

Defending champion Simona Halep is seeded second, ahead of Aryna Sabalenka and Elina Svitolina. Second-ranked Naomi Osaka is not playing.

At Roland Garros, Djokovic earned his 19th Grand Slam title to leave him one short of the record co-held by Federer and Nadal.

Federer, a record eight-time champion at the All England Club, said earlier this year that he would build up to Wimbledon as he returned from two surgeries on his knee.

But the 39-year-old Swiss great hasn't been in top form, pulling out of the French Open after a grueling third-round match and failing last week to reach the Halle Open quarter-finals for the first time.

Conway, De Kock sign for Southern Brave in cricket's Hundred

New Zealand's Devon Conway and South Africa's Quinton de Kock have been signed as overseas replacements by the Southern Brave for English cricket's inaugural edition of the Hundred, it was announced yesterday.

The Hampshire-based franchise were in the market for top-order batsmen after Australia's David Warner and Marcus Stoinis withdrew citing Covid-19 travel complications.

Opening batsman Conway hit a double century on Test debut against England earlier this month and top-scored in the first innings of the ongoing World Test Championship final in Southampton.

The South Africa-born left-hander averages 75 in one-day internationals and 59 in Twenty20 internationals.

"I'm really excited to have joined Southern Brave," Conway said. "I have really enjoyed my time playing in the UK so far, and I'm looking forward to getting stuck in with the team and taking part in the first season of the Hundred."

De Kock, a dynamic wicketkeeper-batsman, has long been a multi-format star of the world game and will be reunited with coach Mahela Jayawardene, having worked with the Sri Lanka great at Mumbai Indians in the Indian Premier League.

"I'm also really excited to be working with Mahela again," he said. "Hopefully we can have plenty of fans in to support us and we can give them something to cheer about."

The Hundred is a pioneering 100 balls-per-side tournament, which is even shorter than a T20 match, featuring eight franchises, all fielding men's and women's teams.

YOU KNOW WHAT

Federer was tantalizingly close to a ninth Wimbledon title in the 2019 final, holding two championship points before eventually losing to Djokovic in a fifth-set tiebreaker. It was Djokovic's fifth Wimbledon title
