First steps in reforming global health emergency rules adopted at WHO meeting

Reuters | Geneva

Countries around the world yesterday adopted an initial US-led reform of the rules around disease outbreaks, known as the International Health Regulations (IHR), the United States said.

The breakthrough - amendments to Article 59 of the IHR that will speed up the implementation of reforms - came after early opposition from Africa and others was overcome this week. The changes sought by Washington mark a first step in a broader reform of the IHR, which set out countries' legal obligations around disease outbreaks, expected to take up to two years.

Iran army shows off underground drones

● State TV said 100 drones were being kept in the heart of the Zagros mountains

● TV footage showed rows of drones fitted with missiles in a tunnel several hundred metres underground

The Iranian army has given some details - but not the exact location - of an underground base for its military drones, state media reported yesterday, amid simmering tensions in the Gulf.

State TV said 100 drones were being kept in the heart of the Zagros mountains, including Ababil-5, which it said were fitted with Qaem-9 missiles, an Iranian-made version of air-to-surface U.S. Hellfire.

"No doubt the drones of Islamic Republic of Iran's armed forces are the region's most powerful," army commander Major General Abdolrahim Mousavi said. "Our capability to upgrade drones is unstoppable," he added.

The Iranian state TV correspondent said he had made the 45-minute helicopter flight on Thursday from Kermanshah in western Iran to a secret underground drone site. He was allowed to take blindfolds off only upon arrival at the base, he said.

TV footage showed rows of drones fitted with missiles in a tunnel, which it said was several hundred metres underground.

The TV report came a day after Iranian Revolutionary Guards seized two Greek tankers in the Gulf, in an apparent retaliation for the confiscation of Iranian oil by the United States from a tanker held off the Greek coast.

Greek authorities last month impounded the Iranian-flagged Pegas, with 19 Russian crew members on board, due to European Union sanctions. The United States later confiscated the Iranian oil cargo held onboard and plans to send it to the United States on another vessel. The Pegas was later released, but the seizure inflamed tensions at a delicate time, with Iran and world powers seeking to revive a nuclear deal that former US President Donald Trump abandoned, reimposing sanctions on Tehran.

'Trade remains nucleus of Kingdom, Israel ties'

Diplomacy should always be based on sustainable relationships between nation, says Israeli envoy to the Kingdom

● Na'eh said in four years' time trade will reach hundreds of millions of US dollars

● Cooperation in agriculture, renewable energy and water security

● Keen on working jointly towards achieving food security

● Tourism to play an important role in bilateral ties

Staff Reporter
TDT | Manama

Trade and economic relations remain the nucleus of expanding bilateral ties between Israel and Bahrain, said Israeli Ambassador to the Kingdom.

In an exclusive interview with The Daily Tribune, Eitan Na'eh said diplomacy between nations has always been based on many pillars and out of them trade and commerce constitute the most important pillar.

"Economic relations include investments from both sides, joint ventures, exports and imports apart from widening the horizons in terms of cooperation across all major industrial sectors.

"We have begun importing thousands of tonnes of aluminium from the Kingdom. And there are plans to import many more products including fibre glass and petrochemicals. From the Israeli side, there will be investments in the Bahraini economy in many areas including high-tech, fintech, logistics, oil and gas sector and I appreciate the role of the Bahraini ambassador in Israel in this regard."

The envoy said an Israeli fintech firm is almost set to start its operations in the Kingdom and representatives of various industries in Israel are on the way to the Kingdom to forge partnerships as well as start operations here.

"Healthcare is going to be another major area of cooperation. Israeli medical corporations are going to have joint ventures with Bahraini firms, be it developing vaccines to tackle communicable diseases in the future or manufacturing medicines or medical equipment."

When asked about the volume of trade targeted between both nations in the coming years, Mr Na'eh said he is confident that in four years' time it will reach hundreds of millions of US dollars. "We are focusing on joint research, especially in the medical sector, which will have large commercial implications."

He said agriculture, renewable energy and water security are other areas where both countries are cooperating to implement the latest strategies and technologies. "The Kingdom's Minister of Industry, Commerce and Tourism has already visited Israel twice. Exchange of visits of ministers, business delegations and government officials is vital in the path towards joint progress."

Mr Na'eh said Israel and Bahrain are keen on working jointly towards achieving food security. "Food security is of great importance to any nation. As envisioned by His Majesty King Hamad bin Isa Al Khalifa, the bilateral ties must bring benefits to every Bahraini."

Tourism is also going to play an important role in bilateral ties, said the envoy, adding that there is going to be an easing of visa procedures in Israel for cultural figures, business people and tourists from the Kingdom. "We are now working from a temporary office and once we move to a permanent office, I believe we will be able to process more visas without any delays. We are now processing visas in a space of two weeks after submitting applications."

Mr Na'eh said the immediate priorities in his diplomatic mission include building a permanent office, building local contacts and relations on governmental levels, fostering ties with the business community, media and the people as a whole. "We are working on all fronts. Building bonds of friendship can't happen overnight, it takes some time for both nations and peoples to know each other before pursuing the path of true friendship."

He said the bilateral ties do have a special focus on the youth of both nations. "There will be many student exchange programmes, mainly in the healthcare sector, where the youths of both nations would get a platform to know each other through frequent interactions."

