The biggest prospect in mixed martial arts today, Muhammad Mokaev signed for BRAVE Combat Federation early this year and made his professional debut at BRAVE CF 37, in Sweden. A two-time world champion in IMMAF competition and the number one pound-for-pound amateur fighter in the world, Mokaev is now set for his first pro bout in the Kingdom of Bahrain, a special place for him.

Aside from representing KHK MMA under the guidance of His Highness Shaikh Khalid bin Hamad Al Khalifa the young prodigy solidified himself as finale of the Kombat Kingdom series that has made Bahrain the center of the MMA world once again. And he has made it a point to compliment the structure with BRAVE CF, that has allowed him to train safely following all the guidelines of health and wellness, as well as providing all fighters with the comfort to only think about their own bouts.

“On October 1st, I’m giving everyone another great performance. The hospitality here in Bahrain is on another level. Thank you so much to BRAVE CF for providing athletes with all their needs”.

BRAVE CF 43 will be headlined by the return of Jarrah Al-Silawi, the best-ever Arab fighter, who will move up in weight to face Melvin van Suijdam. Al-Silawi is the reigning Welterweight world champion but is willing to test the waters in the Middleweight division.

If “The Jordanian Lion” beats his Dutch counterpart, he might be in line for a shock title shot against defending champ Mohammad Fakhreddine down the line should he decide to stay at Middleweight to try and become the first-ever two-division BRAVE CF world champion.

Top Russian prospect Kasum Kasumov returns to action at BRAVE CF 43

One of the finest young fighters out of Russia, Kasum Kasumov is looking to stretch his winning start at BRAVE Combat Federation with another show-stopping performance on his return to action, which will take place at BRAVE CF 43. Set for October 1st, the finale of the Kombat Kingdom series will see Kasumov take on former MMA champion Dimitar Kostov, from Bulgaria in the co-main event.

Kasumov made waves last year at BRAVE CF 29, when he got his 12th professional victory in devastating fashion, dominating Rany Saadeh from Germany en route to a first round Von Flue choke victory, a rare submission, which showcased his excellent ground game. Kasum has more than half of his professional wins coming by way of submission and will look to start his road to a Bantamweight world title with BRAVE CF.

In order to keep on track, though, Kasumov will meet an extremely dangerous adversary in Kostov. Hailing from Bulgaria, Dimitar is more experienced and is riding a two-fight win streak in the European circuit. Almost half of his pro wins have been finishes as he feels confident of ending the hype surrounding Kasumov.

BRAVE CF 43 will be headlined by the return of Arab hero Jarrah Al-Silawi. The BRAVE CF Welterweight world champion will move up to Middleweight to test the waters with his eyes set on a new title run. Al-Silawi faces Melvin van Suijdam, from the Netherlands.

Also set for fight night is another huge return. Muhammad Mokaev, widely recognized as the hottest prospect in the sport, will look for his second BRAVE CF victory against fellow Englishman Jamie Kelly.
