A proposal to establish a 'knowledge bank' and develop public libraries will be debated in Parliament on Tuesday, with MPs asked to back a plan aimed at helping students and researchers reach scientific studies, academic research and reference material more quickly.

The recommendation was submitted by MP Munir Seroor and calls for upgrades to Bahrain's public libraries alongside the creation of a central knowledge repository to support school and university students, as well as researchers.

Parliament's Services Committee has urged the Council to approve the proposal, saying the public-interest grounds for it are sound.

State

The committee cited Article 7(a) of the Constitution, which states that the State sponsors sciences, literature and the arts, encourages scientific research, and guarantees educational and cultural services for citizens, including compulsory and free education in the early stages specified by law and a plan to eradicate illiteracy.

MP Dr Munir Seroor

In its reasoning, the committee said Bahrain needs stronger public libraries and argued for a library in each governorate to help build reading habits among pupils and university students.

It also said the proposal would support students and researchers by improving access to sources and references within a shorter time.

The explanatory memorandum accompanying the proposal praised the Ministry of Education's work in supporting learning and developing students' skills, and spoke highly of teaching staff and training programmes linked to career progression.

US envoys in Israel to hold talks on Gaza future

US President Donald Trump's envoys Jared Kushner and Steve Witkoff arrived in Israel yesterday, where they were set to hold talks on Gaza's future, an American official told reporters.

Kushner and Witkoff were due to meet with Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, the official said, and were working to "determine what are the right next steps, so that we can keep the ceasefire and turn it into a long and enduring peace in Gaza".

Israeli media reports said that

US CENTCOM chief Admiral Brad Cooper was also visiting Israel yesterday.

"Yes, I can confirm a meeting is taking place today," Shosh Bedrosian, spokeswoman for Netanyahu's office told AFP when asked whether Witkoff and Kushner would meet the Israeli leader in Jerusalem.

Israeli media reported that the talks would also focus on the return of the remains of the last Israeli hostage still held in Gaza.

Green growth

Advanced methods support sustainable expansion of Bahrain’s date palm sector

Participants at the seminar

● From local groves to international markets through modern cultivation

TDT | Manama

Experts, investors and policymakers discussed how advanced technologies could transform date palm cultivation and green spaces in the Kingdom.

Bahrain’s commitment to exploring sustainable agricultural growth was highlighted at a seminar titled “Greener Bahrain: Innovations in Date Palm Production and Landscape Strategies,” organised by Bahrain Food Monitor and held recently at the Swiss-Belhotel Seef.

The seminar was graced by prominent dignitaries, including Dr. Zakaria Ahmed Hejres, Chairman of Bahrain Food Monitor and Mena Centre of Investment; Dr. Hana Kanoo, CEO of BFM and MCI; and Maryam Mattar, Director of BFM and MCI, reflecting Bahrain’s commitment to integrating sustainability into both agriculture and urban planning.

A key focus of the discussions was tissue culture technology, which enables the rapid production of thousands of uniform, disease-free date palms from a single parent tree.

This method is faster and more reliable than traditional propagation and could help Bahrain meet growing global demand, according to Dr. Biju Mullassery, Director of Clone Biotech, who led the session.

peaking to The Daily Tribune, Dr. Mullassery emphasized that with the right support from the government and private sector partners, Bahrain could establish a world-class laboratory dedicated to large-scale date palm propagation.

Production

The seminar delved into the potential of large-scale production of high-quality date palm seedlings, highlighting the market and business opportunities it could generate, as well as the challenges of scaling up.

This initiative could create precision-based jobs, particularly for women, while also conserving indigenous date palm varieties through organogenesis technology.

Experts noted that it represents a promising business opportunity in the current global market where Egypt is the largest producer followed by Saudi Arabia renowned for its premium-quality dates, and India is the biggest consumer.

Technology

By leveraging tissue culture technology, Bahrain has the potential to capture a share of this growing international market while boosting local production.

However, challenges remain, including high infrastructure costs with an estimated BD1.65 million to establish a laboratory, the need for skilled labor and training, and regulatory requirements, such as import permits for chemicals like ammonium nitrate.

Despite these hurdles, experts are optimistic.

With proper government support, including subsidies and regulatory facilitation, this initiative could transform Bahrain into a global player in date palm cultivation.

Laboratories

Investors can participate through establishing laboratories, partnering in plant multiplication, or exporting tissue-cultured plants, creating new economic opportunities for the Kingdom.

By combining the conservation of local varieties with large-scale commercial production, Bahrain is poised to build a sustainable, high-value sector that could place the country at the forefront of global date palm innovation.

Working with land, not against it: Path to smarter, greener cities

Mrs Banupriya Sivaraj

Bahrain is embracing smart landscaping strategies to tackle challenges like saline soils, water scarcity, and extreme heat.

These topics were at the heart of a seminar on sustainable landscape and resource-based strategies organised by Bahrain Food Monitor at Swiss-Belhotel Seef.

Much of Bahrain’s soil is saline, calcareous, or alkaline, limiting plant survival without careful planning.

Water quality is another concern, with high pH, salts, chloride, and sulphate levels posing risks to many species.

“Soil and water are the foundation of any successful landscape,” said Mrs Banupriya Sivaraj, Senior Agricultural Engineer at Kingdom Landscapes, who led the seminar.

“Ignoring these factors often creates green spaces that fail and demand excessive water. Landscaping must adapt to Bahrain’s environment, not just policy targets.”

Urban Solutions

With 1.7 million residents, urban areas, especially the Capital Governorate face high population density, putting pressure on green spaces.

Experts highlighted vertical gardens, rooftop greenery, and compact urban planting systems as practical solutions.

These small-scale approaches transform streetscapes, building facades, bus stops, and public facilities while reducing urban heat and improving air quality.

Irrigation

The seminar emphasized modern irrigation methods for residential landscapes, including sub-surface drip systems and smart sprinklers.

These tools optimize water use, ensuring plants thrive even in saline or challenging soils.

Careful plant selection, focusing on heat-tolerant, drought-resistant, and wind-resilient species - was also stressed, with date palms highlighted for their natural salt tolerance.

Food security

Experts discussed how desert landscape strategies, high-tech greenhouses, desert agroforestry, and fruit orchards can boost fruit and vegetable production, particularly in rural areas.