Mr Na'eh said Iran can't block

Israel's diplomatic ambitions in the region. "Iran has been trying to block our diplomatic endeavours, but they have consistently failed. Iranian regime can't offer anything to the world other than missiles, terrorists, rockets, bombs and conflicts. Iranian people can offer a lot to the world, for they belong to a great civilization with rich culture and history. They are pioneers in mathematics and science. "However, all these accomplishments of the Iranian people have been turned upside down by the regime, which uses science and technology to ruin the lives of people instead of trying to improve them. From Syria to Yemen and Lebanon, there is no single place in the world where Iranian regime got involved and progress came."

Mr Na'eh said the diplomatic trajectory with all GCC and Arab nations is going up consistently. "Israel is confident about establishing diplomatic relations with all Arab and GCC countries including Saudi Arabia. We are in our best efforts to bring people and governments together as we choose peace over conflict."

In this context, the ambassador highlighted the significance of the Negev Summit, held last March, where the foreign ministers of the US, Israel, the UAE, Bahrain, Egypt and Morocco met and discussed a new security architecture for the region. "We have officially moved into the US Central Command (CENTCOM), which is another milestone in building this security architecture for the region."

Mr Na'eh said Israel is very much willing to share its expertise, knowledge and prosperity in many areas with Arab and GCC countries. "We have one of the best knowledge-based economies in the world. Nearly 87 per cent of our exports are high-tech; Our per capita GDP is one of the highest in the world and we are ready to share our knowledge and prosperity with all countries in the region."

Mr Na'eh said he was overwhelmingly excited to interact with the local Jewish community of the Kingdom. "It has been exciting to celebrate Jewish holidays across the Jewish homes of Bahrain. Jews have contributed towards the Kingdom's economic development and we are really proud of that."

The ambassador praised the Kingdom's leadership for the nation's great acceptance of different cultures and religions. "Bahrain is a great land on earth, where we could see a synagogue, church, mosque and Hindu temple, side by side. This tolerance, which is a social culture here, has made the Kingdom a role model of co-existence and understanding."

"We are working on all fronts. Building bonds of friendship can't happen overnight, it takes some time for both nations and peoples to know each other before pursuing the path of true friendship

"Iranian regime can't offer anything to the world other than missiles, terrorists, rockets, bombs and conflicts

"Israel is confident about establishing diplomatic relations with all Arab and GCC countries including Saudi Arabia.

Two women jailed for forging travel documents

TDT | Manama

Forging travel documents to legalise illegal stay landed two women behind bars in the Kingdom.

The suspects, aged 41 and 45 years, allegedly, created fake travel documents to legalise their stay in the Kingdom, court files say.

Police arrested them at the Bahrain International Airport. According to the High Criminal Court, the 41-year-old woman landed in Bahrain on a visit-visa that expires in two weeks.

However, she forged the documents, which now show that she went back on the 13th of December and returned after two days. She also faked the official seal to validate her travel in the passport.

During interrogation, police found that the second suspect, also a woman, and another man, who is unidentified, helped her.

The forgery caught the official attention when the woman reached the airport for her return journey to her homeland in January.

Customs verification officers grew suspicious of the seals and took the passport for a detailed examination.

Officers told the court that the seals were almost similar to that issued at the airport but had minor distortions, good enough to understand it as fake.

Further investigation also proved that the women hadn't left the country on the said dates. However, during interrogation, the woman rejected the charges and said all she did was hand over the passport to the other woman, a friend from her hometown, to renew it.

She also claimed no knowledge that she was staying in the Kingdom illegally.

However, the High Criminal Court said that there was prima facie evidence against both the women. The court also acquitted another woman for lack of evidence.

CAPTAINS CORNER

Don't ignore the message in a bottle

CAPTAIN MAHMOOD AL MAHMOOD

Do you remember the old charge card slogan "Don't leave home without it"? Now that summer is here, I have a proposal for you, dear reader: there is indeed something more precious than a spending card that you should not leave home without. And that is a reusable bottle of drinking water.

Everybody advises us to stay hydrated and drink at least eight glasses of water a day and that is possible only if we consciously interrupt our workday schedule to drink water. But when we go for meetings, we are offered the water in plastic PET bottles. If we forget our own water supply, we simply step into the nearest cold store and buy a bottle of water, drink it and toss the bottle in a garbage bin. If we eat out, we order our water in the restaurants – either in fancy coloured glass bottles or in plastic ones.

That plastic bottle you threw away will end up in the Askar landfill and sit there for 1,000 years – yes, ten centuries – before it degrades and even then it will pollute the soil. Multiply that by millions of bottles and we have a scenario of a choked land.

Unthinkingly, we are leaving behind a toxic footprint for future generations. That plastic bottle you threw away will end up in the Askar landfill and sit there for 1,000 years – yes, ten centuries – before it degrades and even then it will pollute the soil. Multiply that by millions of bottles and we have a scenario of a choked land.

A simple solution to this would be to invest in a sturdy water bottle and make it a point to fill it with drinking water from home and remember to carry it with you. If you stop using two plastic bottles of water every day that's thirty bottles a month – and three hundred and sixty bottles a year. Hear that whisper of a sigh? That's Planet Earth thanking you for your thoughtfulness.

Make drinking water a trendy thing – and doing so from your own bottle an ecological habit. Every little step mindfully taken, will lead us to our destination.

MoE employee loses job for insulting students; Court rejects appeal

TDT | Manama

A school employee, who got fired by the Ministry of Education for insulting students, is not eligible to get the job back, the High Administrative Court ruled, rejecting an appeal.

The ministry said it fired the employee after receiving multiple complaints against the person and after investigations by a probe committee.

Court files say that several parents and the person's colleagues alerted the ministry after noticing that the students were insulted and showered with bad words by the employee.

