They were divided into various groups before being given attempts to resolve different cases involving banking and financial applications.

Students were seen coming up with valuable suggestions and solutions as they analyzed each and every case offered to them.

after being offered different cases and they are given the opportunity to propose solutions and suggestions.

"One of the key areas we have been focusing here is as to how customer experience can be improved. For instance, somebody has a mobile app and he has many issues with its functions and he wants to call the executive, where there are long queues and long procedures like typing many numbers and so on. So the question is how to fix these problems while we make the technological route much easier for customers?"

Mr Aamir Janjua also intro-

"In fact, the process generally includes setting objectives, monitoring progress, and completing tasks to unlock rewards such as bonuses, cash incentives, and gifts."

"We will be highlighting some gamification methods used by leading companies such as Starbucks, McDonalds and others fixing various issues through the process."

Deena Moemen Alreefy, Marketing and Community Relations Specialist at Riffa Views International School, said the day is being organised keeping in view that students must frequently update themselves as fast-paced technologies change the daily lives of every individual.

"We are keen on incorporating the latest technologies and innovations into the curriculum, thereby helping the students get a balanced view regarding where the technological world is heading. Today, we are focusing on the significance of Artificial Intelligence, financial technologies and other innovations."

She said the event also offers students a great chance to get exposed to top banking and technological executives, who are authorities in various aspects of banking and financial services.

Deena said the school promotes holistic education with special emphasis on specialization in areas of choice for all students, "very much in line with the motto of the school...ignite passions, personalize the journey and impact through action".

Woman sues husband for fake dowry cheque

TDT | Manama

The Shariat Appeals Court upheld the decision of obligating a Bahraini man to pay the dowry which he committed himself to give to his wife after attempts with him to do so throughout their nine-year-long marriage proved fruitless.

The defendant is said to have given his wife, who is in her 50s, an invalid cheque worth

BD1,000 which didn't have either his name, nor his signature. "My client was in her forties when she got married to the defendant who was in his fifties. They agreed on a dowry worth BD1,000, and he gave her a cheque which turned out to be fake," the woman's lawyer told prosecutors.

Two witnesses also testified in favour of the woman.

"After hearing the case, it's crystal clear that the man didn't fulfil his promise to give her a dowry of BD1,000 which was also stated in their marriage contract," the court ruling pointed out.

"The man didn't submit any evidence that states otherwise, therefore the Court rules that he is obligated to pay the amount to his wife."

independent state, on the June 4, 1967 borders, with East Jerusalem as its capital, on the basis of the principle of the two-state solution, which is a consistent and uncompromised position that has not and will not change.

He added that relations with Israel will contribute to establishing peace and resolving the Palestinian-Israeli conflict, and are not directed against any country in the region, including Iran.

"Iran is a neighbouring country geographically, but the historical fact is that over recent decades it has not adhered to the most important principles under international law, which are respect for the sovereignty of states," he said.

Oil edges higher on tight supply, surge in US refining activity

Reuters | New York

Oil prices rose yesterday, buoyed by tight supplies and as US refiners drove processing activity to their highest level since before the coronavirus pandemic started.

Brent crude futures for July rose by 48 cents to $114.03 a barrel by 10:50 a.m. EDT (1450 GMT). US West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude for July delivery rose 49 cents, or 0.4%, to $110.26 a barrel.

"Brent crude is trading in a very convincing upwards trend aided by very tight product markets again leading to a hunt for light sweet crudes which are naturally rich in easily refined gasoline and diesel products," Swedish bank SEB said in a note.

This upcoming weekend's US Memorial Day travel is expected to be the busiest in two years, causing fuel demand to rise as more drivers hit the road and shake off coronavirus pandemic restrictions despite high fuel prices. Global crude supplies continue to tighten as buyers avoid oil from Russia, the world's second-largest exporter, after the invasion of Ukraine, which Moscow calls a "special military operation".

ernment said, with gasoline inventories also sliding modestly. Distillate stocks rose by 1.7 million barrels. Refiners picked up the pace of processing, boosting capacity use to 93.2%, its highest since December 2019.

Refiners have had to keep facilities running at full-tilt to deal with heavy demand, especially from overseas, as refined product exports rose to more than 6.2 million barrels per day last week. High exports and a reduction in refining capacity means gasoline stocks have dwindled in the United States.