These approaches make productive use of arid land and contribute to Bahrain’s long-term food security goals.

Contribution

Mrs Sivaraj urged residents to plant at least one tree or plant each, noting that collective efforts could help achieve Bahrain’s target of 3.5 million trees by 2035.

“If each person contributes even one plant, it brings us closer to our national greening goal,” she said.

A Smarter, Greener Future

The seminar concluded with a clear message: Bahrain’s green future depends on working with nature, not against it.

Through smart urban planning, climate-adaptive planting, modern irrigation, desert landscape strategies, and active public participation, the Kingdom can expand green spaces sustainably, improve urban livability, and make environmental and food security goals a tangible part of everyday life.

Bahrain, China sign deal on aquaculture and fisheries

TDT | Manama

The Supreme Council for Environment of the Kingdom of Bahrain and the Ministry of Commerce of the People’s Republic of China signed a Bahraini-Chinese implementing agreement in the field of aquaculture, fish farming and fisheries in the Kingdom.

The agreement forms part of the fifth phase of the technical cooperation programme between the two countries in this field, aimed at enhancing cooperation in environmental, food security and sustainable development sectors.

His Excellency Dr. Mohamed bin Mubarak Bin Daina, Minister of Oil and Environment and Special Envoy for Climate Affairs, signed the agreement.

The ceremony was attended by Ni Ruchi, Ambassador of the People’s Republic of China to the Kingdom of Bahrain, who delivered the text signed by Wang Wentao, Minister of Commerce of the People’s Republic of China.

The agreement supports national directions to strengthen food security.

Reweaving the Palm Tree for a New Generation

Hasan Barakat
TDT | Manama

Once a necessity of everyday life, palm weaving is now being reexamined as a contemporary design language, as designers, researchers and artisans gathered at Al Riwaq Art Space to debate the future of palm tree heritage.

Held under the slogan When Art Meets Design, the talk brought together organisers to reconsider how khus weaving can move beyond preservation and into contemporary design, collaboration and material experimentation.

Moderated by Robert Frith, the session explored how khus, traditionally woven from date palm leaves for shelter, storage and everyday use, can carry new meaning without losing its relationship to land and labour.

Frith explained that the residency was designed to unite masters of the craft with designers and researchers from different disciplines, allowing the material itself to guide experimentation rather than forcing it into predefined design trends.

Mariam Al Noaimi, a Bahraini architect and researcher, spoke about the palm tree as a system of knowledge rather than an object.

She stressed that khus weaving carries languages, rhythms and techniques developed through generations living alongside palm groves.

Mariam Al Noaimi

These skills, she noted, are learned through proximity to land and practice, not abstraction.

Removing the craft from its social and environmental context risks turning it into surface decoration rather than lived knowledge.

Robert Frith

Sara Kanoo, a Bahraini architect involved in family run art spaces, expanded on this idea by questioning how palm trees are often reduced to visual motifs in urban landscapes.

She argued that treating the palm as ornament strips it of its role as a provider of material, shade and community structure.

True sustainability, she said, lies in supporting the people who work with khus and the land that produces it, allowing the craft to evolve without erasing its roots.

Together, the discussion reframed the palm tree not as heritage frozen in time, but as a material practice capable of shaping contemporary design through care.

Homebuyer couple win court order for BD20,000 refund

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

A couple who tried to buy a BD145,000 home have won a High Civil Court order requiring the seller and her guarantor to repay BD20,000, along with court costs and a contribution towards lawyer's fees.

The dispute arose after the sale fell through at the final stage, when the seller required that she remain in the property for a year after the transfer of title, a condition the bank financing the purchase would not accept.

With the bank refusing to proceed, the couple went to court to recover the outstanding amount they said was owed back to them.

Client

Lawyer Mohammed Al Mahdi said his client and her husband filed a claim against two defendants, asking the court to order joint and several payment of BD20,000, plus statutory interest from the date of demand until payment in full.

Court papers said the couple signed a preliminary sale contract for BD145,000 to be paid in instalments. They paid BD20,000 first, followed by BD55,000, then BD70,000, with the bank processing that third payment.

When the bank rejected the deal due to the one-year occupancy requirement, the claimants said a written debt acknowledgement was produced for the remaining BD20,000.

It was signed by the second defendant as guarantor for the seller, with an undertaking to pay the sum within a specified period. The amount was not paid, leading to the lawsuit.

Records

The court considered the case through its hearing records.

The claimants attended, while the defendants did not appear or file a defence disputing the debt.

The judgment referred to provisions in the Law of Evidence on the standing of private documents unless the signature or handwriting is expressly denied, as well as Civil Code rules stating that contracts bind the parties and that obligations tied to future conditions do not arise unless the condition is met.

Contract

The court found that the preliminary sale contract was proven, but that completion of the sale was not possible because the seller's requirement to stay in the property for a year ran against the bank's rules.

With no challenge from the defendants and no repayment made, the court held that liability for the BD20,000 was established.

It ordered the two defendants to pay the couple BD20,000 jointly and severally, and to cover the costs of the case and lawyer's fees.

MP Al Dhaen hails Rayaat Al Watan Youth Forum

MP Dr Maryam Al Dhaen said the Rayaat Al Watan Forum, run by the AlMabarrah AlKhalifia Foundation, centres on training, job skills and volunteering for young Bahrainis, and pointed to the interest shown by His Highness Shaikh Khalifa bin Ali Al Khalifa, Governor of the Southern Governorate.

Dr Al Dhaen said the forum aims to strengthen young people's educational and professional skills through structured programmes that provide practical training and real workplace experience.

She referred to the Governor's attendance at events linked to youth development, describing it as support for programmes aimed at helping young people move from study into work and community service.

Work

Dr Al Dhaen also spoke about the wider work of the AlMabarrah AlKhalifia Foundation in education and skills-building, including its emphasis on practical training.

The Foundation is chaired by Her Highness Shaikha Zain bint Khalid bin Abdulla Al Khalifa, Chairperson of the Board of Directors, with programmes that aim to raise education standards, build youth skills and prepare participants for labour market needs.

She said the Foundation also places volunteering and community service at the heart of its work, linking it to stronger responsibility and life skills alongside job skills.

Values

Dr Al Dhaen said volunteering helps build ethical and humanitarian values among young people and encourages them to take part in community work.