The suspect, a woman, court documents say, started working in 2016, and the ministry terminated her in 2020.

However, the woman decided to appeal the termination in court.

In its ruling, the judges pointed out that the decision follows Article (21) of the Civil Service Law issued by Decree-Law No. (48) for the year 2010. It states that employees must perform their work with accuracy, honesty and integrity and maintain the dignity of their job and the party to which he belongs. "Without exceptions, employees are to be referred to investigation when they are at fault and impose penalties by a competent authority," the court said, adding, "If the recommendation is dismissal, a disciplinary committee should look into their case."

Reading the verdict, the judges pointed out that the committee had found several violations against the appellant.

The charges

"The plaintiff had left work without permission, downgraded the dignity of the public service during working hours and behaved impolitely," the report said.

"The penalty for such violations is a three-week salary deduction or direct termination," judges said.

"The plaintiff was terminated considering the gravity of her actions. Hence, the court is declining her lawsuit," the ruling said.

Catching the bus just got easier!

E-paper passenger information displays rolled out for accurate arrival and departure times

TDT | Manama

Did you ever miss a bus because of not being sure about the correct bus timing?

That frustration can spoil the entire day when it affects work or a travel plan.

Bahrain, however, has a solution for this particular issue if you are looking for one.

But is there a tech for that...?

"Yes," says the authorities here in Bahrain, who had already rolled it out. They call it the first-ever electronic passenger information service in the Kingdom.

The service is now active at bus stops around the capital city, Manama, which the authorities say will provide "accurate arrival and departure times and an improved travel experience."

This project is part of a national strategy to modernise public transport and transform mobility for all

Replacing paper timetables, the new bus stop displays utilise solar-powered electric paper to provide live accurate bus arrival and departure times.

The Ministry of Transportation and Telecommunication was responsible for implementing the infrastructure operated by the Bahrain Public Transportation Company.

Solar-powered electric paper

The new displays utilise solar-powered electric paper to provide live accurate bus arrival and departure times and other important information, says a report by the Intelligent Transport.

If successful, very soon, the system could be seen across the entire public transport network, with Bahrain also getting ready for the first ever metro project.

"[The new electronic paper displays] will help people use the bus network flexibly and in the future link into the Metro. Using public transport is important for the energy transition and making our cities more sustainable, and this is a smart contribution to that," the report quoting Roddy Drummond, British Ambassador to Bahrain, said.

Papercast is a robust electric paper technology that can withstand harsh weather conditions, and provides a feature-rich content management system.

With this move, Bahrain also joins Abu Dhabi, Dubai, Kuwait, Makkah and Qatar in the E-ink technology.

US SEC looking into Musk's Twitter stake purchase

● The regulator asks Musk why it appears he did not file required paperwork within 10 days of the acquisition

● The SEC asked Musk to explain why he opted to initially file a "13G" disclosure form

Reuters | Washington

The US Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) is looking into Tesla Chief Executive Officer Elon Musk's disclosure of his stake in Twitter Inc (TWTR.N) in early April, according to a letter the agency sent to him that month.

In the letter, now made public by the SEC, the regulator asks Musk why it appears he did not file required paperwork within 10 days of the acquisition, and also questions why, when Musk did disclose his stake, he used a form meant for passive investors while he was openly questioning Twitter's policies around free speech.

Specifically, the SEC asked Musk to explain why he opted to initially file a "13G" disclosure form, which is meant for investors who plan to hold their shares passively instead of a "13D" form, which is for activist investors who intend influence management and policies of the company. He later amended the filing. Musk was offered a board seat shortly after his initial disclosure and has since gone on to attempt to buy the company outright in a $44 billion deal to take it private.

Spokespeople for Musk did not immediately respond to a request for comment. An SEC spokesperson declined to comment.

Separately, Twitter said in a filing Friday it was not accepting the resignation of Egon Durban, a Musk ally, from its board. Two days earlier, Twitter shareholders had blocked his re-election, but the company said he brought "unparalleled operational knowledge of the industry" and instead he would reduce his board roles elsewhere.

Outside experts had previously said Musk's late filing and apparently improper paperwork could attract the attention of the SEC, which has sparred with Musk in the past.

But the financial consequences for the world's richest man could be limited, as fines for such a misstep would likely rise to a few hundred thousand dollars, according to outside experts. And others were skeptical it could endanger Musk's efforts to acquire Twitter.

"I think from that investigation standpoint, the SEC is going to have a pretty strong case that he's violated securities laws," said Josh White, a finance professor at Vanderbilt University who previously worked at the SEC as a financial economist. However, he added it "would be disastrous if [the SEC] said, well, this Twitter deal is on hold because Musk filed the wrong form."

"Twitter stock price would instantly drop ... I don't think that the Commission has an interest in necessarily standing in the way of the deal."

The SEC's letter is dated the same day Musk disclosed a 9.2% stake in Twitter. The billionaire has been sued by investors claiming he manipulated the company's stock price downward and profited by not disclosing his investment on time.

The Tesla Inc (TSLA.O) chief executive officer has landed in trouble with the SEC before, when the agency sued him in 2018 after he tweeted he had "funding secured" to potentially take the electric car company private at $420 per share. In reality, a buyout was not close.

Airline easyJet cancels more than 200 flights

An EasyJet airliner lands at Son Sant Joan airport in Palma de Mallorca, ahead of Easter celebrations, Spain

Reuters | London

Low-cost carrier easyJet (EZJ.L) is to cancel more than 200 flights over the next 10 days due to airport delays and other restrictions, disrupting travel during the school holidays.

