

His Majesty returns after visit to UAE

A slippery slope

TDT | Manama

His Majesty King Ham-ad bin Isa Al Khalifa returned to Bahrain yesterday after a visit to the United Arab Emirates, where he met with His Highness Shaikh Mohammed bin Zayed Al Nahyan, President of the United Arab Emirates. Discussions covered the robust ties, cooperation, and close coordination between the two countries, as well as regional and international developments.

Both sides expressed their hopes for positive outcomes and constructive decisions from the upcoming 33rd Arab Summit, hosted by Bahrain on May 16 under the presidency of His Majesty King Hamad.

His Majesty and the UAE President called for de-escalation in the Middle East, along with settling all disputes through dialogue and negotiation.

Both sides urged the international community to fulfil its responsibilities in implementing immediate ceasefire resolutions in the Gaza Strip, to safeguard civilian lives and provide necessary humanitarian aid without obstacles.

In 2012 and 2015, the government of Bahrain extended lifelines for expats with travel bans to regularize their CPRs so as to get jobs and pay off their debts. The applications were considered on a case-by-case basis and those with criminal cases were not eligible.

Shai of The American Legal Center agrees. "There should be sanctions on companies that do not pay salaries. Short of bankruptcy, there is no excuse. Yet, even if vour employer pays your salary on time, this does not negate your freedom of travel."

He further explained that banks take in the risk of default while providing loans and the proposals for a regulation would affect the autonomy of banks. "When banks provide a loan, there is a degree of profit and the calculation of risks when they extend that loan. Perhaps, the free market needs to adjust in accordance with lending practices to protect the bank's assets. Such a regulation would strip the banks of autonomy in providing reliable financial tools that residents require," Shai stated.

BD200 monthly support for differently abled individuals

The comprehensive support system for disabilities goes beyond financial aid

TDT | Manama

ahrain has in place a monthly support system to assist individuals facing severe disabilities, with BD200 allotted, while those with minor disabilities receive BD100.

But that's not all - the Ministry of Social Development, in collaboration with various agencies and civil society organizations, offers a range of facilities beyond financial aid.

In response to a query posed by MP Maryam Al Dhaen, Minister Osama Al Asfoor unveiled the comprehensive support system.

Among the offerings are vocational training programmes and access to rehabilitation initiatives. These efforts aren't just about financial assistance; they aim to equip individuals with disabilities with skills necessary for employment and independent living. Moreover, the Ministry operates mobile units that extend essential services to remote areas. For specialised rehabilitation, the Al Matrouk Centre for Guidance Rehabilitation plays a vital role.

Driving license, accommodation

The focus extends to mobility as well. A driver's license training programme enables individuals with disabilities to obtain licenses, promoting their autonomy. Accommodation services are tailored to individual needs, determined through thorough health, psychological, and social evaluations.

Man City's Guardiola says he does not 'waste time' thinking about refs anchester City boss Pep MGuardiola says he does not "spend one second" thinking about referees as he prepares to face Nottingham Forest following the relegation-threatened club's stinging criticism of match officials.

Forest were furious not to be awarded three penalties during last weekend's 2-0 Premier League loss at Everton and made headlines by releasing a series of strong statements about the incidents.

"Phil has a sixth gear but he cannot play all the time in sixth gear -- he has to play in second and third," said Guardiola. "I think, with time, he will learn that.