"Refiners are going to continue to burn the crude as much as they can," said Phil Flynn, senior analyst at Price Futures Group. "The market should be concerned going into this holiday weekend because gasoline supplies are still very tight."

Victims in Texas school shooting all died in single classroom

Children get on a school bus as law enforcement personnel guard the scene of a suspected shooting near Robb Elementary School in Uvalde, Texas

Women react outside the Sgt Willie de Leon Civic Center, where students had been transported from Robb Elementary School after a suspected shooting in Uvalde, Texas

The 19 children and two teachers massacred at a South Texas elementary school were in a single fourth-grade classroom where the gunman barricaded himself, authorities said yesterday as the deadliest school shooting in a nearly decade reignited debate over America's gun laws.

Police circled Robb Elementary School in Uvalde, Texas, breaking windows in an effort to evacuate children and staff, Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman Chris Olivarez told CNN. Officers eventually breached the classroom and killed the gunman, identified as 18-year-old Salvador Ramos.

Ramos began his rampage by shooting his grandmother, crashing his car then entering the school wearing tactical gear and carrying a rifle, authorities said. His grandmother survived but is in critical condition. State and federal investigators are still working to determine the gunman's motive, Olivarez told MSNBC. Multiple children were also injured, he told Fox News, though he did not have an exact tally.

The attack, which came 10 days after an avowed white supremacist shot 13 people at a supermarket in a mostly Black neighborhood of Buffalo, prompted President Joe Biden to call for stricter gun safety laws in a prime-time address to the American people.

"As a nation, we have to ask when in God's name we're going to stand up to the gun lobby, when in God's name we do what we all know in our gut needs to be done," he said, his voice rising in a crescendo.

Biden ordered flags flown at half-staff daily until sunset on Saturday in observance of the tragedy.

"I am sick and tired of it. We have to act," Biden, a Democrat, said, without proposing specific legislation. Mass shootings in the United States have frequently led to public protests and calls for stricter background checks on gun sales and other firearm controls common in other countries. But such measures have repeatedly failed in the face of strong Republican-led opposition.

Pope Francis on Wednesday said he was "heartbroken" by the shooting and called for an end to "the indiscriminate trafficking of weapons."

2012
The Texas rampage stands as the deadliest school shooting since a gunman killed 26, including 20 children, at Sandy Hook Elementary School in Connecticut in 2012.

Uvalde, a community deep in the state's Hill Country region about 80 miles (130 km) west of San Antonio, has about 16,000 residents, nearly 80% of them Hispanic or Latino, according to US Census data.

"We're a small community and we need your prayers to get us through this," Hal Harrell, the school district superintendent, told reporters on Tuesday, his voice quaking with emotion.

'GUNS FLOW LIKE WATER'

In the wake of the shooting, at least two Texas Republican elected officials called for beefing up security at schools and arming teachers, an approach opposed by gun control advocates.

"The reality is that we don't have the resources to have law enforcement at every school," Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton told Fox News on Tuesday. "Nothing is going to work perfectly."

Democratic US Senator Chris Murphy of Connecticut, a leading advocate for legislation to restrict the proliferation of guns, told reporters: "I just don't understand why people here think we're powerless."

"You know, guns flow in this country like water. And that's why we have mass shooting after mass shooting," he said.

The shooting appeared to spur national soul searching even though the sheer number of such incidents in recent years has numbed many Americans.

Shaken by the events in Texas, NBA coach Steve Kerr refused to talk about basketball at a pre-game news conference on Tuesday and instead called for stricter gun control.

"When are we going to do something?" he asked.

Family grieves teacher killed in Texas school massacre

Reuters

Eva Mireles yesterday went to a job she seemed to love, teaching fourth grade in the small Texas town of Uvalde, but she never came home, murdered along with 19 pupils and another teacher in the latest mass shooting to plague US schools.

Mireles, who was trained in bilingual and special education, worked at Robb Elementary School, where a teenager killed them all in a hail of gunfire before being killed himself by police officers.

Mireles taught fourth grade children, generally 9 or 10 years old, her cousin Cristina Arizmendi Mireles said on Facebook.

"My beautiful cousin! Such a devastating day for us all! My heart is shattered into a million pieces," Arizmendi Mireles said. In a short biography posted on the school district's website, Mireles had written she had "a supportive, fun, and loving family" comprised of her husband, her college graduate daughter, and "three furry friends."