The European airline has been hit by a string of problems since the removal of COVID restrictions led to a rebound in travel, with many British airports struggling to recruit enough ground staff while easyJet has also struggled with IT problems.

It recently removed six seats from some A319 aircraft to reduce the crew it needed by one.

It said in a statement on Saturday it would cancel around 24 flights a day from London's Gatwick Airport between May 28 and June 6. It was forced to cancel around 200 flights on Thursday due an IT problem.

"We are very sorry for the late notice of some of these cancellations and inconvenience caused for customers booked on these flights however we believe this is necessary to provide reliable services over this busy period," it said.

"Customers are being informed from today and provided with the option to rebook their flight or receive a refund and can apply for compensation in line with regulations."

India faces wider coal shortages, worsening power-outage risks

Worker sits on a truck being loaded with coal at a railway coal yard on the outskirts of the western Indian city of Ahmedabad

Reuters | New Delhi

India is expected to face a wider coal shortage during the quarter ending September over expectations of higher power demand, an internal power ministry presentation seen by Reuters showed, worsening risks of widespread power outages.

The nation expects local coal supply to fall 42.5 million tonnes short of demand in the September quarter, 15% higher than previously projected, due to higher growth in power demand and lower output from some mines.

India has stepped up pressure on utilities to increase imports in recent days, warning of cuts to supply of domestically mined coal if power plants do not build up coal inventories through imports.

However, one of the slides in the presentation showed that most states had yet to award contracts to import coal and that Indian utilities would run out of coal by July if no coal was imported.

Only one state had awarded a contract to import coal as of end-April, a power ministry import status report reviewed by Reuters showed.

India expects domestic coal supply of 154.7 million tonnes, 42.5 million tonnes short of the projected requirement of 197.3 million tonnes in the September quarter, the presentation showed. It previously expected a shortage of 37 million tonnes.

The presentation was made on Friday in a virtual meeting in which the federal coal and power ministers were present, with top energy officials from the federal government and the states in attendance, according to two government officials familiar with the matter.

India now expects the demand for coal from utilities to be 784.6 million tonnes for the year ending March 2023, the presentation showed, 3.3% higher than projected earlier.

The projected annual coal shortage is now 49.3 million tonnes, nearly three times the 17.7 million tonnes projected earlier, the presentation showed.

Amazon investor proposal to review plastic use narrowly fails to clear

Reuters

Amazon.com Inc's (AMZN.O) investor-led proposal to review its use of plastic won 49% support even as shareholders voted down all the 15 resolutions at the e-commerce giant's annual general meeting, a regulatory filing showed on Friday.

It was the only proposal that came close to reaching the 51% mark for approval. Investors opposed resolutions that challenged the company's policies on various issues, including the treatment of workers and use of non-disclosure agreements.

To be sure, about 13% of the company's voting stock is controlled by Founder and Executive Chairman Jeff Bezos, raising the bar for any effort to win a majority of investor support.

The proposal for a report on whether Amazon cloud, surveillance and other capabilities contribute to human rights violation won 40% support. But an overwhelming 87% voted down a proposal calling Amazon to review worker safety.

Only 39% of votes were in favor of a resolution related to unionization of workers, but 47% backed a report on whether Amazon's lobbying activities were consistent with the best interest of the shareholders.

'Message to the world' - Lithuanians club together to buy drone for Ukraine

A Bayraktar Akinci unmanned combat aerial vehicle is exhibited at Teknofest aerospace and technology festival in Baku, Azerbaijan

Reuters | Vilnius

Hundreds of Lithuanians are clubbing together to buy an advanced military drone for Ukraine in its war against Russia, in a show of solidarity with a fellow country formerly under Moscow's rule.

Some 3 million euros ($3.2 million) have been raised in just three days - out of the 5 million euros needed - largely in small amounts, according to Laisves TV, a Lithuanian internet broadcaster that launched the drive.

"Before this war started, none of us thought that we would be buying guns. But it's a normal thing now. Something must be done for the world to get better," said Agne Belickaite, 32, who sent 100 euros as soon as the fundraising launched on Wednesday.

"I've been donating to buy guns for Ukraine for a while now. And will do so until the victory," she told Reuters, adding she was motivated in part by fears Russia could attack Lithuania.

International Day of UN Peacekeepers highlights the power of partnerships

JEAN-PIERRE LACROIX

On September 27, 2020, the armed forces of Armenia blatantly violating the ceasefire regime launched another aggression against Azerbaijan (third time within this year), by intensively shelling the positions of the armed forces of Azerbaijan along the frontline.

Our civilian and uniformed personnel support ceasefires, prevent and respond to violence, investigate human rights violations and abuses, and help build peace, recovery, and development in conflict-affected countries. There is no doubt that lives are saved and changed by their presence.

In South Sudan, more than 80 percent of respondents to a recent perception survey reported feeling safer due to the presence of UN peacekeepers. Communities in other conflict zones also testify about the impact of peacekeeping. During operation "Let Peace Reign" in the Central African Republic, local leaders reported that increased patrols were deterring armed groups while the provision of clean water, medical assistance, and road rehabilitation by peacekeepers had significantly improved their lives. "It prevents the enemies of peace in our region so that peace returns, allowing us to move freely," said Iyo Feikoumon from Doyi Village.

