Spider-Man: Tom reveals new film title

IAN S | Los Angeles

Actor Tom Holland has leaked that the next "Spider-Man" is titled "Far From Home".

Holland made the revelation about the "Spider-Man: Homecoming" sequel, which also stars Jake Gyllenhaal as the villain Mysterio, via Instagram on Saturday, reports hollywood-rather impossible. The "Far From Home" title reflects that this will be the first "Spider-Man" solo movie to take the wallcrawler out of New York and put him in other parts of the world.

Adele works on her fitness for film role

Adele

IAN S | Los Angeles

Singer Adele is working towards becoming fitter so that she can try acting in a film.

The "Hello" singer has been secretly working out to videos of British fitness coach Joe Wicks.

Adele's new fitness target is to lose weight as she prepares to launch an acting career, reports dailystar.co.uk.

"Adele is a big fan of Joe Wicks. She's started trying out his workout videos at home and has also bought a few of his recipe books. They haven't met and Joe isn't training her personally. She has her own personal trainer but struggles to find the motivation to go to the gym if he's not with her.

"It's much easier for her to do one of Joe's quick video workouts at home," a source said.

Holland gave his first performance in the title role in 2008, receiving positive notices

"Life is really, really funny sometimes. It can be difficult, but, for the most part, if you do what makes you happy and set yourself free, you'll live an amazing life," Demi Lovato told the crowd.

The 25-year-old Lovato was performing live just hours after unveiling the song to the world with an emotional lyric video.

The Disney Pixar sequel picked up another $80 million, bringing its domestic total to $350.3 million.

The superhero tentpole, directed by Brad Bird, launched with $182.7 million, making it the best opening for an animated feature and the eighth-biggest debut of all time.