Her husband, Ruben Ruiz, is a police officer at the school district's police force, the agency investigating the massacre.

Gustavo Garcia-Siller, Archbishop of the Archdiocese of San Antonio, comforts people

"I love running, hiking, and now you just might see me riding a bike!!" Mireles wrote on the website.

Her aunt, Lydia Martinez Delgado, grieved for her niece in a Facebook post, asking for prayers for her family and the entire town of Uvalde. The community, about 80 miles (130 km) west of San Antonio, has about 16,000 residents, nearly 80% of them Hispanic or Latino, according to US Census data.

"I'm furious that these shootings continue. These children are innocent. Rifles should not be easily available to all. This is my hometown, a small community of less than 20,000. I never imagined this would happen to especially loved ones," Martinez Delgado said in a statement.

"All we can do is pray hard for our country, state, schools, and especially the families of all," the statement said. There were two days left in the school year when Tuesday's massacre unfolded. The school district canceled classes for the remainder of the school year and has established grief counseling for the survivors.

Russia drives to cut off key towns in Ukraine's east

● As war enters fourth month, Russia concentrates on east

● Russia tries to encircle Ukrainian troops in twin cities

● Moscow pledges to allow food exports after global criticism

Reuters | Kyiv/Kramatorsk, Ukraine

Russia launched a fresh assault before dawn yesterday on the easternmost Ukrainian-held city in the battlefield Donbas region, threatening to close off the last main escape route for civilians trapped in the path of the advance.

After failing to seize Kyiv or Ukraine's second city Kharkiv, Russia is trying to take full control of the Donbas, comprised of two eastern provinces Moscow claims on behalf of separatists.

Russia has poured thousands of troops into the region, attacking from three sides in the hope of encircling Ukrainian forces holding out in the city of Sievierodonetsk on the east bank of the Siverskiy Donets River and

Service members of pro-Russian troops remove branches covering a self-propelled howitzer 2S1 Gvozdika at their combat positions in the Luhansk region, Ukraine its twin Lysychansk on the west bank. Their fall would leave the whole of Luhansk region under Russian control, a key Kremlin ident Volodymyr Zelenskyy said in a late night address.

His office said the Russians had launched an offensive on Sievierodonetsk early on Wednesday and the town was under constant fire from mortars. Luhansk regional governor Serhiy Gaidai said six civilians had been killed and at least eight wounded, most near bomb shelters, in Sievierodonetsk. The main road out was still being shelled, he said, but humanitarian aid was still getting in.

Ukraine's military said fighting for the road was ongoing, and that on Tuesday it had repelled nine Russian attacks in the Donbas. It reported at least 14 civilians killed in strikes by aircraft, rocket launchers, artillery, tanks, mortars and missiles.

EU cracks widen over Ukraine as Italy, Hungary urge truce

Reuters | Brussels

Italy and Hungary have urged the EU to call explicitly for a ceasefire in Ukraine and peace talks with Russia, putting themselves at odds with other member states determined to take a hard line with Moscow ahead of a summit next week.

A draft concluding statement for the May 30-31 summit, seen by Reuters and dated May 19, describes the European Union as "unwavering in its commitment to help Ukraine exercise its inherent right of self-defence against the Russian aggression." It does not mention peace talks.

At a meeting of EU envoys on Friday, Italy's ambassador proposed changes to the text saying it should refer to peace talks and set out an immediate ceasefire as one of the EU's first goals, according to people who attended the meeting.

That proposal was backed by Hungary and Cyprus, which are among the states most critical of a new package of EU sanctions against Russia that has been blocked for weeks because of internal divisions.

Hungary opposes a planned oil embargo, while Cyprus has concerns about a proposed ban on property sales to Russian citizens.

Russia offers fast-track citizenship to residents of occupied Ukraine

Reuters | London

President Vladimir Putin signed a decree yesterday simplifying the process for residents of Ukraine's Russian-occupied Kherson and Zaporizhzhia regions to acquire Russian citizenship and passports.

The decree marks a further step towards "Russification" of the two regions, where Moscow's war in Ukraine has enabled it to establish a continuous land bridge linking Russia to the Crimean peninsula which it seized from Ukraine in 2014.