She said the Rayaat Al Watan Forum included dialogue sessions, professional workshops and recognition of trainees and participants, adding that it offers hands-on learning and new experiences aimed at preparing them for the future.

She also referred to the Southern Governorate's support for youth and community programmes and its role in helping create an environment where talent can grow and opportunities are available to young people.

MPs to review unified GCC law on plant genetic resources

Mohammed Moosa, Chairman of Parliament's Public Utilities and Environment Committee

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

Seeds and plant genetic resources would come under a unified GCC rulebook in Bahrain under a draft law due to be debated by MPs.

The Council of Representatives is expected to consider the Public Utilities and Environment Committee's report on the bill approving the Unified GCC Regulation (Law) on Plant Genetic Resources for Food and Agriculture, attached to Decree No. 65 of 2025.

The committee has recommended approval in principle.

The draft law contains a preamble and eight articles.

Authority

It approves the unified regulation and defines the 'competent authority' as the government body to be named by decree to apply its provisions.

The head of that authority would issue a decision forming the national committee established under Article 5 of the unified regulation, and would set out its remit and how it works.

A separate decision would fix the bands of fees due for licences and services. It would be issued by the head of the competent authority after Cabinet approval.

The bill also lays out a route for grievances against decisions issued under the unified regulation, its executive regulations and related decisions.

Notification

An affected party would have 30 days from notification by registered letter with acknowledgement of receipt, or electronically, to submit a grievance to the competent authority.

The competent authority would have 30 days to decide, and silence after that period would count as a refusal.

A challenge to a refusal could then be filed before the competent court within 30 days from notification of the refusal, or from the point it is treated as refused.

High Civil Court orders $90,000 repayment to Gulf investor

Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

A Gulf investor has won a High Civil Court judgment ordering the fourth defendant to repay $90,000, after the court found no proof she returned the principal or paid any profit once the agreed term expired.

The court also ordered her to pay BD776,500 in court fees, BD1,000 in lawyers' fees and BD500 for the expert.

In its reasons, the court said the case papers and an expert report commissioned by the claimant showed the $90,000 was paid to the fourth defendant under a placement memorandum she issued in July 2007, and deposited into her designated bank account.

That, the court said, placed responsibility for managing the investment and returning the funds on her.

The court said the file contained no evidence that the defendant paid the claimant any profit or repaid the principal after the agreed five-year term, which it treated as a breach of contract.

The investor's lawyer, Dina Al Qumaish, said her client held an investment portfolio with the defendants and added $90,000 after being offered an arrangement linked to an infrastructure project.

Under the terms, she said, he was due to receive the principal and profit after five years.

She said the years passed without any profit being paid and without the investment being returned.

She added that the refusal to pay continued for close to a decade, from 2014 until the claim was filed, causing direct financial loss.

Focus on sports, auditing and civil service bills

Shura Council
Mohammed Darwish
TDT | Manama

Three draft laws will be on the Shura Council's agenda today, including changes to Bahrain's sports professionalism rules that would give national federations wider scope on technical matters while keeping them bound by domestic law.

Members are due to review a Youth Committee report supporting Decree-Law No. 40 of 2025, which amends Law No. 8 of 2021 on sports professionalism.

The decree-law aims to cement respect for the technical independence of sports federations, keep a single national rulebook by assigning the task of issuing general rules for the professionalism system to the President of the General Sports Authority, and deal with matters linked to professional athletes' contracts and transfers.

Freedom

The committee recommended backing the decree-law, saying it balances federations' technical freedom with legal duties under Bahrain's laws.

It said different sports have different technical and competitive needs, and argued federations should be able to draft and issue professionalism regulations and manage contracts and transfers without cumbersome central procedures or prior approvals that, in practice, have slowed progress.

Five detained for 'storing, modifying and marketing expired goods'

Prosecutors have ordered the detention of five suspects as part of an investigation into the possession and sale of expired food products after their expiry dates were altered.

The Public Prosecutor and Deputy Head of the Prosecution for Ministries and Public Bodies said the suspects were accused of storing, modifying and marketing expired goods after tampering with their original expiration dates.

Two commercial premises and a residential property used to store the products have also been placed under seizure.

Report

The case began after police in the capital received a report from an Asian national who said his roommate was keeping expired food products at their shared residence and changing the dates before preparing them

KNOW WHAT

Two commercial premises and a residential property used to store the products have also been placed under seizure.

Repackaged goods bearing the names of foreign companies with no connection to the products were also seized.

Further investigations led to the arrest of additional suspects involved in distributing the altered goods.

One was found to be working at a cleaning products distribution company, where more expired and spoiled items were discovered.

Custody

Prosecutors said the five suspects have been questioned and remanded in custody pending further investigations.

Officials from the Ministry of Industry and Commerce have been tasked with inspecting the seized items and tracking similar products in the market.

The suspects are expected to be referred to criminal court once inquiries are completed.

Where Ideas Are Built, Not Shown

Hasan Barakat
TDT | Manama

In Bahrain's evolving cultural landscape, Al Riwaq Art Space occupies a position shaped less by spectacle and more by sustained engagement.

Established in 1998 as a commercial gallery, the space gradually shifted direction, expanding into a non-profit campus for art and design that prioritises process, research and public interaction over display alone.

Origins

From its early years, Al Riwaq played a quiet but influential role in supporting contemporary and conceptual practices in Bahrain.

Its programmes moved beyond exhibitions to include lectures, residencies and educational initiatives, contributing to the transformation of the Block 338 neighbourhood in Adliya.

That phase marked a turning point where art became embedded in everyday urban life rather than confined to gallery walls.

Shift

Today, Al Riwaq operates from its current location in the Qufool area, within a historic residence that once hosted private social gatherings.

The building has been reim-

Al Riwaq Art Space expands into a non-profit campus for art and design agined as a campus for creative practice, opening its spaces to artists and the wider public.

This move reflects a deeper transformation in identity, marking an evolution from commercial beginnings to a non-profit model grounded in accessibility, experimentation and cultural exchange.

Material

Walking through the campus, materials carry as much meaning as the artworks themselves.

Many of the installations and sculptural forms are created using palm fronds, woven khous and found objects, including a piece constructed from parts of a hand broom.

These choices foreground local craft traditions while questioning how everyday materials can be reimaged through contemporary design.