In some peace operations, a primary task is to provide robust protection of civilians due to the nature of the threat on the ground. Our military and police personnel make every effort to carry out this mandate in challenging and, often dangerous, conditions. However, the ultimate objective is to create the conditions for political solutions and sustainable peace. That is the true measure of our success.

Achieving that outcome is becoming more difficult in an increasingly tense global political and security climate.

Conflicts are more complex and multi-layered with local tensions fueled by national, regional, and international forces acting in their own interests. An increasing number of actors are involved in violence, including criminal, terrorist, and other armed elements. It is difficult to engage with these individuals and groups, with diverse motives and objectives and often links to transnational organized crime, because they have no real interest in reaching political settlements that foster lasting peace.

We are witnessing a less united approach to conflict resolution among global powers due to widening political divisions which, in turn, takes the pressure off warring parties to end violence and make concessions. These divides are exposed in Security Council resolutions relating to peacekeeping mandates, with less unanimity in the decisions made by Member States, notably on mandate renewals, but also less support to our missions when they face challenges on the ground.

A surge in mis- and disinformation is also creating new and growing threats to the safety of UN personnel and the communities they serve. In places like Mali, Central African Republic and the Democratic Republic of Congo, fake news fuels fighting as well as hostility towards peacekeeping missions. We are experiencing an increase in attacks on our bases, ambushes of convoys, and the increased use of improvised explosive devices. In this environment, the iconic blue flag that should provide safety for peacekeepers now risks making them a target.

Despite our best efforts to keep personnel safe, more peacekeepers are being injured or killed in these volatile conditions. The frequency of malicious attacks against peacekeepers increased from 280 in 2020 to 463 last year. In 2021, there were 24 fatalities due to these violent acts.

Among those we have lost are eight peacekeepers who died when their helicopter went down in the eastern DRC in March, during a reconnaissance mission to help protect civilians. I attended a very moving memorial service alongside colleagues in Goma. We all understand that risk, and loss, are inevitable given the nature of our work, but coming together in these tragic circumstances reminds us of the immense price paid by fallen peacekeepers and their families. I want to pay tribute to them. Their sacrifice inspires us to redouble our efforts to build peace and stability.

UN peacekeeping is not alone in this endeavor. Many partners work alongside us in the cause of peace.

Among them are humanitarians who provide life-saving assistance to the most vulnerable. Strong partnerships with communities are also critical. They inspire us with their resilience and persistence in helping resolve tensions, supporting reconciliation, and building peace. Women and youth are also vital partners as powerful champions for peace as are civil society and the media who shine light on the challenges and help promote solutions. We continue to strengthen our partnerships with the 122 Member States that contribute more than 75,000 military and police personnel to our 12 peacekeeping operations. We rely on the consent and active participation of host governments as well as the strong, united support of regional and international partners to persuade parties to put aside their differences and make the necessary concessions to reach political settlements.

That is why, this year, we are marking the International Day of UN Peacekeepers under the theme "People. Peace. Progress. The Power of Partnerships". It is a chance to thank partners for their contributions and to issue a fresh call to action in the pursuit of global peace and security.

Peacekeeping is an imperfect tool that can never meet all needs or expectations. There are times when we are prevented from, or fail to carry out our mandates, and let ourselves, and those we serve, down, including in cases of misconduct by our personnel.

When this happens, we will continue to be held accountable, to constantly interrogate our performance, and find ways to be more innovative and effective, particularly through the Action for Peacekeeping initiative, which establishes priority areas where progress is needed. This includes strengthening our capacity to advance political solutions and support sustainable peace, improving protection of civilians as well as the safety of peacekeepers, implementing the Women, Peace and Security Agenda, and rigorously evaluating our own performance.

Our goals are ambitious and not all will be achieved. Questions may sometimes be asked about the value and impact of peacekeeping.

But if not peacekeeping, what else? Does a better solution exist today to maintain ceasefires, protect civilians, prevent chaos, and support peace efforts in the complex, conflict-affected environments where our operations are deployed?

Despite these questions, and in the face of many challenges, UN Peacekeeping will persevere alongside our partners, to be a strong force for change in a collective effort to achieve peace and progress for all peoples.

Shakira loses tax fraud appeal

Celebretainment | Madrid

Shakira's tax fraud appeal has reportedly been dismissed.

The 45-year-old singer was previously charged with not paying 14.5 million euros in taxes owed on income earned between 2012 and 2014 because of issues surrounding her country of residence at the time.

The Colombian singer - who declared Spain as her official country of residence in 2015 - claimed she was based in the Bahamas at the time, but prosecutors had argued she was living in the European country with her husband, Gerard Pique, and she was only going overseas for professional reasons.

Under Spanish law, people who spend more than six months a year in the country are required to pay their taxes in Spain.

The authorities calculated the unpaid tax bill from all of her global income, rather than what she just earned in Spain.

The 'Hips Don't Lie' hitmaker's documents previously maintained she had spent most of her time abroad and filed taxes accordingly, making no effort to intentionally hide her income and branded any misunderstandings as a "difference in criteria".

However, on Thursday, a court in Spain determined it had been proven Shakira - who has sons Milan, nine, and Sasha, seven, with her spouse - was "a habitual resident in Spain" and there wasn't enough evidence to prove she lived elsewhere.

The court went on to uphold a ruling from July 2021, when a judge ruled a three-year investigation had determined there was "sufficient evidence of criminality".

A spokesperson for the star insisted she had paid her debt after being told what she owed.

They said: "Shakira's conduct on tax matters has always been impeccable in all the countries where she has had to pay taxes, and she has trusted and faithfully followed the recommendations of the best specialists and expert advisors."