Putin's move extends a scheme available to residents of areas controlled by Russian-backed separatists in Ukraine's Donetsk and Luhansk regions, where Moscow has issued around 800,000 passports since 2019.

Russia claimed full control of the Kherson region, north of Crimea, in mid-March, and holds parts of Zaporizhzhia region to the north-east. In Kherson, the Ukrainian governor has been ousted and the military-civilian administration said earlier this month that it planned to ask Putin to incorporate it into Russia by the end of 2022. Ukraine has pledged to recapture all of its seized territory.

Philippines Congress proclaims Marcos as next president

● Congress confirms Marcos won nearly 59% of votes

● Sister: Marcoses "very, very grateful for second chance"

● "Pray for me, wish me well" - Marcos

● New president expected to command legislative supermajority

Reuters | Manila

Philippine President-elect Ferdinand "Bongbong" Marcos Jr. raises hands with Senate President Vicente Sotto III and House Speaker Lord Allan Velasco during his proclamation, at the House of Representatives, in Quezon City, Metro Manila, Philippines

ter, Sara Duterte-Carpio, as his vice president.

"I ask you all, pray for me, wish me well," Marcos, dressed in the traditional white Filipino barong shirt and trousers, said after the proclamation. "I want to do well for this country."

Marcos won 31.6 million or 58.77% of ballots cast, with an 82% turnout.

He won by a margin not seen since before his father's autocratic, 1965-1986 rule, an era characterised by corruption, martial law and unashamed extravagance of the first family, a narrative his campaign sought to upend.

He also present in Congress, where their family has won a seat in almost every election since its return from exile in the 1990s.

Also attending was 92-year-old matriarch Imelda, the influential power-broker, who received loud applause from the house as she posed for pictures.

He is almost certain to command a legislative supermajority, with sister Imee as a senator, son Ferdinand a congressman and cousin Martin Romualdez, the house majority leader expected to be named speaker.

Imee Marcos on Wednesday said the family was "very, very grateful for a second chance" in power.

will be energy prices, jobs, infrastructure and education.

Marcos is still assembling his cabinet, which will need to navigate high inflation, government debt and a tricky foreign policy balance with ally the United States and an increasingly influential China.

Despite the margin of victory, Marcos' rule will be divisive, with widespread anger among opponents and victims of persecution over what they see as historical revisionism to clear the family's name.

Millie Bobby Brown on the character growth of Eleven from 'Stranger Things'

IAN S | Los Angeles

Actress Millie Bobby Brown, who plays the role of Eleven in the popular Netflix series 'Stranger Things', says the fourth season of the sci-fi adventure show starts to answer all of the questions one has about her character's past and her storyline.

Talking about how it feels to return to this story and character after such a long break, Brown said: "Well, we came back in early 2020 but, due to COVID, we had to shut down production. I had a solid eight months off. It felt really nice to get back to work. I'd been inside and not really doing much. It was nice to be able to get back to work and get back to a schedule, and to reconnect with Eleven again."

She added: "We left off at Hopper suspiciously disappearing into thin air. We also left off with Billy sacrificing himself to the Mind Flayer, and Eleven losing her powers. And then, ultimately, the Byers boys and Eleven left Hawkins to go somewhere else. There's a lot left unexplained, and we definitely get into that in Season Four."

She gives a walk through about her character Eleven's evolution from Season 3 to the fourth season.

"Eleven starts off in Lenora Hills, California. She's very much dealing with the loss of Hopper - or so she thinks - and she's also dealing with regular life and being at school, where she's being bullied, and has to try and understand how to be a normal person. She grew up in a laboratory - she grew up very sheltered, and was told what to do.

"This season is about showing her freedom, and about her understanding her own growth, and not just having other people tell her how to do things. So we start off in Lenora - with Will and Jonathan, and Jonathan's new friend Argyle - and then Mike comes to town for a visit. That's when the ball really gets rolling."

Brown shared that Eleven's superpowers always overshadowed her as a person.

"I really appreciate the Duffers taking this away, her most valued quality, on which she is so dependent. Where does taking her superpowers away lead her? Who is she, really? This season really dives into her emotional well being, instead of her simply being a sort of extraterrestrial. We get to find out who she is deep down as a person."

Billie Eilish admits to being 'very depressed' as a teenager

Celebretainment | Los Angeles

Billie Eilish felt "very depressed" during the early years of her career.