Spaces

Among the installations, An Interpretation of the Living Space presents furniture inspired by Mudhif structures and reed based craftsmanship from the marshlands.

Traditional forms are abstracted into modern seating and surfaces, accompanied by a model of the original Mudhif to trace the evolution from past to present. In Unconstrained, reed mats and Mudhif style windows define a restrained interior where texture and tactility take precedence over polished form, offering a reflective reading of Arab urban architecture.

Practice

Beyond exhibitions, Al Riwaq runs programmes ranging from residencies to long and short format courses and workshops.

These initiatives emphasise experimentation, theoretical discussion and mentorship, positioning the space as a site for learning and dialogue rather than promotion.

As a non-profit institution, its role remains focused on cultivating artistic inquiry and public engagement within Bahrain's cultural ecosystem.

Bahrain-US strategic dialogue

His Excellency Shaikh Hisham bin Abdulrahman Al Khalifa, Undersecretary of the Ministry of Interior for Nationality, Passports and Residence Affairs (NPRA), chaired the fifth round of the Bahrain-United States Strategic Dialogue, held via videoconference, alongside Monica Jacobsen, Senior Official at the Counterterrorism Bureau of the United States Department of State. The meeting was attended by Stephanie L. Hallett, Ambassador of the US to the Kingdom of Bahrain. H.E. Shaikh Hisham bin Abdulrahman noted the importance of the meeting as a continuation of the outcomes of the visit of General Shaikh Rashid bin Abdullah Al Khalifa, Minister of Interior, to the US, which underscored strengthening frameworks of security cooperation and coordination between the two countries.

Outstanding employee

The President of Customs, His Excellency Shaikh Ahmed bin Hamad Al Khalifa, attended a ceremony organised by Customs Affairs to honour outstanding employees and those who participated in the second edition of the "Fikra" customs competition. The event was held as part of the activities marking World Customs Day 2026, under the theme "Customs Protects Society through Commitment and Responsibility." The President of Customs praised the distinguished efforts and valuable achievements of Customs Affairs personnel across all customs-related fields. He noted that these accomplishments reflect a high level of vigilance and professionalism.

Wall Street intends to stay open around the clock

- NYSE parent developing 24/7 trading platform
- Would use digital tokens for shares

AFP | Washington

The closing and opening bells of the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE) may become a ringing ritual of yesteryear, as the market moves toward non-stop trading.

This week, the Intercontinental Exchange announced it is developing a platform for 24/7 operations that offers “instant settlement.”

The around-the-clock operations would rely on digital tokens mirroring the shares of listed companies, the NYSE’s parent company said in a statement.

NASDAQ, another New York-based trading exchange, could follow suit as early as this year.

The move is pending approval by federal regulators at the US Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), and would amount to a minor revolution for the way money moves in US stock markets.

‘Waste of time’

In the early days of the exchange, investors had to be physically present in markets on Wall Street to “stand and yell at each other and wave pieces of paper, and then they would have to write down what everybody bought and sold,” Sam Burns, chief strategist at Mill Street Research, told AFP.

That meant “having trading go on all day every day would sort of be impossible to keep up with,” Burns said.

Digitized transactions can change all that.

Off-hours trading has already been on the rise since 2019, exploding since 2024 when the daily average topped $61 billion, according to a NYSE report in early 2025.

But the appeal remains limited, according to Steve Hanke, a professor of applied economics at Johns Hopkins University.

“Historically, there is little evidence that supports the idea that the benefits of 24-hour trading outweigh the costs,” he said, adding that there “are few market-moving events that occur outside of normal business hours in New York City.”

“Night trading proved to be a waste of time,” he said.

Hanke said the real advantage in the NYSE’s announcement lies in the time needed to finalize a trade -- a process that usually occurs the next day in most stock markets.

“Narrowing the settlement window may prove to be a significant competitive advantage,” Hanke said.

Attracting the young and foreigners

As host to immense market caps, the US market remains the largest in the world, but competition is growing.

Last year, many European indexes generated returns that outpaced their US counterparts.

With extended hours, Wall Street may be able to attract smaller investors and those outside the Americas.

Nearly 18 percent of US shares belonged to non-US holders in 2024, according to the US Treasury’s most recent available figures.

And fans of cryptocurrency trading may jump into stocks, said Burns, the Mill Street Research strategist.

“A lot of retail investors nowadays, particularly younger ones, seem to like the idea of being able to trade stocks all the time the way they do cryptocurrencies and other digital assets, whether it’s nights or weekends,” Burns said.

It is unlikely that the change would move traditional investors from banker’s hours because the impacts of any change are likely to be limited,” Burns added.

“Most institutional investors that trade the real money aren’t really interested in working or trading on the weekends, and the fact (is) that banks are mostly still closed on the weekends,” Burns said.

Libya announces $20 bn energy deal with TotalEnergies, ConocoPhillips
AFP | Tripoli

Libya said yesterday it signed an oil agreement worth more than $20 billion with TotalEnergies and ConocoPhillips, seeking to ramp up production by 850,000 barrels a day for the next 25 years.

Prime Minister Abdulhamid Dbeibah said the agreement with the French and American energy firms would bring in revenues of more than $370 billion over the 25-year life of the deal, adding it was fully financed outside the state budget.

The announcement came as the Libya Energy and Economic Summit opened in Tripoli, attended by US President Donald Trump’s Middle East adviser Massad Boulos, along with other officials, including from Turkey and Egypt.

Dbeibah said Libya was also set to sign an agreement with US energy giant Chevron covering exploration and production development, as well as a separate deal with Egypt to support services in the sector.

Libya currently produces around 1.5 million barrels a day, sitting on Africa’s largest oil reserves at an estimated 48.4 billion barrels.

But the oil industry has faced major challenges, including security issues, with the country still divided after a NATO-backed revolt toppled and killed longtime leader Moamer Kadhafi in 2011.

Trump threatens Canada with 100% tariff if it completes China trade deal

AFP | Washington

US President Donald Trump yesterday warned Canada that if it concludes a trade deal with China, he will impose a 100 percent tariff on all goods coming over the border.

Relations between the United States and its northern neighbor have been rocky since Trump returned to the White House a year ago, with spats over trade and Canadian Prime Minister Mark Carney decrying a “rupture” in the US-led global order.