Chris Pratt 'sacrificed a lot' to film 'Jurassic World' movie franchise

Fox | Los Angeles

Chris Pratt admitted he "sacrificed a lot" to film the "Jurassic World" trilogy.

Sitting down with co-star Bryce Dallas Howard, Pratt explained it's "sad" to see the franchise come to an end.

"Both of us sacrificed a lot over the past eight years, blessed beyond all belief to be a part of this thing, and it's sad," Pratt told the Associated Press.

"You know, you put that much time, energy, effort into something, and you know it's coming to a close. It's like the end of a theme park ride."

"You're like, 'That was amazing. Oh, it's slowing down. We have to get off now, don't we? Oh dang. We waited in line our life to ride this ride. Now it's coming to a close."

However, the 42-year-old actor noted audiences still haven't seen the film, which is set to be released on June 9.

"But thankfully it's not over yet for audiences because they've got it coming out this summer. So, you can go see it and be part of the journey as well."

Although Pratt didn't elaborate on the sacrifices he made for the franchise, he has welcomed two daughters with wife Katherine Schwarzenegger in the past two years.

The couple recently announced the birth of their second daughter via Instagram.

"We are so excited to announce the birth of our second daughter, Eloise Christina Schwarzenegger Pratt," the couple wrote. "Mama and baby are doing well. We feel beyond blessed and grateful."

Pratt and Schwarzenegger welcomed their first daughter in August 2020.

The couple has been private with their children, choosing to keep their faces off of social media - at least for now.

Drew Barrymore feels 'relief' after getting nominated for six Daytime Emmys

Celebretainment | Los Angeles

Drew Barrymore feels "relief" after getting nominated for six Daytime Emmys.

The 47-year-old actress says the award nods - which include Outstanding Entertainment Talk Show Host and Outstanding Entertainment Talk Show - has left her "relieved" because it means she gets to keep hosting her talk show, 'The Drew Barrymore Show'.

While appearing on 'Late Night with Seth Meyers' on Tuesday (24.05.22) Drew told host Seth Meyers: "I feel like relief is a huge definition of joy right now, too. Like, I'm so relieved that it's working, that we get to stay."

The 'Never Been Kissed' star admitted to being "way too attached" to her new role.

'Top Gun: Maverick' star Glen Powell almost wasn't cast

Fox | Los Angeles

Glen Powell nearly didn't make the cut for "Top Gun: Maverick."

Powell, 33, shared with The Hollywood Reporter that, in July 2018, he got a phone call informing him he didn't get the role in the film for which he had spent weeks auditioning.

"This one I just took very personally and was just plain sad," he told the outlet.

Powell, best known for his role in "Scream Queens," originally auditioned for the role of Rooster, the on-screen son of Goose who was Lt. Maverick's partner. That role went to Miles Teller.

Powell shared that he spent several weeks preparing for his audition and even travelled to Coronado's North Island military base to "live in that world for a couple weeks."

Glen Powell

A week after Powell got the devastating phone call, the film's lead, Tom Cruise, gave him a ring.

"No movie star calls the guy that doesn't get the role," Powell said. "Movie stars typically want the glory without the nitty-gritty of having to break people's hearts."

Powell said he was reluctant to take on a smaller role in the film. After several phone calls with Cruise, though, Powell accepted the role of Hangman, a role similar to Val Kilmer's Iceman in the original "Top Gun."

"You could spend an entire career playing great roles in movies that leave no mark on people," he shared with the outlet. "To be a part of great movies, to even just have a smaller part, is a much more worthy quest."

Powell has been in the film industry for a decade. He shared with the outlet a special memory when auditioning for Denzel Washington's "The Great Debaters" at 17.

"I got a call from [Washington] right afterward saying, 'Hey, I really want you for this bigger role, [but] some of the other producers don't believe you can pull it off. So I'm going to invite you to the table read, and I just need you to come ready to play,'" Powell shared. "I kind of misinterpreted that."

The 17-year-old arrived to the table read, which hosted Oprah Winfrey, in a full tuxedo because he thought that would prove he came "ready to play." He ultimately got the role.

"Top Gun: Maverick" stars Cruise, Teller, Jennifer Connelly, Val Kilmer and Monica Barbaro.

The film has been highly anticipated by fans since it was postponed for two years due to the coronavirus pandemic. The sequel film hits theatres worldwide Friday.

Anne Hathaway 'just gets' fashion, says stylist

Celebretainment | Los Angeles

Anne Hathaway has an "encyclopedic" knowledge of fashion. The Oscar-winning actress has turned heads at the ongoing Cannes Film Festival with her eye-catching outfits, and Erin Walsh, her stylist, has praised Anne's "effortless and glamorous" style.

Erin explained: "With fashion, I think she just gets it. She has this kind of encyclopedic brain that knows what might resonate for a particular occasion."

"So if we're talking about Cannes specifically, it's not like we created these looks in a vacuum. We definitely had in mind the whole lexicon of its historical context and different silhouettes and references, and it informed what we ended up doing. But that said, one of the reasons Annie's a brilliant actress is the same."

Erin admits that working with the 39-year-old actress has been "an absolute dream".

She told WWD.com: "If I was going to use the word muse, I would use it here because that's what she is."

Erin ultimately wants to create something that looks "innovative, fresh and fun".

She said: "You always want to create a statement that's both of the moment and timeless."