The 20-year-old star struggled to enjoy her early success in the music business - but Billie is now in a much better frame of mind.

The singer - who was just 17 when she released her debut album - shared: "I really, really love it, and it's really nice to be able to say that now, because I really didn't love it for a couple of years.

"The first few years of my career I was very young and very depressed and didn't even know if I wanted anything that I had."

CINEMA

Billie has made a series of behind-the-scenes changes over recent years and her entire outlook has been transformed.

The 'Bad Guy' hitmaker told the 'Telekom Electronic Beats' podcast: "I was kind of in this zone of like, I don't want to be here. Stupid little kid and I've made changes.

"Then we got a kind of less brutal touring schedule and we got more people and we didn't have to do it all ourselves anymore. And it just became really really enjoyable."

Meanwhile, Billie recently revealed she's "made friends" with having Tourette's syndrome.

Riffa secured their place in the next round by defeating Shabab Al Khalil of Palestine 3-1 in their final Group B match played in Kuwait.

East Riffa, on the other hand, drew 2-2 with Hilal Alquds, also from Palestine, to earn enough points in Group C to march through.

Riffa finished as runners-up in Group B but were the best-ranked second-placed team in all three West Asian groups. East Riffa finished first in Group C to earn their automatic berth.

Both teams have now progressed to the West Zonal Semi-finals, where they will face off against one another.

from Kuwait in the other final four clash.

Both semis pairings will be played over two legs.

In Riffa's win last night, the Bahrainis were the first to get onto the score sheet through Adnan Fawaz in the 22nd minute. That was enough to put them in the lead by half-time.

Komail Alaswad then doubled their advantage in the 71st, but Shabab Al Khalil were given a lifeline when Mohamad Darwish scored just five minutes later.

Riffa then made sure that there would be no surprises before the final whistle, with Hashim Sayed Isa's goal in the first minute of stoppage time sealing the victory.

Great performance

"The players had a great performance again today, just like they did in the previous two matches. We had good mental strength and the players were determined to get a win despite the circumstances that we faced," said Riffa head coach Ali Ashoor.

"We now need to improve and get ready for the new season as we have an important match against East Riffa in the next round. It will be a big derby for the two teams and hopefully we can continue winning and advance to the West Zonal Final," said Ashoor.

Riffa completed their Group B campaign with two wins and one loss in three matches for six points in second place.

Meanwhile, in East Riffa's draw, the Bahrainis needed to battle back from a two-goal deficit in a fantastic comeback.

Mohammed Maraaba scored two goals for Hilal Alquds in the 24th and 38th minutes to give the Palestinians a 2-0 lead. But then after the half-time break, East Riffa were able to find their way out of the two-goal hole, first through Jasim Khelaif in the 50th minute. Brazilian Luiz Fernando Correa Sales then supplied the definitive equaliser in the 73rd, and managed to hold on for the share of the points.

After the match, East Riffa head coach Florin Motroc commented: "I had expected this match to be difficult, and it needed a lot of concentration from my players, Hilal Alquds are a good team, and they play with high spirit, and they fought hard, especially after the result of first match, as they had a chance to qualify.

"My players were under pressure, but in the second half we showed that we have high spirit, and played as a team to come back and we were close to scoring the winning goal in the final minutes."

East Riffa finished atop Group C with five points, from one win and two draws.

Bahrain battled back from a six-goal deficit in the second half to defeat hosts Kuwait 30-29 in their opening match of men's handball yesterday at the third GCC Games in Kuwait.

After falling behind 14-19 at the half, the nationals faced a 15-21 hole early in the final 30-minute period.

But they came alive just in time and went on a 7-1 rally to tie the proceedings at 22-apiece, and then Ahmed Almaqabi gave them the lead for good at 24-23.

The Bahrainis did well to hold on to the advantage from there and close out the narrow triumph.

Almaqabi was the nationals' top scorer with seven goals, while Ali Eid added six and Abdulla Ali, Mahdi Habib and Mohamed Mohamed each contributed four.

Bahrain are back in action only on Saturday when they face off with the UAE.

That put the nationals in second on the six-nation medal table, with Kuwait still on top. Behind Bahrain in third through sixth were the UAE, Qatar, Oman and Saudi Arabia.