During a visit to Beijing last week, Carney hailed a “new strategic partnership” with China that resulted in a “preliminary but landmark trade agreement” to reduce tariffs -- but Trump warned of serious consequences should that deal be realized.

If Carney “thinks he is going to make Canada a ‘Drop Off Port’ for China to send goods and products into the United States, he is sorely mistaken,” Trump wrote on his Truth Social platform.

“China will eat Canada alive, completely devour it, including the destruction of their businesses, social fabric, and general way of life,” he said.

“If Canada makes a deal with China, it will immediately be hit with a 100% Tariff against all Canadian goods and products coming into the USA.”

The two leaders have sharpened their rhetorical knives in recent days, beginning with Carney’s speech on Tuesday at the World Economic Forum in Davos, where he earned a standing ovation for his frank assessment of a “rupture” in the US-led global order.

His comment was widely viewed as a reference to Trump’s disruptive influence on international affairs, although the US leader was not mentioned by name.

Trump fired back at Carney a day later in his own speech, and then withdrew an invitation for the Canadian prime minister to join his “Board of Peace” -- his self-styled body for resolving global conflict.

Initially designed to oversee the situation in postwar Gaza, the body appears now to have a far wider scope, sparking concerns that Trump wants to create a rival to the United Nations.

“Canada doesn’t live because of the United States. Canada thrives because we are Canadian,” Carney said Thursday in a national address, while acknowledging the “remarkable partnership between the two nations.”

Trade spats

Canada is heavily reliant on trade with the United States, the destination for more than three quarters of Canadian exports.

Key Canadian sectors like auto, aluminum and steel have been hit hard by Trump’s global sectoral tariffs, but the impacts of the levies have been muted by the president’s broad adherence to an existing North American free trade agreement.

Negotiations on revising that deal are set for the start of this year, and Trump has repeatedly insisted the United States doesn’t need access to any Canadian products -- which would have sweeping consequences for its northern neighbor.

Trump has also repeatedly threatened to annex Canada, and this week posted an image on social media of a map with Canada -- as well as Greenland and Venezuela -- covered by the American flag.

The two nations, along with Mexico, are set to host the World Cup later this year.

Crime Patterns

CAPTAIN MAHMOOD AL MAHMOOD

I followed the Public Prosecution's release of its 2025 annual statistics with close interest. Beyond the numbers, the data offers a clear picture of how crime is evolving — and how the justice system continues to respond in order to protect society and uphold the rule of law.

In 2025, the Public Prosecution handled nearly 60,000 cases, up from around 58,000 cases in 2024. This modest increase is not unexpected. Population growth, an expanding labor market, and a diverse workforce all play a role. While the statistics do not distinguish between citizens and non-citizens, the Capital Governorate recorded roughly 17,000 cases, reflecting its position as the country's main economic and employment center.

One figure that stands out is the nearly 10,000 cases handled by the Prosecution of Ministries and Public Entities. These cases often involve public funds or government bodies, making them especially significant. Their volume underscores the importance of strong oversight and highlights the Public Prosecution's role in safeguarding public resources and reinforcing accountability across state institutions.

Cybercrime is another area showing clear growth. The Cyber-crime Prosecution registered close to 10,000 cases, confirming that crime has increasingly moved online. Today, phones and digital platforms are no longer just tools of convenience; they can also become tools of crime. This shift places new demands on prosecutors, requiring technical expertise and modern investigative methods.

Financial crime and money laundering further illustrate this changing landscape. During the year, 40 cases were referred to the courts, including offenses related to tax evasion, money laundering, and corruption. More revealing than the number of cases, however, is the financial outcome. Confiscated funds exceeded BHD 7 million, fines topped BHD 1.5 million, and recovered amounts approached BHD 7 million. These figures reflect a firm and focused effort to protect the national economy and disrupt complex financial crimes.

Despite these challenges,

Bahrain continues to enjoy a strong level of safety and stability. Violent crime remains limited, supported by social cohesion, public awareness, and effective judicial institutions. Indonesia landslide kills eight, more than 80 missing

The disaster struck villages in West Bandung during the early hours of yesterday

- Triggered by heavy rainfall
- Search and rescue operations underway
- Forest loss linked to disaster risk

AFP | Washington

A landslide killed at least eight people and left more than 80 missing on Indonesia's main island of Java yesterday, a disaster official said.

Triggered by heavy rainfall, it struck villages in Java's West Bandung region in the early hours and buried residential areas.

Floods and landslides are common across the vast archipelago during the rainy season, which typically runs from October to March.

At 2:30 am (1930 GMT Friday), "there was a rumbling noise, like thunder", Oyoh, a resident of Pasirlangu village who, like many Indonesians, only has one name, told AFP.

"It had been raining non-stop since the morning, and then it (the landslide) happened. I immediately felt scared."

The 52-year-old had been evacuated to the village's government office along with dozens of others, mainly women and children.

She said her house survived the landslide, but her niece, her niece's husband and their two children were missing.

Destroyed greenhouses remain after a landslide struck in Pasirlangu village, Bandung, West Java Abdul Muhari, a spokesman for the national disaster agency, confirmed that eight people were killed and 82 were unaccounted for.

West Bandung's mayor Jeje Ritchie Ismail told reporters that the military, police and volunteers were assisting in the search.

However, he warned the terrain was extremely difficult and the ground remained unstable.

The local search and rescue agency said it was conducting manual excavation, spraying the soil with water pumps and using drones to search for the victims.

Forest loss

The disaster comes after tropical storms and intense monsoon rains late last year triggered flooding and landslides that killed around 1,200 people and displaced more than 240,000 in Indonesia's Sumatra island, according to official figures.

Environmentalists, experts and the government have pointed to the role forest loss played in the flooding and landslides that washed torrents of mud into villages.

Forests help absorb rainfall and stabilise the ground held by their roots, and their absence makes areas more prone to flash flooding and landslides, David Gaveau, founder of conservation start-up The TreeMap, told AFP in December.

Indonesia lost more than 240,000 hectares of primary forest in 2024, according to analysis by The TreeMap's Nusantara Atlas project.

It is regularly among the countries with the largest annual forest loss as mining, plantations and fires have caused the clearance of large tracts of lush vegetation in recent decades, NGOs have said.