Bahrain outclass UAE in handball

Men's national team battle past their Emirati counterparts 26-25 for second successive victory at third GCC Games in Kuwait

● Women's basketball players win three of first four matches in 3x3 basketball

● Men's padel team narrowly lose to UAE counterparts in team event

TDT | Manama

Bahrain posted a 26-25 victory over the UAE last night in the men's handball tournament at the third GCC Games in Kuwait.

The Bahrainis were in complete control of the contest and enjoyed a seven-goal gap midway through the second half. But a late rally by the Emiratis helped them narrow the gap towards the end but it was a little too late for a comeback.

The Bahrainis put in a fine performance from the opening throw, and held a slim 15-13 advantage at the break.

They then went on 8-3 run to begin the concluding 30-minute period and that put them up 23-16 and well on their way to a comfortable victory.

But the UAE closed out strong and outscored the Bahrainis 9-3 from there.

Ali Eid finished as Bahrain's leading scorer with seven goals, while Mohamed Mohamed chipped in with five, Mohamed

Ahmed had four and Ahmed Al-maqabi and Mahdi Habib both finished with three goals apiece.

Goalkeeper Hesham Isa made 11 saves for Bahrain in the contest. The result was the second win in a row for the nationals, who are coached by Ameen Alqallaf.

The Bahrainis return to the playing court this evening in a match against Saudi Arabia at 5pm, and then on Tuesday wrap up their tournament campaign against Qatar at 7pm. That will also determine the medal rankings of the men's handball competition and it will be the last day of the GCC Games.

Meanwhile, Bahrain's women's basketball players enjoyed a rousing start to their campaign in 3x3 basketball, winning three of their first four fixtures.

The nationals are taking part in this competition with a line-up featuring Hissa Aljaber, Bayan Salman, Seema Hasan and Aysha Alhadi. They opened their medal bid with an 8-6 win over Qatar, with Hissa emerging as their leading scorer with seven points. They followed that result with a tough 7-17 loss to the UAE. Aysha had four points in the defeat.

The Bahrainis were quick to bounce back and they routed

Oman 21-10 with Hissa scoring 12 points, Bayan five and Seema three; and then they beat Saudi 13-10 with Hissa and Seema scoring five points apiece.

The Bahraini women have one more preliminary round match to play today before heading into the knockout stages. They will take on Kuwait at 4pm.

In padel yesterday, Bahrain bowed to the UAE 1-2.

In the opening match, Abdulla Mohamed and Omar Qaed lost 2-6, 5-7 to Abdulla Ahli and Mohammed Al Janahi.

Husain Dawani and Ali Dawani were then 6-4-, 6-4 winners against Khalid Alshamsi and Hamad Al Janahi.

In the third match, Fahad Sarwani and Ali Alasfoor narrowly lost to Abdulla Alabdulla and Maged Alajanahi 3-6, 6-4, 6-7.

In tennis yesterday, the men's team competition continued, and Bahrain suffered a 0-3 defeat to their Saudi opponents.

Hasan Abdulreda lost the first match against Saud Alhighbani 2-6, 0-6. Yusuf Qaed then succumbed to Ammar Alhighbani 1-6, 3-6; before the two Bahrainis teamed up to take on Omar Ahmad and Sulaiman Alqasem but lost 2-6, 6-7.

Bahrain did not come away with any additional medals yesterday at the third GCC Games in Kuwait. They remained second on the six-nation medal table with 20 gold, 21 silver and 15 bronze

Rookie Di Giannantonio claims shock Italian MotoGP pole

AFP | Mugello

Fabio Di Giannantonio claimed a shock pole position in the Italian MotoGP yesterday, the Italian snatching top spot on the grid for the first time in his career on his final lap at Mugello.

Gresini rider Di Giannantonio had led for large tracks of the day's second qualifying run but looked to have lost pole to Johann Zarco and then Marco Bezzecchi until he posted a stunning time of one minute, 46.156sec on the day's last lap.

The 23-year-old Italian had made his way into the second run after topping the times in the first qualifying session and his team celebrated wildly as he crossed the line after time had elapsed to snatch pole at

I hold no grudges and want to play in Australia again says Djokovic

Reuters | Paris

World number one Novak Djokovic said on Friday he would like to return to play in Australia again despite being deported from the country earlier this year due to not having a COVID-19 vaccination.

The 20-time Grand Slam winner was unable to defend his Australian Open title in January after being deported amid a media frenzy after being initially admitted to the tournament despite not being vaccinated.

"I don't know anything about whether my visa is going to be reinstated or whether I'm going to be allowed to come back to Australia. I would like to. I would like to go there and play the Australian Open," he told a news conference.

"I don't hold any grudges. Look, you know, it was what it was. If I have an opportunity to go back to Australia and play a place where I made the biggest success in my career on Grand Slam, I would love to come back."

Djokovic, who is not vaccinated against COVID-19, was flown out of Australia after an 11-day ordeal at the discretion of the country's immigration minister over concerns the tennis great could fuel anti-vax sentiment.

Scott Morrison, the Prime Minister at the time, has lost elections since and Australia's Labor Party leader, Anthony Albanese, was sworn in as the country's 31st prime minister earlier this month.

Djokovic had spent some days in an immigration detention centre in Melbourne and had met refugees who had been there for years. Some have since been released.

"If that's correct, then I'm obviously very happy about it, because I know that it was very difficult for them, particularly for the ones that stayed there for nine years," Djokovic said.

"You know, I stayed there for a week, and I can't imagine how they felt for nine years. If I brought some light to that situation then, you know, in a positive way for them, for this to happen, then of course I'm very happy."

