“Our Presence and Existence Is Our Resistance,” Says Palestine

Palestine’s athletes celebrated a breakthrough on the fifth day of the Asian Youth Games in Bahrain, edging past the Maldives 19–17 in boys’ 3x3 basketball. Earlier defeats to Thailand (11–21) and Uzbekistan (14–22) tested the team’s resilience, but the win injected fresh energy and confidence into the delegation. Across boxing, modern MMA, and combat-style events, Palestinian athletes fought hard, determined to make their presence felt on the continental stage.

“I think first and foremost, the Palestinian delegation is here to represent the cause of our country. That’s very important to us. And that’s by being here, being present, because our presence and our existence is our resistance. So that’s the most important message we have from being here,” said Diala Shaheen, a member of the Palestinian delegation.

Diala Shaheen

Her words captured the mindset behind every bout and match. In boxing, Omran Imtair competed in the Boys’ 60kg preliminaries against South Korea, while Haitham Ismail and Omar Abuneim faced tough quarterfinal contests in MMA, and Ibrahim Jamoos narrowly lost in the Boys’ -51kg combat discipline against Uzbekistan. Despite the setbacks, Shaheen emphasized the delegation’s de-termination: “And I think our second message, which is just as important, is we are here to compete. We’re not only here to participate, but also to compete, perform, and achieve medals for sure, just like any other delegation.”

The basketball win reflected the team’s perseverance, with earlier efforts culminating in a result that embodies what drives every Palestinian athlete. Shaheen credited the overwhelming support for the delegation during Wednesday’s opening ceremony as a key boost: “Being in Bahrain and feeling the love, the overwhelming welcome of the people of Bahrain here, I wasn’t surprised because the people are lovely. Honestly, at the same time, when it happened in that minute, it was out of this world, overwhelming.”

Shaheen concluded: “It was a great way to start these Games and it gave us a huge push of energy and love that we will take throughout the whole Games. So we would like to thank Bahrain and the people of Bahrain for such a great welcome.”

Tony Davis celebrates Bahrain boxing breakthrough moment

● Bahrain’s

Bahrain’s hosting of the 3rd Asian Youth Games continued yesterday with its first international boxing event, a milestone years in the making for national coach Tony Davis. From the opening bell, the event signaled a turning point for Bahrain’s youth athletes, offering them a stage against the region’s best.

“This is the first ever international boxing event in Bahrain,” Davis told The Daily Tribune. “And what a platform it’s been to give these young kids, who are going to be superstars of the future, a chance to show what they’re about.”

The opening day went on to deliver intensity from the very first bouts. Bahrain’s Mohammed Al-Marri edged Saudi Arabia’s Ali Alaskari 3-2, while China’s Qiancheng Jiang claimed a 5-0 win over Kyrgyzstan’s Imanbek Abdiraimov. Later on, Tajikistan’s Behruz Umarov defeated Uzbekistan’s Habibulla

Salman Rafique

Saynazarov 3-2, and Sri Lanka’s Janindu Wickrama Arachchilage beat Bangladesh’s Md Ali Asadullah by the same margin. As the night gathered pace and the stands filled up, Malaysia’s Muhammad Ashriq Ryan Bin Rosli beat Pakistan’s Huzaifa Raheel 4-1, and Turkmenistan’s Ibragim Iskanderov impressed by beating Mongolia’s Batkhuyag Agarzandan by the same score.

Momentum continued as Japan’s Kira Hasegawa won 4-1 over Jordan’s Osama Al-Khalidi, China’s Zhang Zhengkun defeated Thailand’s Chainarong Siwa 3-2. The crowd were particularly impressed in Iran’s rally Mehrabi’s bout as he was untouchable in his 5-0 win over India’s Sahil Duhan. The action then drew to a close as Japan’s Kenshin Sakuno shut out Turkmenistan’s Azizbek Farhadov 5-0, setting the stage for some memorable AYG boxing.

For Davis, the results mattered less than the experience gained. “It’s fantastic to see our fighters represented here,” he said. “This is a platform, not just a tournament, for them to show their skills and gain experience for the future.” Serving as both national coach and sports competition manager, he reflected on Bahrain’s journey to this stage. “Never could I have pictured the team reaching this level,” he said. “The sky’s the limit, especially here in Bahrain.” He also praised the support of HH Shaikh Khalid bin Hamad Al Khalifa, whose backing made the Kingdom’s first international boxing event possible.

As the preliminaries concluded, Bahrain’s young boxers had already made their mark. Even those who could not compete were inspired, including national team boxer Salman Rafique, who was underage for the event but came to support his teammates. “I’m actually really proud that my teammates are fighting in this event,” he said. “It’s a really great event, and I’m happy to support them all. InshAllah I will be in their position one day.”

“It’s amazing to see Bahrain on the stage, facing multinational teams and giving our kids a platform to grow,” Davis said. “These kids are the future, and now they’ve got the chance to step onto the world stage.” By the end of the session, his words captured the sentiment, reflecting Bahrain’s progress and the promise of its young boxers.