The government filed multiple lawsuits following the Sumatra floods, seeking more than $200 million in damages against six firms. It also stripped more than two dozen permits this week from forestry, mining and hydroelectric companies in Sumatra.

EU labels India "Indispensable" ahead of landmark New Delhi summit

TDT | Agencies

The European Union on Wednesday hailed India as an "indispensable" partner for Europe's economic and security resilience, setting an ambitious tone for a landmark summit in New Delhi next week intended to bridge trade and defense divides.

High Representative for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy Kaja Kallas told the European Parliament that the bloc is ready to deliver a "powerful new agenda" with New Delhi.

The 16th EU-India Summit, scheduled for January 27, will see the adoption of a strategic roadmap toward 2030, marking what officials describe as a "pivotal reset" in ties.

The high-level visit coincides with EU leadership attending India's Republic Day celebrations as chief guests.

Central to the discussions is the push to finalize a long-pending Free Trade Agreement. Kallas noted that the deal would be crucial for strengthening critical supply chains in semiconductors and pharmaceuticals, sectors that have become geopolitical flashpoints.

She emphasized that the partnership is moving from "words to action" as both democracies face an international order under "unprecedented strain" from conflict and economic fragmentation.

Beyond commerce, the EU expects to sign a new Security and Defence Partnership during the New Delhi visit.

This agreement is set to bolster cooperation in maritime security and counterterrorism, particularly in the Indo-Pacific region.

Kallas underlined that in a more dangerous world, both sides stand to gain from tighter military and cyber-defense coordination, noting that India is becoming a cornerstone of Europe's strategic calculus.

The summit is also expected to produce a memorandum of understanding on mobility, facilitating the movement of students, researchers, and highly skilled professionals between the two regions.

This framework aims to boost long-term competitiveness through shared innovation in artificial intelligence and green energy.

Kallas acknowledged that while negotiations have been challenging, the shared responsibility to uphold international law makes the deepening of ties a necessity for the 21st century.

As New Delhi prepares to host the EU's top leadership, the message from Brussels remains clear: India is no longer just a major partner but a vital anchor for stability in a rapidly changing geopolitical landscape.

Ukraine, Russia, US agree to more talks next week in UAE

Negotiations end constructively but Kyiv accuses Moscow of undermining them with overnight strikes

Ukraine and Russia conclude two days of talks

Russia launches major overnight strikes on Ukraine

Millions left without power and heat

AFP | Abu Dhabi

Ukraine and Russia ended two days of US-brokered direct talks yesterday and agreed to hold more next week in Abu Dhabi, even as Kyiv accused Moscow of undermining the negotiations towards ending the war by launching fresh strikes.

Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky said of the talks that “a lot was discussed, and it is important that the conversations were constructive”.

He added that next round could take place “as early as next week”.

On the eve of the second day of talks, Russia launched a barrage of drones and missiles on Ukraine, cutting off millions from electricity in sub-zero temperatures. Kyiv accused Moscow of undermining the negotiations by launching yet another “night of Russian terror”.

A UAE government spokesperson said the talks, which involved top military officers from both sides, had been held in a “constructive and positive atmosphere”.

But weary Kyiv residents, who had gone through yet another sleepless night, had little hope for a breakthrough.

“They’ll just say that everything is fine, that again, nothing has been agreed, and again there will be rockets,” said

UAE President Sheikh Mohamed bin Zayed al-Nahyan (C) speaking with the heads of delegations participating in the UAE-hosted trilateral talks between the US, Russia and Ukraine, at the Al Shati Palace in Abu Dhabi Anastasia Tolkachov, who had to spend a night in a car park.

When asked by AFP about the negotiations, another Kyiv resident, who gave only her first name, Valentina, said: “I don’t think anything will happen. We’ll just have to keep freezing a little longer, somehow.”

At night, AFP journalists saw people running through the streets to find shelter as explosions lit up the capital’s sky.

According to the Emirati spokesperson, the talks were held on “outstanding elements of the US-proposed peace framework as well as confidence-building measures”.

According to Zelensky, “the central focus of the discussions was the possible parameters for ending the war”.

Both warring sides say the fate of territory in the eastern Donbas region is the main unresolved issue in the search for a settlement.

‘Again and again’

Over a million people in Kyiv and Chernigiv were left without electricity in sub-zero temperatures due to Russian strikes. About half of Kyiv’s apartment blocks were cut off from heating, Ukrainian authorities said.

“This night in Kyiv, it’s really all happening again and again,” Iryna Berehova, 48, told AFP, adding: “These explosions, these sleepless nights, these worries for our children, for our safety, they are very exhausting.”

“These negotiations that are taking place don’t even give us any hope for the better.”

The European Union, which has sent hundreds of power generators to Ukraine, has accused Moscow of “deliberately depriving civilians of heat”.

Zelensky last week declared a state of emergency in the energy sector, which has been battered by relentless Russian strikes on heat and electricity supplies.

The Moscow-installed governor in the occupied Kherson region, Vladimir Saldo, said a Ukrainian drone strike killed three people in an ambulance van heading to a sick man.

The war has killed tens of thousands, displaced millions and devastated large swathes of Ukraine.

While diplomacy to end Europe’s worst conflict since World War II has gained pace again, Moscow and Kyiv appear deadlocked over the issue of territory.

Donbas territory dispute

US President Donald Trump met Zelensky at the World Economic Forum in Davos on Thursday and US envoy Steve Witkoff later held talks with Vladimir Putin in the Kremlin.

Hours after Putin met Witkoff -- and Trump’s son-in-law Jared Kushner -- in Moscow, the Kremlin said its demand that

YOU
KNOW WHAT

The talks in Abu Dhabi were the first face-to-face meeting between Russian and Ukrainian negotiators specifically discussing the US-proposed peace framework since talks in Istanbul failed last summer

Kyiv withdraw from the eastern Donbas region still stood, calling it “a very important condition”.

Kyiv rejects it. “The Donbas is a key issue,” Zelensky told reporters on Friday, ahead of the talks in the UAE.

Zelensky said he and Trump had agreed on post-war security guarantees in Davos.

Russian and Ukrainian negotiators are last known to have met face-to-face in Istanbul last summer, in talks that ended only in deals to exchange captured soldiers.

The Abu Dhabi meeting was the first time they have faced each other to talk about the Trump administration’s plan.