The debacle surrounding Djokovic deprived the 35-year-old of the chance to win a record-extending 10th Australian Open. He could have also claimed a record 21st Grand Slam title - a feat his rival Rafa Nadal managed to achieve in Melbourne instead.

Nadal is no fan of night sessions at Roland Garros

Rafael Nadal

Reuters | Paris

Rafa Nadal enjoys a near mythical status at Roland Garros where he has won a record 13 French Open titles and has a statue erected in his honour, but the Spaniard is no fan of the night sessions at the claycourt Grand Slam.

The night session, for which Amazon has exclusive television broadcasting rights in France, starts at 9 p.m. local time and was introduced for the first time at the 2021 edition of the major.

Organisers the French tennis federation (FFT) have previously faced criticism for matches finishing too late and Nadal, who has won a men's record 21 majors, said conditions in Paris were not suited for such a late start on clay.

"I don't like night sessions on clay. I am very clear with that," Nadal, who reached the fourth round on Friday by beating Dutch 26th seed Botic van de Zandschulp, told reporters before lauding organisers for the constant development of the site.

Real Madrid clinch Champions League title

Vinicius Junior's second half tap-in steers Spanish giants to 1-0 victory over Liverpool in the Champions League final played in Paris

Real Madrid secured a record-extending 14th European Cup when they beat Liverpool 1-0 in a Champions League final delayed for more than half an hour after police tried to stop people trying to force their way into the Stade de France last night.

Vinicius Junior scored just before the hour with Real's first attempt on goal and their goalkeeper Thibaut Courtois made several fine saves to deny Liverpool, who end the season with two domestic cups having also failed to win the Premier League.

In a battle of European heavyweights, Jurgen Klopp's side had more opportunities but lacked sharpness when it mattered as Carlo Ancelotti became

It was LaLiga title holders Real's fourth Champions League crown in seven years as they improved their impressive record in the competition with their eighth victory in as many finals.

The final was to be played in St Petersburg but European soccer governing body UEFA relocated it to Paris after Russia's invasion of Ukraine, which Moscow calls a 'special operation'.

The game started after a 36-minute delay following incidents outside the stadium when fans were tear-gassed by riot police as people without tickets tried to force their way in.

After another effort by Liverpool's Thiago Alcantara, Sadio Mane came much closer when he ghosted past Eder Militao and Casemiro in the box before his fierce attempt was tipped onto the post by the excellent Courtois in the 21st minute.

Real were still waiting for their first shot after half an hour as Virgil van Dijk marshalled the Reds defence.

Liverpool, however, were not incisive enough in attack and Salah had another attempt with a header but it went straight at Courtois 10 minutes before the break.

Hindley on brink of first Giro title after stealing pink jersey from Carapaz

AFP | Milan

Jai Hindley is on the brink of his first Giro d'Italia title after stealing the pink jersey on the 20th and final mountainous stage, a 167-kilometre ride from Belluno to Marmolada, yesterday, as local rider Alessandro Covi took the stage win.

Colombian Richard Carapaz, looking for his second Giro title, held a slender three-second lead in the general classification over Hindley coming into the penultimate stage, with just Sunday's time trial left to decide the 2022 champion.

Spaniard Mikel Landa, third in the general classification, stayed at the head of the peloton with his Bahrain Victorious team mates as they climbed the Passo Pordoi - the highest point of the Giro.

With Covi of UAE Team Emirates well clear out in front, Carapaz was looking comfortable going into the gruelling final Passo Fedaia climb, as Ineos Grenadiers domestique Pavel Sivakov led the peloton with four kilometres to go, dragging Carapaz with him.

Hindley, who finished second in the Giro in 2020, knew he had to make a move if he was to be in with a chance of be-

As Covi won his first Grand Tour stage, Hindley of Bora-Hansgrohe left Carapaz for dead, to finish well clear of the 2019 champion to give him a one minute and 25 second advantage going into Sunday's 17.1-kilometre time trial in Verona where, barring a disaster, Hindley can make history.

Leclerc takes 'special' pole in home Monaco Grand Prix after Perez crashes

AFP | Monaco

Charles Leclerc topped the times to take pole position for Ferrari at his home Monaco Grand Prix yesterday after Red Bull's Sergio Perez crashed on his final flying lap in a dramatic qualifying session.

The 24-year-old Monegasque driver emerged on top after a tense and dramatic session that saw his Ferrari team-mate Carlos Sainz qualify second to complete a one-two for the Italian team despite colliding with Perez's car. Perez, who was unhurt after slamming sideways into the barriers at Portier, finished up third on the grid ahead of his Red Bull team-mate world champion and series leader Max Verstappen.

It was Leclerc's fifth pole of the season and the 14th of his career, an oft-decisive advantage at the tight and unforgiving barrier-lined street circuit where he has yet to finish a race.

Leclerc clocked a best lap in one minute and 11.376 seconds to outpace Sainz by more than two-tenths in a scrappy end to an intriguing day's action ahead of Sunday's classic 78-lap race.

The session was red-flagged to a halt when Perez crashed,

"It is very special for me," said Leclerc. "I am so incred-

"It went perfectly up until now and that last lap for me before the red flag was really, really good."

The accident also revived memories of a similar incident last year when Leclerc claimed pole, but crashed and was unable to take part in the following day's race.

Sainz said: "Checo (Perez) crashed in front of me on my flying lap. I saw the yellow flags just coming into Turn Eight and I had to hit the brakes to avoid him the best I could."