An initial US draft drew heavy criticism in Kyiv and western Europe for hewing too closely to Moscow’s demands, while Russia rejected later versions for proposing European peacekeepers in Ukraine.

Putin has repeatedly said Moscow intends to get full control of eastern Ukraine by force if talks fail.

Trump has in the past pressured Ukraine to agree to terms that Kyiv sees as capitulation.

Outrage across Europe after Trump says NATO avoided Afghan front line

AFP | Copenhagen

US President Donald Trump has sparked outrage across Europe after claiming that NATO allies shied away from the front line in Afghanistan.

In an interview with Fox News aired on Thursday, Trump claimed NATO had sent “some troops” but “stayed a little back, a little off the front lines”.

He also repeated his suggestion that the alliance would not come to the aid of the United States if asked to do so.

“I fully understand that Danish veterans have said no words can describe how much this hurts,” Danish Prime Minister Mette said yesterday on Facebook.

“It is unacceptable that the American president questions the commitment of allied sola wall bearing the names of British military personnel who have died in Afghanistan since 2001 at the British Cemetery in Kabul diers in Afghanistan,” she added.

In the interview, Trump appeared unaware that 457 British soldiers were among NATO troops who died during the conflict in Afghanistan following the September 11, 2001, attacks on the United States.

British Prime Minister Keir Starmer said Friday: “I consider President Trump’s remarks to be insulting and frankly, appalling, and I’m not surprised they’ve caused such hurt to the loved ones of those who were killed or injured.”

The White House rejected Starmer’s comments and defended Trump.

“President Trump is absolutely right -- the United States of America has done more for NATO than any other country in the alliance has done combined,” Taylor Rogers, a White House spokeswoman, said in a statement sent to AFP.

Following the 9/11 attacks, Britain and a number of other allies joined the United States from 2001 in Afghanistan after it invoked NATO’s collective security clause.

“Denmark is one of the NATO countries that has suffered the highest losses per capita,” the Danish prime minister underscored.

The country’s population was about 5.4 million in 2003 and, according to the Danish news agency Ritzau, around 12,000 Danish soldiers and civilians had been sent to Afghanistan over the years.

As well as Britain, troops from other NATO ally countries including Canada, France, Germany, Italy and Denmark also died.

“Let us honour the 53 Italian soldiers who fell during the mission in Afghanistan,” Foreign Minister Antonio Tajani said in a post on X yesterday.

Manama

In the presence of His Highness Shaikh Faisal bin Rashid bin Isa Al Khalifa, Vice President of the Supreme Council for Environment, Deputy Chairman of the High Committee of the Rashid Equestrian and Horseracing Club (REHC), and Member of the Supreme Council for Youth and Sports, the REHC held the 15th race of the 2025/2026 season at the Club's racecourse in Al Raffah, Sakhir.

The race was held over the Cups of the Supreme Council for Women (SCW), Bahrain Jewellery Centre, Turkish Airlines, and Annoushka Jewellery (UK)..

The race was attended by a number of Their Highnesses and Excellencies, members of the diplomatic corps, HE Lulwa bint Saleh Al Awadhi, Secretary General of the Supreme Council for Women, Dr. Shaikha Hessa bint Khalid Al Khalifa, Member of SCW, in addition to representatives of the race sponsors.

The race featured the third edition of the RoyalTea, organized by the REHC in cooperation and partnership with the SCW, as part of ongoing efforts to enhance female participation and presence in equestrian sports and horseracing.

The evening featured a range of activities that created a distinctive atmosphere and attracted prominent female figures alongside a strong public turnout. Attendees enjoyed a unique experience combining the heritage and authenticity of equestrian sport with elegance and distinction, in addition to the accompanying activities and the excitement of the race rounds, as RoyalTea continued its success for the third consecutive season.

The winners of the race cups were crowned, with Dr. Shaikha Hessa bint Khalid Al Khalifa presenting the Supreme Council for Women Cup to the winning trainer Daniel Kubler, while HH Shaikh Salman bin Mohammed bin Isa Al Khalifa received the sixth-round trophy from Mrs. Dhawiya Sayed Sharaf Al Alawi, Member of the SCW.

Meanwhile, Mr. Mustafa Dokmetas, General Manager of Turkish Airlines Bahrain Office, presented the second-round trophy to the winning owner Hussain Al Afoo, while Ms. Elena Al Sharif, representative of Annoushka Jewellery, presented the seventh-round trophy to the winning trainer Robert McDowall.

Harnkova and Tikhonova claim doubles title at Manama Open

Winners with their trophies

TDT | Manama

Slovakia's Viktoria Harnkova and Russia's Anastasia Tikhonova captured the women's doubles title at the inaugural Manama Open after defeating Belgium's Paulina Bekmotkina and Germany's Mina Hodzic in straight sets, the Bahrain Tennis Federation said yesterday.

The duo sealed the final with a 6-4, 6-3 victory in a competitive match that showcased high technical standards, with the trophy presented by Bahrain Tennis Federation president Sheikh Abdulaziz bin Mubarak Al Khalifa in the presence of international tennis officials.

Attention now turns to the singles final, scheduled for Sunday at the Public Security Officers Club, where the winners of the semi-finals between France's Fiona Ferro and the Netherlands' Arantxa Rus, and between the United States' Carol Lee and Russia's Alina Korneeva, will contest the title.

The semi-final line-up was completed after Ferro advanced due to injury to American Claire Liu, while Rus booked her place with a three-set win over France's Caroline Monnet. Carol Lee edged past France's Jessika Ponchet in a tight three-set battle, and Korneeva progressed with a dominant straight-sets victory over Belgium's Sofia Costoulas, setting the stage for a high-profile conclusion to the tournament.

Reed surges four shots ahead at Hero Dubai Desert Classic

Manama

Patrick Reed stormed into a four-shot lead heading into the final round of the Hero Dubai Desert Classic, thanks to a brilliant 67 on Moving Day.

The American held a narrow overnight advantage at nine under but was quickly challenged by Francesco Molinari on the front nine. Molinari, who led after 18 holes, opened with three straight birdies to reach double figures before Reed hit back with three birdies and two bogeys in his first seven holes to join him at ten under.

Reed, the 2018 Masters champion, then finished his front nine with a birdie to edge ahead and did not look back, picking up three further shots to climb to 14 under at Emirates Golf Club as he pursues a maiden Rolex Series victory.

"I think the biggest thing right now is the driving. I feel like I'm driving the ball a little better right now," said Reed. "Once I saw putts go in this week, seems like the putter is back behaving doing what it's supposed to, and allows me to free up the rest of my golf game.

"You're always excited, showing up on Sunday with a lead. I feel like that's what all of us live for as players, competitors, to have a chance to win on Sundays. I know it's not going to be easy, it never is, and doesn't matter how big of a lead you have."

Spaniard David Puig surged into solo second following a birdie-birdie finish in a stunning 66 to reach ten under, with 2022 champion Viktor Hovland one shot further back alongside Englishman Andy Sullivan, who bounced back from bogeys at the eighth and ninth with three birdies on the back nine.

"It was a great day from start to finish," said Puig. "We were a little behind, and seeing Patrick Reed and all the guys that are up there are really good players, so I knew I needed a good one. Still a little behind but it's going really well. Hopefully tomorrow we have a good chance."

Hovland, who carded a bogey-free 65, said: "It was very nice and steady today. Hit a lot of fairways. I know I played a wonderful round of golf today. Certainly no complaints about a bogey-free 65 out here. This place is no joke. If I get off the tee and in a decent position, I can really do some damage."

Italian pair Molinari and Andrea Pavan were in a share of fifth at eight under, while Denmark's Thorbjørn Olesen and Spaniard Jorge Campillo sat at seven under.

Nicolai Højgaard led the group at six under alongside South African trio Jayden Schaper, Hennie du Plessis and amateur Christiaan Maas, as well as French pair Julien Guerrier and Martin Couvra.

Heat triggers Melbourne chaos as Djokovic hits landmark, Osaka out

Matches suspended for five hours on outside courts due to scorching temperatures

● Novak Djokovic wins 400th Grand Slam match

● Sinner, Keys and Swiatek advance

● Wawrinka bids farewell to Australia

AFP | Melbourne

Brutal heat triggered a five-hour suspension of matches on outside courts at the Australian Open yesterday as Novak Djokovic powered to another landmark win but Naomi Osaka pulled out.

Players and spectators roared on day seven at Melbourne Park, where temperatures soared to 38C.

The tournament's Heat Stress Scale hit the highest level of five in the early afternoon, prompting the suspension on courts without roofs and play did not resume until after 7:00 pm.

On a dramatic day on and off court, reigning champions Jan-nik Sinner and Madison Keys moved into the last 16, as did 10-time winner Djokovic.

Two-time champion Osaka was supposed to be in action in the third round but pulled out hours before because of an abdominal injury.

The Japanese star, who made a grand entrance this week in a jellyfish-inspired outfit, wrote on Instagram that "it breaks my heart".

She was due to face Australian qualifier Maddison Inglis, who goes on to play Iga Swiatek in the last 16.

Swiatek, the second seed from Poland, survived a roller coaster to beat 31st Russian seed Anna Kalinskaya 6-1, 1-6, 6-1.

Serbian great Djokovic is on his latest mission to win a record 25th Grand Slam crown.

Dutchman Botic van de Zandschulp 6-3, 6-4, 7-6 (7/4) on Rod Laver Arena.

He becomes the first player to win 400 Grand Slam matches.

"I'm still around. I'm hanging in there," said Djokovic, who has looked in ominous touch, yet to drop a set.

His reward is a meeting with Czech rising star Jakub Mensik.

Before that, Sinner admitted he was saved by the roof in his meeting with the American Eliot Spizzirri on Rod Laver Arena.

Play was stopped for about 10 minutes because of the baking heat, allowing time for the roof to close.

Sinner had been suffering from cramp in the fierce sun.

But with the roof shut he pulled through 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4 over a gruelling 3hr 45min.

"I struggled physically a bit today as you saw. I got lucky with the heat rule, they closed the roof," said the second seed.

His reward is a clash next with fellow Italian Luciano Darderi, the 22nd seed who defeated Russia's Karen Khachanov in four sets.

On a historic day for Italy, fifth seed Lorenzo Musetti saw off Tomas Machac in five sets.

It was the first time that three Italian men had reached the last 16 of the Australian Open.

The 40-year-old former champion is playing his last season.

"It's been an amazing journey," he said, cracking open a can on court afterwards.

Keys impresses

Earlier, Keys revelled in the scorching temperatures to set up a last-16 showdown with podcast co-host Jessica Pegula.

Matches started an hour earlier than usual because of the heatwave, and Keys had no intention of hanging about.

She dismissed former world number one Karolina Pliskova of the Czech Republic 6-3, 6-3

After admitting to being nervous and timid in embarking on her title defence, this was more like the Keys that stunned Aryna Sabalenka in the final a year ago.

The 30-year-old Keys said that being based in Florida meant she was used to hot temperatures.

"I am feeling really good and I was excited for the heat today, and ready for it," she said.

The ninth seed faces good friend and compatriot Pegula for a place in the quarter-finals.

The sixth-seeded Pegula powered past unseeded Russian Oksana Selekhmeteva 6-3, 6-2.

"Nice to be first out on court and not a super long match and didn't need to kill myself in the heat today," she said.

Pegula and Keys know each other well, even hosting a tennis podcast together.

Another title contender, Amanda Anisimova, made light work of fellow American Peyton Stearns 6-1, 6-4.

Scotland to replace Bangladesh at T20 World Cup

AFP | New Delhi

Scotland will replace Bangladesh at next month's T20 World Cup, cricket's governing body said yesterday, after Bangladesh effectively pulled out of the tournament due to a row over playing matches in India.

"Scotland has been called up to take Bangladesh's place in Group C, joining England, Italy, Nepal and the West Indies," the International Cricket Council (ICC) said.

The dispute between New Delhi and Dhaka erupted this month when the Indian cricket board ordered the Indian Premier League franchise Kolkata Knight Riders to release Bangladesh fast bowler Mustafizur Rahman.

Bangladesh then refused to play their games in India and asked that they be moved to co-host Sri Lanka, but the ICC rejected the appeal, saying there was "no credible or verifiable threat to the safety" of the team.

Their place will now go to Scotland, the next-highest-ranked T20 side, who had originally missed out on qualification.

The tournament begins on February 7.
